Editorially Speaking Tell The World

[This is the first in a series of feature guest editorials.]

You can't make good wine in a bathtub in the cellar, you need sun and rain and fresh air, you need a pride in the job you can tell the world about. Only you can live without drink if you have to, but you can't live without love.

> -from The Charioteer. by Mary Renault

In a week, gay men and lesbians worldwide will march in demonstrations of gay love, pride, and unity. This year's activities will represent the 13th year that gay people have celebrated a small but significant rebellion against New York City police in 1969—an event which became a symbol of resistance against oppression and formally ushered in the modern gay rights movement.

San Francisco and New York, with their multitudes of marchers, customarily have the largest parades and grab the most national media coverage. But this year more attention than usual will likely be focused on the Chicago Gay and Lesbian Parade (scheduled for June 27) for a reason that is giving many people pause: the planned "anti-homosexual" rally by the self-styled American Nazi Party.

Many Chicagoans already are expressing concern that the Nazi rally—and a projected counter-demonstration by a small contingent calling itself the "Stonewall Committee"-will turn the day into a media circus, causing the gay parade to be shunted aside or distorted beyond recognition. Other people fear violent confrontation between the Nazis and the gay ralliers.

The American Nazi Party is a small, ineffectual group of individuals who are trying to salve their wounded pride in the wake of a scandal which Frank Collin, the hate-spewing leader of the now-defunct National Socialist Party of America, was arrested for propositioning teenage boys for sex (and was revealed in the ensuing publicity to be partly Jewish). The only threat this latest batch of neo-Nazis poses is to seemingly more moderate demagogues on the New Right, whose pro-"Christian," pro-"life," anti-gay rhetoric differs from the fascists' blabbering only in subtlety.

The planned Nazi rally presents not a threat but an opportunity to expose moralistic intolerance for what it is. To make use of this opportunity, it is essential that every member of the community show support for the community by not putting other people's rights or safety in danger and by helping make this year's parade as positive as possible. Though the gay pride parades around the world have steadily grown in size and scope each year, there continue to be those who decline to participate. "It's not my thing," they say; or "The parade is a freak show, it doesn't reflect the whole community"; or, "I come from an older tradition"; or, citing the presence of TV cameras, "I can't risk being seen."

For every excuse to stay away, there's a reason to go. If you think the parade doesn't

Readers Feedback

Dear Escape,

Your editorial was to the point in the June 4 issue, and I feel it is about time gays. supported gay businesses. I resent my customers going to Park Avenue on Sundays since they aren't accepted the rest of the week. The local gays with their heads screwed on straight have refused to visit Park Avenue, which is as it should be.

Gordon Bourret

Dear Escape,

Your editorial of 4 June 1982 causes me some significant concern.

You refer to the "part-time palace" that some of our people chose to go to on the weekend of the Wreck Room Classic (which I believe was fantastically coordinated). You suggest some type of discrimination that took place. You state that they had a "faggot" line and that our people were ordered by "horns" to stay in "queer lines".

First of all, something tells me that things did not quite happen that way. If it did, those people would be only smart to sue the owners of this "palace" that only takes "faggot money". In the state of Wisconsin discrimination is not allowed in public places. Secondly, while I am not personally or professionally in any way involved in "either of these other places", I did do some research into this "issue" in late January of this year. As a matter of fact, I and my reporters interviewed some 60 different persons (see February 5, OUR HORIZONS). While three persons stated that they had "heard of some form of discrimination to gays," none had experienced any nor knew anyone personally who had experienced such.

Thirdly, purely from a business perspective, these other "palaces" specifically invite the gay community on certain nights. It would be counter-productive for them to then discriminate at all.

Fourthly, the fact that these other places employ a number of gay people seems to escape the view of many. Did you consider getting a truly informed opinion before expressing your opinion? As a journalist myself, as well as an active member of the gay/lesbian community, I am abhored at the spreading of blatant unbalanced and inaccurate information.

I have spoken with these "other" bar owners. They are concerned about the gay community. They have offered help, but shouldn't one wonder about the reverse prejudice that is occuring toward them?

Sincerely, Ralph F. Navarro

Speaking Of: By Ron Ehemann

Last week I was involved in some presentations to the Chicago Police Department. A continuing effort by members of the Illinois Gay and Lesbian Task Force, the presentations were designed to make the gay community more visible to the police....to keep lines of commuication open.

I concluded my prepared speach and began fielding questions from the officers. One wanted to know if we were a minority or a politcal entity.

I thought about comparing gay people to blacks or Jews and then stopped short of saying we were a minority.

"We're both," I replied.

Originally transported to this country as slaves, at some point blacks ceased being a minority group struggling for recognition, and became a political entity to be reckoned with. Jews, women, virtually every minority sooner or later becomes political. And sooner or later that political entity commands its own destiny in the political arena. . . . it's called democracy.

Thirteen years ago this week, a handfull of homosexuals stood their ground against the New York Police Department and modern gay liberation was born. As our adolescence developed we flexed our muscles and learned how our new identity worked.

Like kids, we explored our limits and like teenagers we resisted those limitations imposed upon us. But adolescence doesn't last forever. One day you wake up to discover you've reached adulthood.

Adulthood doesn't really come overnight. It develops slowly. Responsibilities grow, independence and the intelligence to exercise it wisely emerges. And, maturity surfaces in your actions and direction.

Sometimes adulthood comes late in life. Other times it is forced upon you very early.

I know a young man who's been on his own since he was fifteen. He came out to his parents and they threw him out. That kid grew up fast. He learned to survive and the learned it very well. . . . he had to. It would have been easy for him to be content with survival, but survival alone doesn't produce growth. Through hard work and dedication, he has established himself in his employment. He built his own life around things he could count on. He developed independence, intelligence and maturity. Though it didn't come fast, he became an adult much sooner than most.

The gay community is like that young man. Forced out of the security of our homelike closet, we learned to survive. Much of our community also concerned itself with growth, with developing adulthood.

Last week, as I stood in front of that room filled with policemen, I came to realize that we'd made it. . . . we had reached adulthood.

I don't mean that there still aren't times for teenaged rebellion, but the alternative avenues for gain aren't restricted to rebellion anymore. No longer are we only relegated to protests outside the police station. now we are inside addressing the troops. No longer is our only voice in city hall or Madison strained by yelling, we are begining to walk directly through the doors.

Adulthood isn't the goal in and of itself. It's just the begining of a new stage in development. The older and wiser we get, the more control we will have. And, adulthood isn't always easy. It requires work and pain. It sometimes means working to develop those new avenues available to us, rather than holding on to the security of our older methods.

What I'm trying to say is perhaps we've passed that point where protests were our only choices. . . . perhaps our efforts to convince people that we are legitimate have become counterproductive.

This week marks the thirteenth year since we were forced out on our own. It is the perfect opportunity to open our eyes and realize how far we've come. It's time to accept our status as adults, put down our childish toys and accept the responsibilities we've been fighting to get.

One of the easiest ways to do this will be by rejecting the urge to rebel against the Nazi counter-rally. To exercise our rights to free speech and even peaceful protest against what the Nazis stand for. . . . but to refrain from the adolescent urge to disrupt and deny them their rights to do the same.

The harder thing we must do will take more time. It involves the realization that many of our organizations and methods must change. Those groups or people who insist upon teen-aged tactics need to be left behind. Old leadership needs to re-evaluate itself and new leadership must be recruited.

The choice seems to be between mere survival and mature growth.

"Eliot, I think you should go back to school."

"At my age?"

"Yes, most definitely, at your age."

"But I am 51, I've flunked out of college three times, I'm too old to go back to school."

"That was 30 years ago."

"Yes, but they still have my records. . ."

"On record... yes probably, but even in the academic world there is a statue of limitations—flunking out was not a criminal act, and your record is not a criminal record."

You don't know what it was like for gays in college in the 50s. They had no on campus organizations for us, the word was not even mentioned. I dated girls, then I would sneak to New York to play with the boys on the weekends. One spring vacation I went to Fire Island and did not come back to Villanova till my finals. My Geology teacher said I had flunked so many spot quizes being absent that I couldn't pass his course with a 100 on my final."

"But, Eliot, that was 30 years ago!" My father was head of the French Department at Villanova and my mother taught math and astronomy at the Shipley School for Girls in Bryn Mawr. They could not understand why, when I had scored 800s on my college boards, I couldn't seem to make it to class. It broke their hearts. But they never cared to know what was going on in my heart.

"My dad got me into Carlton after I flunked out of Villanova, then into Marquette after I flunked out of Carlton. At Marquette I would run to Chicago every Thursday night, and usually not get back to class till the next Tuesday."

"So you are still nourishing that guilt of your failure of 30 years ago?" "Yes."

"Time does heal all wounds. Why would you rather keep the failure you have—or had 30 years ago—than risk doing what you really want to do? Sure you had to find your gay self before you could settle down as a student—you are settled now, why can't you be a student?"

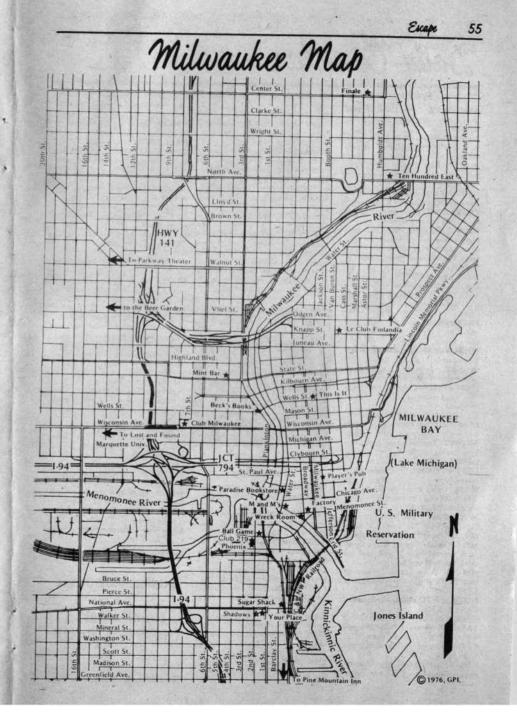

"I remember at Carlton I fell instantly in love with a Jewish student in my class named Harvey Stein. I followed Harvey everywhere, even when he went out on dates. I would make excuses just to go by his room with telephone messages. I played dumb and tried to get him to tutor me. I stole his gym sox out of his room, and took them back to my room. At night I would sniff them and beat off. That was as close as I ever got to Harvey, my Jewish Prince."

"O.K. I'm not arguing your past. But what about now, Eliot? You've got a lover, you don't sniff sox. You've got a job."

"Yeah, a janitor's job."

"But it's union, pays $7.80 an hour, plus medical and retirement. And you've got jan-

"But the guys I work with are so dull. They work, and they go home. They don't do anything creative with their lives."

"Their lives are none of your business. What about your life, Eliot?" "What are you doing that is creative?"

"If I had stayed in college I would have been a physicist. But at my age, you can't be a physicist, they are all young Asians in their twenties. At my age, what's left for me?"

"The world. Do you realize that most of us could live yet another fifty years past 45."

"How do you know?"

"I don't know for sure, but from what I've read in the science sections of the New York Times, in Omni and the New England Medical Journal, we—all of us who think the world is going to end tomorrow—are in for a great surprise. We could all live 30 or 40 years longer than we expect, and die with all that extra time. That's why a lot of us must think about reversing the process doing school after, not before "real" life."

"They will laugh at me if I go into physics now."

"Oh, to be a professional physicist, yes, but to learn the nature of things, no. Einstein wanted to be a carpenter or window washer so he would have the rest of his time to think about the cosmos. You are a janitor. You are free from the struggle for bread. You can afford to be a pure student."

"Will any school want me?"

"These days Eliot, if you can pay, you can play. Schools need tuition, and real students, people that have a real desire to learn and know things. You will be a pure

"Probably. But deep down most of your friends won't really care what you do. We always think about what our friends think. only later to discover they weren't really thinking about us in a caring way at all. Besides, Eliot, when you are 90 and still expanding your universe as a student, most of your nerd friends, won't be around and won't be thinking."

"So, you really think I should go back to school at my age."

"Yes."

Back again with another chapter in his sexy musical diary is Rick James' LP on Motown titled "Throwin' Down" the punkfunk king follows up his classic "Street Songs" LP by turning barbarian on the cover and unleashing a playful party beat that should keep James hot all summer, including the dance floor!

With "Dance Wit Me" blazing its way, the three other uptempo cuts include "Throw Down", "Hard to Get" and "69 Times" which co-stars Grace Slick and John McFee. Also included here is a nice ballad "Teardrops" that shows off James fine vocal talents.

Rick James makes rabble rousing sound seductive, and lovemaking sound like an act of revolution.

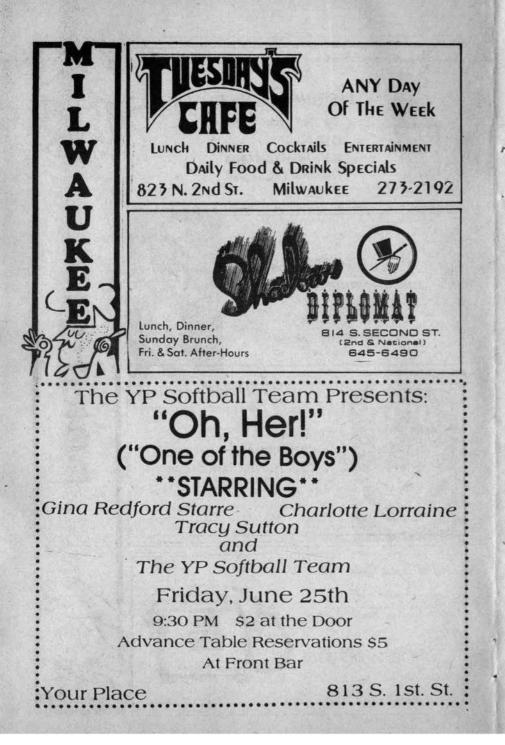

One of the bestselling international singles of 1979 was M/Scott's hit "Pop Muzik" however, past releases have failed to measure up. But due to the success of his hit, this quirky influence witnesses the other successes in recent years of synthesized British techno-pop hits by Gary Numan and The Human League, to name just two. M returns with their album "Famous Last Words" and a well balanced set mixing percolating party pieces like "Double Talk" and moody, almost somber cuts like "The Bridge".

Ranking among their best LPs, Nicholas Ashford and Valerie Simpson return to the music scene with their first LP for Capitol titled "Street Opera". One side of soaring love songs and a side of "Street Opera", a musical tribute to the dreams and realities of the working man. Reality turns downright danceable on their climbing "Street Corner", putting this duo back into chart action with an extra-fine effort marked by ultra-sharp arrangments and striking harmonies.

TAURUS (April 21-May 20)-You earthy types tend to hang on to old habits that just don't fit any more. The key could be in simply listening. You might hear some beautiful new music. When you do, grab a partner and dance!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)-What a flirt! And you just can't help it. Somebody special catches your eye, and what you say and how you say it could have a big effect on your life. Choose your words with care—someone's doing heavy listening.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)-If you're a runner, run more now. If you pump iron, add some weight to the bar. Put that extra energy into something harmless. There's tension in the air from someone who thinks he's in charge. Channel that hostility into something good.

LEO (July 23-August 22)-It's time to be the mediator, the negotiator, the diplomat. Otherrs come to you for help, and you're willing and able to give it. You've got the talent for seeing both sides of the story, and the energy to seek both out.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22)-Don't overdo it! You'll be tempted to be a glutton with food or sex, or whatever sounds good. Examine your compulsions, and be better to yourself by taking the middle road.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22)-Pay attention to the world of work and accomplishment. Fantasy may be alluring, but it's not the way to get where you want to be. You can realize an important goal if you stick with it.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21)-Have a good time! Be playful and fun-loving and even foolish. You're usual intensity just doesn't work now. Seek out friends to join you in this special time. Rock and roll!

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21)-Who am I? What is my purpose? What's it all about? It's a confusing time for you unless you're home life is settled. Be grateful for all the support you can get, and stay open to possibilities. Remember that answers are often found in the questions you ask.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19)-Feeling moody and restless? Feel like you've got to get away by yourself? Go ahead. And don't feel guilty about it, either. Everyone has these important needs. If you get away, don't be dragged down by thoughts of the past. Remember tomorrow.

AQUARIUS (January 20-Febuary 18)-You know how to give it, and you know how to take it. Good thing, too. There's plenty of give-and-take going on. Give that special person what he wants and take his very special response. Stay close.

PISCES (Febuary 19-March 20)-Look who's looking and feeling sexy! And not in a quiet way, either. Flaunting it can be so much fun, you find you're out of control. No harm. It's summer and you're hot. Nice. Very nice.

reflect the whole community, the only way to change that is to be there so it comes closer to doing so. If everyone clung to "older traditions," we wouldn't be where we are now—in a stronger position than ever. The theme of this year's parade is "Love, Pride, Rights," which should be everybody's thing.

And if you really can't risk showing your face, wear a mask. Wear a disguise that's so obviously a disguise that it drives home the point: "I can't risk being seen. I can't risk losing my family, friends, house, or job because I am gay." The shame in that situation is not yours but society's, and that's a statement you should make.

We urge every individual, every businessperson every organization, every community leader to work together and put forward their best efforts to make this year's parade the biggest, brightest, and best ever.

NABC Leaders Elected

At its Annual Meeting held on Saturday, May 22, 1982, the National Association of Business Councils chose new officers to guide the national organization of lesbian and gay business and professional people. The delegates of NABC's 18 affiliates from major metropolitan areas across the United States met at the Marequette Hotel, Minneapolis, Minnesota, hosted by the local NABC member, the Northland Business Association.

Elected to serve one year terms were the following: Arthur S. Lazere, CPA of San Francisco, California: President; Sarah Craig of Chicago, Illinois: President-Elect; Werner P. Kuhn, Esq. of Albany, New York: Vice President: Ralph F. Navarro of Milwaukee, Wisconsin: Secretary; Steven R. Desdier, E.A. of San Diego, California: Treasurer. Jean O'Leary of Los Angeles, California Automatically assumed the position of Past President on the NABC Executive Committee.

In addressing the Association's delegates, newly elected President Lazere said: "Since its founding two years ago, NABC has assumed a postion of strength in the nation's business community. A major goal of my administration will be to assure that the nation's business and political leaders recognize and affirmatively respond to the legitimate needs of gay men and women in business and the professions." Lazere, a co-founder of NABC, formerly served as president of San Francisco's Golden Gate Business Association. A CPA in private practice, Lazere was recently appointed by San Francisco Mayor Diane Feinstein to the City's Advisory Committee on Economic Development.

In accepting the position of President-Elect, Ms. Craig said: "As a Midwestern, lesbian business owner, I am committed to assist NABC in representing and serving all sectors of the broad-based and diverse lesbian and gay business and professional community. Specifically, I intend to use my background in media and communications to see that NABC effectively articulates the interests of lesbians in business and the professions across the country." Craig, President of Tangible Type & Graphics, Inc., co-hosts Horizons on Chicago's WFYR-FM, a radio program focusing on lesbian and gay issues. She previously served as editor of several publications: GayLife newspaper and All Together Journal.

All NABC elected officers are active members of local affiliates. Vice President Kuhn is Co-Chair of the Hudson-Mohawk Business & Professional Association, serving New York's Capital District. An attorney in private practice, Kuhn serves on numerous community Boards, including the Mental Health Association, the Voluntary Action Center and Remove Intoxicated Drivers-New York State.

Secretary Navarro serves as President of Milwaukee's Cream City Business Association. With a background in education and personnel counseling, Navarro currently works as a consultant in development and fund-raising. Desdier, NABC's new Treasurer, is former Treasurer of the Greater San Diego Business Association. A professional accountant, Desdier is owner and president of DESCO, an accounting, tax and insurance firm.

A major focus of the NABC Delegate Meeting was the refinement of the NABC sponsored group health insurance program. Offered through Los Angeles' National Business Insurance Agency, it offers high quality, low cost health insurance coverage to NABC individual and business members. Planning also was done for the Association's Second Annual Convention, scheduled for November 12 to 15, 1982, in Washington, D.C. The convention will feature meetings with Administration and Congressional leaders, as well as workshops on topics of concern to lesbian and gay business and professional people.

Speaking of Books By David Colbalt

Nathan Aldyne has finally done it. Creating a slick mystery/comedy with the gay characters being secondary to the plot. Instead of your usual $2.95 gay "novel" of a weak plot that relys on explicit sex, he has put the sex where it belongs and has given us an intriguing, hilarious, "gay" literature piece that everyone (including non-gays) can relate to.

By taking a wide variety of very interesting characters he creates a web of mystery and a host of predicaments that run so smooth and precisely that we almost hope that the murderer is never found.

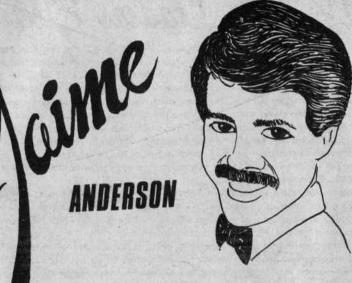

The main characters are Daniel and Clarrise, a sort of modern day Nick and Nora Charles. The setting is Provincetown, the heat of the summer has nearly arrived. Clarrise decides to move to P'town for the summer, to get away from her 9 to 5 drudgery in the city. With her "what-thehell-attidue she becomes one of the most comical yet sincere persons to come across on print in quite awhile. With Dan who is her best friend and confidant, they try to unravel the strings of strange homicidal coincidences that have been occuring in the gay sector.

Now we have a melange of relationships that complicate matters as each ones personal acquaintance with the murder victim is uncovered. Is it Clarrises' uncle Noah, and his lover the "White Prince" (named so because of his shocking white updo), or Axel the musclebound fantasy number of the book? Or maybe his jealous lover Scott, whose theatrical performances in bars and street corners would make Tallulah Bankhead look like a method actress. Or Terry Sullivan, the insecure overbearing closet queen from Boston? Are they all involved, or none of them?

As each chapter ends on a somewhat hilarious note, the who-done-it is done in classic Agatha Christie form with a comedic talent of an Inspector Clouseau inquisition.

26 Escape Medically Speaking By Harvey Thompson, M. D. "Hepatitis Happy Jidings"

And about time there was some good news about hepatitis. The new vaccine I reported on earlier is out, and there's news of relevance to the Gay community about it.

Most people with hepatitis-B are unaware they have the infection. Only 25% of patients with hepatitis-B turn yellow, have dark urine, or light stools. The other 75% are "subclinical" and have no overt physical signs of the infection. Thus, many people are completely unaware of ever having had the illness.

Nevertheless, after hepatitis-B infection, antibodies usually form and can be detected in the blood of the person for years, as proof of past infection. That person is usually immune, and will not contract the disease again. His blood can be used to separate out these protective protein particles for gamma globulin shots. Those shots can be given to recently infected people within two weeks of their exposure, at the beginning of the incubation period (usually about 7-8 weeks). This will either abort the liver infection completely, or at least lessen its severity.

However, that's not how the new vacine is made. Heptavax is manufactured from the actual hepatitis-B particle found in the blood of those already infected. Those particles are obtained from the 10% of hepatitis-B patients who go on to become chronic carriers of the virus. (That explains the ads you've been seeing in gay journals seeking donors.) The new vaccine alters the virus so that it cannot cause infection, but still stimulates antibody production. In other words, the vaccine fools the body into thinking it's infected, but without producing liver damage or inflammation.

Plasma donor centers are revving up for both hepatitis-B carriers with viral particles, or immune persons with antibodies from a prior infection they may not even be aware of.

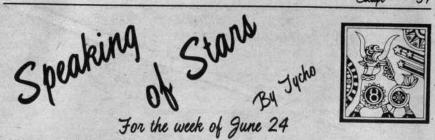

To obtain donors, the centers are offering free screening for the virus and hepatitis-B antigen. After you're screened, in a few weeks you will know if you are: 1) a carrier; 2) already immune, with no need of the vaccine; or 3) in need of the vaccination.

Dr. Sal Krugman, the grandfather of the hepatitis-B vaccine, brings up an important point in an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Why not just take the immunization series ($100 for the three shots), and avoid the expense of the ARIES (March 21-April 20)-You may have come out a long time ago, but there's still some part of you in the shadows. This is the week for getting out into the light, for showing yourself completely, for being totally you.

TAURUS (April 21-May 20)-OK, let's not go overboard with the big bull bit. Last week you were feeling good about yourself, but don't let that build into this week's arrogance. Tone it down. Don't paw the ground and snort so much.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)-Lucky is the team or group you're part of; this week you have a lot to give them. They'll appreciate your help, even if they find your ideas somewhat bizarre. Everyone's not as idealistic as you are.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)-Moon children are known for a love of the domestic, but a homebody can't always stay home. Itching to get out and around? Check out some new places and faces. Also, it's a good time for buying things that are enjoyable investments. LEO (July 23-August 22)-Think about things. Your intellect is strong. You can fathom the unfathomnable, if you put your mind to it. Meditate, cogitate, let thoughts flow, and write them down. Something important could come from this.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22)-You can take all that crazy energy you were buzzing with last week and apply it to something important, like realizing your hopes and dreams. You have to step on a few feet; step lightly, but step.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22)-Do whatever is necessary; you'll make the right decisions. Work has never seemed more important, and the whole area of work and career is up for examination. You may be tempted to take an extra job or add new duties to your present one.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21)-Ah, men. Maleness and masculinity are what you're thinking about these days. Talk about your ideas and concerns with those whose judgement you respect. Look for feedback. Join a men's group. Start one.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21)-You're thinking about men this week, too, but not in the abstract sense that Scorpios are. You feel pretty literal. Touching and feeling are what you're up for. Organize your own men's group and it won't be just for talking.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19)-To hell with compromise. This week you're standing on firm and proud ground, willing to fight for what you feel is right. This could bring a serious shakeup on the home front. But then, the best part of shaking up is making up. Get it out in to the open.

AQUARIUS (January 20-Febuary 18)-Life's simple pleasures are yours, especially those that combine work and fun. Making old things seem new is a good example. You could find yourself laughing at the strangest things!

PISCES (Febuary 19-March 20)-Don't let a passing fancy turn your world upside down. Since you're especially vulnerable and impressionable this week, don't blow things out of proportion. Take it day by day. Pay attention to what's most important to you.

Thanks to David Theiss for providing this information on the bowling tournament.

The GAMMA Rays, Milwaukee's only gay volleyball team, will be hosting an invitational volleyball tournament on Saturday, June 26th, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Teams from Chicago, Madison and Minneapolis are expected to join Milwaukee for this oneday event at UWM's Engelmann Hall Gymnasium. The gay community is cordially invited to attend a cookout on the M&M patio from 4 to 7 p.m., followed by an evening at SummerFest will cap the day's activities.

In addition to our own tournament, the Gamma Rays will represent Milwaukee in upcoming events in Madison (July 17, 18) and at the National Volleyball Association (N.V.A.) National Championship in Atlanta (October). Gay men and women are encouraged to come by the team's competitive practices on Monday's (6:45 to 8:45 p.m.) at U.W.M. throughout the summer. For those wishing to try something a little less strenuous, we offer "social" volleyball on Wednesday's (8:30 to 10 p.m.). Both activities take place at Engelmann Hall Gymnasium which is located on the west side of the U.W.M. campus near Maryland and across from Columbia Hospital.

For more information, please drop by one of the practices or contact the volleyball captain, Frank Reid at 263-0220.

from Page 26 screening? The cost of the test can run up to $45 for both viral and antibody testing, and you still may need the $100 shots on top of it.

A good point. It might be less expensive for example, in the case of hospital personnel, just to vaccinate everyone and avoid the screening expense completely. After all, most people, without evidence of infection, would be susceptable, and there is no harm in getting the shots without being screened. The vaccine is well tolerated in those who have prior immunity.

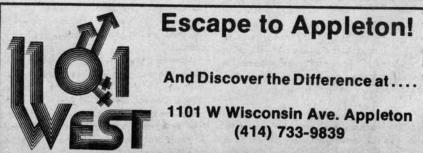

However, for sexually active gay males, who, in a recent national survey of 7,000 men had a 60% immune status, that would be a lot of wasted vaccine. A lot of wasted money, too. It would be cheaper to do the screening first; and, in fact, this was Dr. Krugman's recommendation.

For two days in March this year, experts gathered at the Center for Disease Control to make recommendations. Their preliminary report, subject to revision, is that all sexually active Gay men should be screened prior to planned vaccination. The interval between screening and vaccination should be as short as posible in order to make best use of the vaccine.

Pilot studies of HBV seropositivity runs to 76% in San Francisco, 65% in L.A., 59% in Chicago, 54% in Denver, and 49% in St. Louis. None of those men needed shots. You might not either. If you're sexually active, a screening could save you some money for shots you don't need.

Half way through the regular season, the Wreck Room Chaps are the only undefeated team in the Saturday Softball Beer League. The Chaps edged the Factory 11-10 in 8 innings to taske a two game lead Finale over the Factory in Division 1. In Division 2, the YP and Finale, both of whom had lost to the Chaps a week earlier, remained deadlocked for first place, with Dawn's Chickletts M&M Peanuts in hot pursuit of the lead. Jim Flora's pinch hit double in teh 8th inning drove home the winning run for the Chaps against the Factory. Don Smith's spectacular catch at 3rd base had saved the day for the Chaps in the 7th inning, as the Factory had the potential winning run on 3rd base with two out.

Gay Wire Service Starts

DENVER, CO., May 28 (GPA)—The first public demonstration of the new Computer Network Wire Service of the Gay Press Association (GPA) was held Memorial Day weekend during the GPA annual convention in Denver. Convention-goers were able to see gay-related news stories being sent across the country instantaneously.

News stories composed on the demonstration computer at the convention were transmitted electronically, over regular telephone lines, to the GPA host computer located in New York City. In turn, news stories of interest to gay people were received on the computer at the convention site from New York.

GPA President Joe DiSabato announced in opening remarks to the convention that the system was now ready to use. Any GPA member who can access the host computer electronically via the phone lines is authorized to do so for demonstration purposes. A member doesn't even need to own a computer. "If you can find a computer hobbiest in your area who has the necessary equipment and will allow you to use it, you can be a part of the network," explained DiSabato.

In a spirited final session of the convention, GPA members directed the leadership to address itself to a list of concerns which they expressed. The GPA board of directors promptly established three committees to set financial, technical and editorial policy. GPA Treasurer Morgan Pinney, who heads the Network Project, expects the network to be operational within two months.

Already, member organizations in Miami and San Francisco have made trial connections with the system. Member publications in Philadelphia and Chicago announced their intention to join. Columnists in New York, San Francisco, and Washington, D.C. are planning to be aboard.

The Gay Press Association is a membership organization of gay-oriented publications and journalists from across the United States and abroad. For the first time, they have the capability of sharing news in an up-to-the minute fashion. Leaders of other national gay organizations in attendance at the GPA convention expressed support for this major break-through in communications among gay people.

Currently gay news is published by hundreds of newspapers, magazines, and newsletters aimed at the gay community, but only local news is current. Other news comes from distant publications received through the mail, making it old news when received, and older still when reprinted. Consequently, many editors and readers alike give little attention to national and internation! news because it is so dated when they finally see it. Now, every gayoriented publication in the world can receive news as soon as it breaks.

"The system will depend upon participants giving news stories into the system, as well as taking stories from it," explained GPA Vice-President Mark Segal, publisher of Philadelphia's GAY NEWS. "This is a sharing concept," he said. "The bulk of the material in the memory of the computer will be that which participating members provide."

Attending the convention were representatives from papers in twenty American cities, including Atlanta, Baltimore, Chicago, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Houston, Indianapolis, Lawrence, Kansas, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Phoenix, Portland, St. Louis, San Francisco, Sante Fe, Seattle, and Washington, D.C.

Chicago's Windy City Athletic Association is sponsoring its first softball tournament to be held over the Fourth of July weekend.

Response has been good and many cities from across the U.S. that are members of ^a N.A.A.G.A., gay softballs' national organization.

The tournament will be limited to the first 12 teams to register for the tournament.

Games will begin on Saturday, July 3rd, from 9 a.m.-6 p.m. and resume on Sunday. The tourney will be double elimination, and will be played on four fields.

A hospitality room will be accessible on Friday, and arrangements have been made to pick up all out-of-town teams. Shuttle service to the fields will be available thru the weekend.

Chicago invites Wisconsin and extends a special invitation to Milwaukee (so we can return your incredible hospitality).

Join us in the Windy City for what we hope will be a fun-filled, competitive and enjoyable weekend for all.

Some final comments on the Wreck Room Classic Softball Tournament, which was held in Milwaukee over Memorial Day weekend. The highlight definitely was Sunday's crowd watching the final games. Estimates from 1,000 to 2,500 people watching were given. Thanks to some beautiful summer-like weather, the hills at Mitchell Park became alive with peoplesunning, drinking beer, picnicing, visiting, watching the games. Everyone doing their own thing. This indeed made the tournament a great success.

The opening ceremonies on Saturday afternoon also was a spectacular event. 45 minutes before the ceremonies were to begin, a light mist fell on the crowd. At 2:10, Wayne waved his magic wand, and presto-by 2:30, the sun was shining as the 22 teams marched onto the field with their banners, lead by the Silver Stars color auard. The ceremonies concluded with the playing of the Canadian and American National Anthems. No matter how many times that scene is repeated, it is still an impressive sight which brings tears to the eyes of many people.

The cheerleaders were once again in evidence. This year for the first time, Milwaukee got to see a group from Atlanta, the Armorettes. They, along with the Saloon Spirits, the Factory cheerleaders, and the Wreck Room Yellar's, kept the crowds well entertained throughout the tournament.

Finally, one must comment on the level of competition on the softball field. The teams are getting so much better, and have become so balanced. One only need look at the close scores of many of the games to see how competitive the teams have gotten. 9 teams entered the final round on Sunday, and although San Francisco's Pendulum Pirates seemed the class of the tournament, any of the other 8 had a definite chance to win the tournament. Milwaukee's YP team came within two runs of the Pirates on Friday, and except for some over aggressive base running, YP might have beaten them. San Francisco may never have made it to the top if they would have had to come through the losers bracket. You also had to be impressed with the gutty performance by the Gay 90's team from the Twin Cities, who played 9 games in two days, and 5 on Sunday. It was really inspiring to see them charge down the hill prior to their final game.

Once again, thanks to Wayne, the committee, the participating teams, and the entire Milwaukee gay community for making the Wreck Room Classic the #1 softball tournament in the country. It is truly a CLASSIC.
