credit here are the many other noteworthy stints and musical projects along the way. Steve's Blues style, as a Milwaukee Journal music critic stated, "is impressive by virtue of the restraint and feeling, not by any superficial desire to get every lick into every song." Another Midwest music writer, writing in Vivid Scenes Magazine has this to say about Nitros Blues Band "a band of the 90's. A tight, hard working fun loving foursome of Blues brothers that blend classic covers with some good, solid traditional flavored originals to create an exciting, explosive sound." Among fans and journalists alike, the superlatives run out when it comes to this crew of Blues practitioners.

Steve and his able sidemen will be appearing at Milwaukee nightspot JUST US on Sunday, June 4, for LIVE DANCE MANIA, a very special concert event to benefit the Milwaukee A.I.D.S. Project's food pantry.

Igniting the evening's activities and sharing the stage bill with Nitros Blues Band are The Swingin' Kools. The Swingin' Kools is a four-some of young, exceptionally gifted Blues players. Here's a band with an electrifying, highly stylized "swing-type" Blues approach. The twenty-two year old singer-harpist bandleader, Jon Mroz, and his impressive twenty-two year old guitar-slinger cohort, are Blues tradesmen playing with a proficiency light years beyond their ages. This upstart quartet, including its more-than-competent clockwork rhythm section, is already "jetting" its way into local recognition. Stated simply, they are the "swingingest" Blues Kats in town!

LIVE DANCE MANIA is an event not to miss. Along with the two bands, there will be a raffle, with the drawing held from stage. There will be a large number of high quality giveaways. LOOKOUT!!! JUST US is the only place to be on Sunday, June 4th.

BLUES CONTAGION MAP BENEFIT AT JUST US, SUNDAY, JUNE 4

By Jimmy C. Foster

What is the "Blues"? For just about anyone past the age ten, that question is practically sophomoric. The Blues is an experience of mood and feeling common to us all. The sharp ups-and-downs of day to day living, the shifting tides of our lives - these are the passing pictures of it all - love lost, love restored, the howl or the unheard whimper of pain and loneliness, loss of good fortune, good fortune regained and unleashed exuberance. And joy, yes even mighty sounds of joy. For every experience experienced, every feeling felt, there's a sound in the strains and a story in the songs.
The Blues is a music that mirrors to us, like a deep interior diamond reflector in the soul, this vast scope of feeling and experience.
A Blues concert is a celebration of the sum of our lives' events, ordinary and not. No aspect is overlooked as too trivial. All this weaves into a shared fabric as the collective and collecting nature of life. And that precisely is what makes this music so vital, so urgent and never out of date. Blues is community at its zenith. There is no such thing as attending a Blues show. No spectator event here. This music DEMANDS, and unfailingly wins, intense participation. It's up and out of the seats for real ass-shakin' action!

In a recent conversation with Steve, bandleader for Nitros Blues Band, I asked this first question: "Why do you play Blues? Why not Rock or Jazz?" (I forgot to mention chamber music!) This commanding, tall and lanky guitarist smiled in broadening degrees and slipped into overdrive enthusiasm. "Why do you eat, drink, sleep, make love and all the rest?" His response, a suspended query. As we talked on, it became apparent that this music, his music, is his sustaining lifeblood.

It's his necessity.
Steve is a well-known, highly praised guitarist-musical artist in the Midwest. He was a founding member of the now legendary Pontiac Blues Band. He has shared stage billing with Johnny Winter and other Blues luminaries. Steve has also played with Billy Flynn, another Blues giant on guitar from Green Bay, Wisconsin. Too lengthy to Quest attended the special reception to honor Mr. Ron Geiman (top left) this past Sunday. The event was sponsored by Miller Brewing Co., AIDS Resource Center of Wis., Cream City Foundation and Wisconsin Light. Mr. Geiman was honored for being one of the foremost leaders in Wisconsin, dedicating the better part of his life to enriching the lives of Gays & Lesbians as the publisher of In Step Magazine over the past eleven years. The reception was wonderful! My only negative comment; shame on the Gay/Lesbian Business people who were absent! It did not go unnoticed.
