AIDS Commission Report Suggests Major Policy Changes

Washington, D.C. [The Weekly News]- New federal laws to protect persons with AIDS or HIV infection from discrimination headed the list of suggestions in the 269 page draft final report prepared by the Chairman of the Presidential AIDS Commission, and released early this month.

"Discrimination is the most significant obstacle to progress," said Retired Navy Admiral James Watkins, chairman of the 13 member commission.

Watkins made anti-discrimination the centerpiece of his sweeping list of 579 recommendations based on 43 days of commission hearings in which more than 500 witnesses testified.

If the government takes the commission's advice, there will be a massive expansion of drug treatment facilities costing $2.9 billion to $3.1 billion annually by 1990.

The federal government would pay about $2 billion a year, Watkins said; state and local governments would pay about $1 billion.

The final report of the full commission was due on the President's desk on June 24. Watkins said that there will be controversy among the members of the commission over his stand on discrimination, but predicted that most members would support his report. His prediction proved correct, when as In Step was going to press, a majority of the commission members voted to accept the anti-discrimination recommendations. The other recommendations of the report were approved without difficulty.

Gay rights groups and medical organizations, which lambasted the commission last year as a political pacifier, praised Watkins' report.

"We think it's an excellent report overall and that the report's recommendations are well-reasoned and balanced," said Urvashi Vaid, National Gay and Lesbian Task Force Public Information Director. "They do not call for mandatory testing, and we're very pleased" about that.

Dr. Robin Weiss, director of AIDS activities at the Institute of Medicine, a part of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington agreed.

"We are very impressed by Admiral Watkins' ability to turn around the commission from a shambles to an effective leadership body," Weiss said.

Watkins said the key to halting the AIDS epidemic was to encourage people to seek voluntary testing for HIV antibodies. To encourage testing, Watkins said that strict confidentiality rules should be put in place to protect test results.

Other major recommendations call for creating a health curriculum in schools by 1990 to discuss such issues as AIDS, drugs and teen-age pregnancy; and requiring sex offenders to undergo HIV antibody tests so their victims can be informed if they have been exposed to the disease.

The White House refused to offer any comment on the chairman's recommendations until the commission's final report is received. In the past, the Reagan administration has said that any anti-discrimination laws should be enacted at the state level.

Army Wins A Rehearing On Gays

San Francisco [Chi. Tribune]- A federal appeals court agreed June 9 to reconsider its landmark ruling that struck down the Army's ban on homosexual soldiers.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals granted the Regan administration's request to refer the case to an 11-member panel for a hearing.

The action nullifies the Feb. 10 ruling in which a three-judge panel of the court ruled 2-1 that 1981 Army regulations providing for discharge on grounds of homosexual orientation were unconstitutional.

In the process, the court said homosexuals, as victims of historic mistreatment, were entitled to the same constitutional protection against government discrimination as racial minorities. No other appellate court had ever reached that conclusion.

The 25-judge appeals court did not state a reason for referring the case to the 11-member panel or give details of its vote. No date was set for a hearing.

The armed services' right to base discharges on 'homosexual' conduct has been upheld by the courts. But the appeals court, in a case involving a discharged soldier from the Seattle area, said the Army's regulations went further into the realm of personal privacy by applying to sexual orientation, regardless of conduct.

The government contended the ruling failed to defer to the Army's judgement in matters of discipline and morale and also was inconsistent with the Supreme Court's 1986 ruling upholding a Georgia law against sodomy.

"The initial decision was cause for celebration," said Leonard Graff, legal director of National Gay Rights Advocates in San Francisco. "The struggle for equal rights for lesbians and gay men is a long-term struggle. Realistically, we have to expect some setbacks. That doesn't mean we give up."

The case involves Perry Watkins, 39, who enlisted in the Army in 1967 at age 19 and said he had homosexual tendencies. His lawyer James Lobsenz, said he was disappointed but not surprised by the decision, and expects the case to wind up in the Supreme Court if he wins the next round.

U.S. Commission on Civil Rights Blasted

[NGLTF]- At a contentious opening session on May 16 to three-days of hearings on civil rights issues raised by the AIDS health crisis, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights was sharply criticized by the National Gay & Lesbian Task Force (NGLTF), ACT UP (AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power), and OUT (Oppression Under Target, a D.C. gay/lesbian action group). The Commission's hearing have drawn fire from gay rights and AIDS activists for being biased, wasteful and irrelevant to the very real discrimination faced by people with AIDS and HIV-related conditions.

In testimony delivered at the opening panel to the U.S. Commission hearings, NGLTF Director Jeffrey Levi criticized the Commission's opposition to gay and lesbian rights issues and challenged the premise of the hearings themselves.

Levi noted the concurrence between the public health and gay/lesbian community on issues such as the need for anti-discrimination protections for HIV positive people and people with AIDS.

Seventy protestors from ACT UP, OUT and NGLTF held a loud lunchtime demonstration in front of the federal building where the hearings were held. As the afternoon session began, protestors entered the hearing room and sat silently wearing colorful clown masks while the Commission heard testimony. When outrageous statements were made by witnesses, protestors began to shout out questions and to challenge the Commission. The disruption, which lasted over an hour ended with protestors leaving the hearing en masse chanting "Shame".

AIDS Quilt in Chicago; Madison Adds Names

By Jeff Kirsch
for SPEAK ITS NAME

Madison- When the Names Project/National AIDS Quilt is displayed at Navy Pier in Chicago, July 9-11, it will contain the names of at least two Madisonians.

Volunteers from Rod's and the Washington Hotel as well as others began construction May 31 of 3'x6' quilt panels for Larry Baumann, Doug Wells and Eddie Dugan. All three died of AIDS in 1987.

Baumann was a bartender at Rod's and after his diagnosis spoke publicly to various groups about AIDS. Wells has been a DJ at the Back East. Dugan was owner of Dugan's Bistro in Chicago and had many friends in Madison.

"We couldn't be too serious. There was a sense of humor involved," said Ben Doran, one of the volunteers who worked on the quilt. "We tried to get as close to Larry and the others as we could."

While some of the quilt panels feature only a starkly etched name, others include photos and many boast personal memorabilia, ranging from leather, handkerchiefs and jockstraps to jewelry, high heels and teddy bears. More than just names, many panels tell the story of lives.

The quilt was the brainchild of Cleve Jones, a San Francisco gay activist with Harvey Milk. Jones later worked as a legislative aide before founding the San Francisco AIDS Foundation. He began the project in October, 1986 as a memorial to the lives of AIDS victims.

First publicly displayed at the National March on Washington for Gay and Lesbian Rights in October, 1987, the quilt then contained some 1,900 panels and occupied a site the size of two football fields. For many who attended, it constituted the most moving event of the weekend.

The quilt is now on a nationwide tour and has recently been seen in Cleveland and St. Louis. Before its exhibit in Chicago, it will be in Detroit. From Chicago it will move to Minneapolis later that week. The quilt will then go to Seattle and Portland, completing a twenty-city tour that began in April in San Francisco, where an estimated 100,000 people viewed it.

As the quilt grows with the addition of panels made at quilting bees around the country, it now approaches four football fields in size and has over 3,200 rectangles. The number represents only a fraction of those who have died of AIDS-related complications.

Hours for viewing the quilt at its Chicago display are Saturday, July 9, 3:00 to 8:00 p.m.; Sunday, July 10, 7:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.; and Monday, July 11, 7:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. The Navy Pier is located along the waterfront at the east end of Grand Avenue.

The exhibition is free and open to the public, although donations are accepted. Numerous benefits have been held around the country to help offset the expenses of the quilt's transportation and assembly.

Madison Bus Trip

The Madison's AIDS Support Network has chartered a bus to view the quilt on Saturday, July 9. Reservations must be made by June 25. Cost of round-trip bus fare is $15. For more information and specific departure times, call MASN at (608) 255-1711.

For those unable to see the quilt or those who have, a recent book has been published. The Quilt, Stories from the NAMES Project is available from Pocket Books for $22.95.

The Names Project is also soliciting tax-deductible gifts to keep the quilt moving and growing until it finds a permanent home. Contributions may be sent to The Names Project, #51808, Box 60000, San Francisco, CA 94160-1808.

AIDS Activists Storm The Country

[Equal Times]- AIDS activists in Massachusetts, California, New York, New Jersey, and Chicago recently completed a spring offensive with mass demonstrations, sit-ins, "die-ins," and arrests.

In Boston, about 50 activists began nine days of protests with a rally at Dukakis campaign headquarters challenging the candidate about inadequate attention given to AIDS issues. Two days later, the demonstrators staged a "sleep-in" at the governor's home, where they set up a mock hospital to dramatize the lack of care facilities for PWA's in Massachusetts.

At the same time, the New York and New Jersey chapters of ACT UP (AIDS coalition to Unleash Power) jointly demonstrated on April 30 at University Hospital in Newark to demand that clinical trials of promising experimental drugs be made available to people with AIDS in New Jersey.

In California, thousands of gay men, lesbians and their supporters from around the state gathered in Sacramento to protest the inadequate funding for AIDS education, to oppose a quarantine initiative, and to hear presidential candidate Jesse Jackson. Estimates ranged from 5,000 to 20,000 people.

In addition to the Sacramento march, demonstrators held a "die-in," where the names of several thousand AIDS dead were read aloud over three microphones while hundreds of people fell to the ground and waited to have their bodies outlined in yellow and white chalk.

A sit-in took place the following day in the governor's office, where demonstrators were arrested and charged with disrupting an office building and refusing to disperse.

Finally, eight activists were arrested in Chicago as a result of a 90-minute protest by members of C-Far, or Chicago for AIDS Rights. As part of the protest, C-Far members released helium-filled condoms into the air and changed, "Condoms, condoms, not condemnation; we want gay liberation."

Only Undetected PWAs May Cross Border

Vancouver, B.C. [Windy City Times]- While the border between the U.S. and Canada is officially closed to Persons With AIDS, anyone with the disease may be able to cross if border and immigration officials are unaware of the condition.

The Canada Press reports that immigration officials from both countries agree that having AIDS is sufficient reason to exclude persons from crossing the border either as visitors or immigrants.

However, if a person shows no obvious signs of the disease or keeps mum on the subject, that person can cross undetected.

Robert Greenslade of the Canadian Department of Immigration said it is his country's policy to bar persons with serious diseases, but that the large volume of crossings makes it impossible to question every visitor's medical status.

A Calgary man recently was turned back while trying to enter the U.S. because he told a U.S. border official he was on his way to San Francisco to receive treatment for AIDS.

Border officials only have to suspect a person has a serious disease to invoke the no entry rule, the report said.

Reagan Panel Nixes Adoptions by Gays

Washington, D.C.- [Windy City Times]- Lesbians and gay men are not recommended as adoptive parents, a 13-member panel appointed by President Reagan decided recently.

The President appointed the panel last August to study adoption programs. In its 54-page report only one sentence was devoted to gays and lesbians: "The task force does not support adoption by homosexuals."

Mary Shelia Gall, head of the panel and counselor to the Office of Personnel Management, told a press conference, "We feel that the American public is not ready to give, and we are not ready to give support for homosexual adoption."

Lawyers Fight Over Witness for State Man

Los Angeles, Calif. [Journal]- A furious legal dispute in the murder trial of a former Wisconsin man delayed testimony last week by a man the defense says may be the killer of a teenage male prostitute.

The prospective witness, Peter Krizek, 29, has been tried four times in a double homicide involving chain saw dismemberments. Krizek's lawyer, Charles Mathews, has threatened to have him invoke Fifth Amendment protection against testifying in the case of Max Bernard Franc, a former Fresno State University professor.

The prosecutor, Deputy Dist. Atty. Sterling Norris, proposed having Krizek testify after two witnesses identified his picture as resembling a man Franc has called Terry Adams.

Franc has said that Adams, who has not been found, murdered 18-year-old Tracy Nute, cut up his body with a chain saw and scattered the parts across 200 miles of California.

Norris says Franc is the killer and contends that Adams does not exist.

Norris sought to dismiss any suspicions about Krizek by having him testify that he was the person in the identification picture, that he was not Adams and that he didn't kill Nute.

But Franc's lawyer, Deputy Public Defender Mark Kaiserman, said he wanted to cross-examine Krizek about the similarities between the Nute slayings and the slayings of two men in which Krizek was charged.

Krizek, a carpenter, was 22 when he was charged in the July 1980 murders of a gay couple.

"We will present evidence to show that Peter Krizek might have been Terry Adams," Kaiserman said. "We think we can establish enough evidence for the jury to have a reasonable doubt" about Franc's guilt.

Kaiserman says there are numerous similarities between the double slaying and the killing of Nute, a homeless runaway from Kansas City, Mo.

Franc, 58, a native of De Pere, Wis. maintained an apartment in West Hollywood, where the killing occurred. He has admitted renting the chain saw used to dismember Nute, but says he rented it for Terry Adams.

Harvey Milk Mural Catches 'Free Spirit'

San Francisco [Windy City Times]- The free spirit and sardonic humor of Harvey Milk is captured in a two-thousand-square-foot mural that beams down on visitors to the Harvey Milk Center for Recreation Arts in San Francisco's Duboce Park.

The memorial to San Francisco's first openly gay supervisor was unveiled on what would have been Mr. Milk's 58th birthday.

Ten years ago, in 1978, Milk took office and in November of that year he was murdered in his City Hall office by former fellow supervisor Dan White.

The mural was designed and painted by Johanna Poethig, a former Chicagoan who studied at the American Academy of Art before moving to California in 1975. "I wanted to reflect in the mural the joyousness that he was openly gay and he won," Ms. Poethig said, "the happiness of that and the free spirit of his personality."

The mural, on the outside of the arts center, depicts Mr. Milk astride the shoulders of a clown, amid the petals of a giant dahlia. The mural also includes Ms. Poethig beside Rick Terry, who originated the idea of the mural, both holding candles as did 40,000 San Franciscans on the night Mr. Milk died. Mr. Terry was to have helped with the mural, but was stricken with AIDS.

Baltimore Gets New Gay Rights Law

Baltimore, Md.- Despite opposition from the Roman Catholic archbishop and a group of Orthodox rabbis, the Baltimore City Council recently passed a gay rights bill by a 12-7 vote.

The Council members who voted against the measure were all Catholic men representing heavily ethnic sections of the city,

When running stories on the Chicago Gay Pride Parade we gave the incorrect P.O. Box, it should be 14131. If you sent registration information to them at that box number, and it was returned, you may want to call them at (312) 428-4843.

If you did not pre-register, you can do so the day of the parade. Go to the staging area at Grace and Halsted and look for the Chicago Pride Committee van, it will be first in the line-up.

MASN News

The Madison AIDS Support Network [MASN] is moving. Beginning July 1 their office will be located at 23 N. Pinckney in Madison. The reason for the move was a need for more space. The group is in need of volunteers who can help them move to their new locations. If you can donate your time contact them at (608) 255-1711.

MASN welcomed two new staff members- Tim O'Brien, the new volunteer coordinator, and Will Handy, the new case manager. Both have been involved with MASN in the past. With their combined experience it is hoped they will enhance the quality of service provided by MASN.

MASN is still looking for volunteers who are willing to be identified with the group, and will to go into the bars to answer questions, distribute brochures and condoms. MASN will be holding a training session for those interested in doing this on Tuesday, June 28, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Call for more details.

Gay Community Forum

[MAP]- The Milwaukee AIDS Project is sponsoring an educational forum focusing on the issues of AIDS in the Gay and Lesbian communities. The Forum will be held on Friday, June 24, 1988 at the War Memorial Building at 750 N. Lincoln Memorial Drive. Admission is free.

MAP has been fortunate enough to secure the services of Mr. Bill Sweeney, a representative of New York City's Gay Men's Health Crisis. He will share with the audience how New York's gay community has dealt with the issues and continues to deal with epidemic proportions of AIDS in New York City.

Mr. Sweeney comes to us from a city where the incidence of AIDS is far greater than that of Milwaukee. Currently, there have been over 10,000 reported cases of AIDS in New York City. We realize that these figures dwarf Wisconsin's statistics (June figures indicate a total of 309 reported cases of AIDS in Wisconsin), but the sharing of experiences between our communities will be beneficial for all.

Also featured at the forum will be Mr. Marc Hauptert, President of the AIDS Resource Center of WI, Inc. and Mr. Tom Martin, a prominent Milwaukee attorney. As members of the community at large, Messrs. Hauptert and Martin will bring their thoughts and ideas on the need for continuing community education and involvement.

Following the forum will be a question and answer period for Mr. Sweeney, so bring your questions and concerns. A small reception featuring refreshments will end the evening. Members of the newly formed Gay and Lesbian Community Education Council will be in attendance and will be happy to speak with you regarding the Council and its future plans.

Your input and support at this event will provide an invaluable resource for MAP and the Council concerning future plans and events. Please join us in the fight against AIDS by attending this Gay Community Education Forum. Maybe together we can begin to make a difference. Thank you for your support.

For more information call 273-AIDS.

AIDS 'Safety' May Apply to Beauty Shops

[Milw. Journal]- Reacting to concern over transmission of the AIDS virus or hepatitis, the state's Cosmetology Examining Board will consider more stringent sanitation rules to protect cosmetologists and customers from exposure to infectious diseases.

The rules would require stricter procedures for sterilization of equipment, procedures for treatment of customers who are accidentally injured during treatment, and tighter anti-infection techniques. The rules would pertain to beauticians, cosmetologists and those who perform electrolysis, a process used to remove body hair.

"I don't want the public to be scared," said Marlene Cummings, secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Regulation and Licensing. "We just want to do a good job regulating and make sure the public is safe."

The rules, first suggested in February 1987, will be presented in final form when the nine-member cosmetology board meets June 27 in Madison.

New AIDS Virus Strains Found

Washington [Chi. Tribune]- A California research team has isolated from an African blood sample a strain of virus that can cause a fatal AIDS-like disease by infecting, but not killing, cells in the human body.

California at San Francisco team that made the discovery, said June 9th that the newly isolated strain may be an important tool in the development of an effective drug against the AIDS virus.

A University of Alabama-Birmingham team isolated still another new strain from the family that causes AIDS-like disease in Africa. George Shaw, leader of that team, said it appears to be less virulent than virus strains identified earlier.

Both studies of the new virus strains were reported in the journal Science.

The new strains found by the researchers are both strains of human immunodeficiency virus two, or HIV-2. This virus is a sub-type of the HIV-1 that is blamed for the AIDS epidemic in the United States.

HIV-1 and HIV-2 have been found in AIDS patients in Africa, but only one patient has been found in the United States to be infected with HIV-2. That patient, who died in this country, is believed to have been infected in Africa.

Is Catapano's Vaccine the Answer?

[P.A.N.]- In a major AIDS story, the New York Native reported May 23rd that a Long Island researcher is having extraordinary success treating persons with AIDS. Using typhoid vaccine in carefully measured amounts, inventor Salvatore J. Catapano and his associates are reporting dramatic remissions in AIDS condition in some 200 patients since treatment began in October, 1986. When typhoid vaccine, a proven immune enhancer, "reaches the lymphatic system, its unusual surface causes it to stimulate lymphocytes" which then produce lymphokines which in turn activate macrophages to go after foreign agents in the body.

Following years of private research, Mr. Catapano was granted a patent for this protocol last December (#4,711,876). The patent was approved in just one year, and had been reviewed by four medical examiners. AZT and Thymopentin are the only other patented treatments for AIDS,

Women, AIDS: Is Death Rate Low?

[USA Today]- The number of women dying from AIDS may be grossly underestimated because of the way public health officials count cases, says a report out last week in Ms. magazine.

Chris Norwood, head of National Women's Health Network AIDS committee, claims:

- Overall death rates of women 15-45 have jumped dramatically since 1981.
- The rise is largely due to AIDS-related diseases — pneumonia, tuberculosis, kidney diseases, parasitic infections.
- Since deaths from these diseases alone aren't recorded as AIDS deaths, even in HIV-injected patients, public health officials fail to recognize how many women are infected.

"Denial of the extent of the epidemic begins with the failure to count cases," says Norwood, author of Advice for Life, A Woman's Guide to AIDS Risks and Preventions.

The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta count only cases that meet a list of criteria based on symptoms found primarily in gay men.

Gynecologic symptoms such as severe pelvic inflammatory disease — which may be the earliest sign of AIDS in women — aren't included in the CDC's definition. And once women are infected, they may die sooner than men, says Norwood, who examined mortality data from four states and the District of Columbia.

Mail Order AIDS/ARC Medications

[Mt. Pleasant, SC]- An AIDS/ARC medication mail order program is now available to anyone in the United States with a valid physician's prescription. Kim Richardson, R.Ph., Vice President of Family Pharmaceuticals, announced the expansion as the result of requests from physicians and people who enrolled during the first six months of the program.

"After discussions with people with AIDS and many of the individuals who work with people with AIDS, it was apparent that not only was a price a problem, so were confidentiality and availability. We designed our program around these three factors." Richardson added, "We are pleased to be able to expand the program to include all medications commonly used for treatment of AIDS and ARC related problems."

"Our prices are among the lowest in the country: Retrovir- $169.75/100; Pentamidine-$114/vial; Pyrimethamine- $19/100; Cleocin-$83/100; Bactrim DS-$56/100

(generic- $14/100); Lomotil-$25/100 (generic-$4/100). Though the prices charged by the manufacturer may go up or down, Family is committed to keeping its prices as low as possible."

"Confidentiality is assured because we never reveal the names of any of our patients and all orders are shipped in unmarked packages. There is not even a hint on the outside as to the contents of the packages."

"Once enrolled, all you have to do is send in your prescription and payment. (Cashiers check, money order, Mastercard or Visa) In about a week, your medications will arrive by UPS. The invoice enclosed with the medication can be used for insurance reimbursement. Refills are obtained by simply calling our toll free number."

Enrollment consists of picking up the phone and dialing 1-800-922-3444. It's a free call. There are no enrollment fees, shipping costs, handling charges or sales tax. The cost of the medication is all one pays. For more information call or write: FPA, 309 Mill Street, Mt. Pleasant, SC 29464.

"THE MODERNS"

A marvelous film which examines both art and life, beautifully I might add, was recently presented at the Oriental. The film is entitled, "The Moderns." If I'd been able to choose the era of my own birth in recent time, I'd have chosen to be among the expatriots in Paris during the 20's. You'd then have found me numbered with the likes of Hemingway, Stein, and Fitzgerald and others. So, if like me, you like Paris and art, you'd definitely like "The Moderns."

The film examines this transplanted group in Paris and their interrelationships, thoughts, and perspectives through their dealings with an aspiring artist who unfortunately must earn his keep as a cartoonist for an American paper.

An exceptional screenplay gives one the actual "feel" of the writing of this period. The story is told via the right language and character found in the writing of that time. The dialogue could have easily been found in any one of the novels of the period. In fact, when Hemingway speaks, you can easily believe that it IS him speaking. Is this not the object of good drama—that fiction does believably become reality? Much is said and revealed here by what is not said, another important quality of literature of that time.

Jon Bradshaw, the co-author of the piece, has the film dedicated to his memory. Would that such a fine piece of art be one's tribute and legacy.

Interestingly, this examination is both romantic and realistic at the same time. Thus, the views are two: a romantic view of the period as well as a realistic comment upon it as well. A similar example in presentation was the experience of "Cabaret" which gave the same sort of feel to pre-World War II Germany and the subsequent rise of Hitler. Both perspectives were contained there also.

This group in Paris, the lost generation, is in fact lost. They have left the U.S. and they clearly know what they're not but are not sure exactly what they are. Thus, we have another reason for the quest to Paris—to find the answer. This bittersweet examination then packs a double punch in being romantic and realistic. The use of color in the film, mixed with brown tone and black and white also clearly underscores this thrust. A most interesting moment of introspection finds one character remarking, "There are not problems—only opportunities."

The casting is right on target. Keith Carradine, as the cartoonist, is the main character who is at the center of the action and through whom we meet the others. His character here is much like that of Cliff Bradshaw of "Cabaret" who narrates that tale. Carradine is strong and credible and works very well with Linda Fiorentio, as a woman who lusts for any and all life experience to try to give her, her fill. Her husband, John Lone, as a crazed businessman trying to "buy" his way into Paris cafe society is convincing. Geraldine Chaplin appears as a slightly batty society femme fatale and Genevieve Bujold is an interesting gallery owner. Lastly, Wallace Shawn's newspaperman is amusing and his attempt at drag is good fun!

The film beautifully shows how art can in fact replicate life. Says another leading character, "Art is only impression. Art is an infection. Some people get it. Some people don't. Art is only a rumor."

I urge you strongly to see this one. It is one of the finest films to have been made in years. It is beyond question a fine piece of art!

horoscope

by R.D. Thompson

ARIES: March 22 to April 21

With sudden surprise, here's your chance to finally tell someone close to you exactly how you feel. Use the gentle approach, and save the caveman stuff for later. Wine, song, and maybe flowers will get you farther in the long run.

TAURUS: April 22 to May 21

There may be cause for concern where investments are shared with a partner, and diplomacy is something you're going to have to brush up on. Your dreams can come true if you follow them through.

GEMINI: May 22 to June 21

This is a time when your actions speak louder than words, so beware of social occasions where you might be a little strong. On the other hand, if you were to use this added vitality at work, the financial rewards will be beneficial.

CANCER: June 22 to July 21

All work and no play is catching up to you again, and it may be time to take a break and let those under you spread their wings a little. Keep your lip zipped for telling any secrets is sure to backfire right now.

LEO: July 24 to August 23

You should be able to learn a lot through interaction with others during these two weeks. Tried and true methods seem to be the way to conduct matters where speculation is concerned so beware of whims.

VIRGO: Aug. 23 to September 23

Home, career, and lovers are leaving you very little time for yourself these days, so be sure and schedule time every day just for you. A health, beauty, or fitness program may be just the thing to balance all this out.

LIBRA: September 24 to October 22

Redecorating ideas could prove to be more costly than you had planned on and the results may fall short of your expectations. Professional help should help round out these corners. Spring cleaning done yet?

SCORPIO: October 23 to November 22

Listen to partners as they might just have that money saving idea that you've been looking for. A change in appearance should be all that's needed, though it may set you back a step or two, and move with caution for this is an unexplored road you'll be traveling.

SAGITTARIUS: November 23 to December 22

By concentrating on matters of your career during this time, you should be able to balance out all the difficulties in the other areas in your life. Also, a good time to come forward and admit that you may have cried wolf one too many times.

CAPRICORN: December 23 to January 20

Get your head out of the clouds, your feet back on the ground, and don't even think that the chickens are ready to hatch. Those things you thought you had handled are about to smack you in the face again. Oh yes, "They're Back!"

AQUARIUS: January 21 to February 19

It's a good thing everything at home is going smoothly for the changes in your career are going to be about all you can handle. Do everything you can to keep them positive and for the good of all concerned. "Luke... use the Force!"

PISCES: February 20 to March 21

Ding dong the witch is dead, but the boss is still here, is he after your head? Better have those ideas perfected and every angle covered or he just may have it. Don't let a setback or two get you down. You know it will work.

Hasn't the weather been incredible? Springs not over yet and it already feels like 'dog days' weather. Let's pretend the last two weeks are a pool & I'll dive right in...

Back on June 3rd, Our Place held their first Mr. & Miss Contest. The New Mr. Our Place is Tim Marshall (former Mr. Racine), and 1st R.U. was 'Leather' Tim from Milwaukee. The newly crowned Miss is Brittany Morgan from Milwaukee, and 1st R.U. is Racine's Shana Chere. Congrats to all of you.

Grand Avenue Pub celebrated its Fifth Anniversary on the 4th with their usual grand buffet & door prize raffles. I confirmed the rumor circulating about the bar. It is closing — but not until July 27th. The restaurant will cease operations June 30th, but the bar remains open until July 27th. And — Henry is not moving back home to the farm. He is moving out of town, though, so be sure to stop in & bid your good-byes within the next month.

Shaft 219 was packed when Chicago's Rodeo Riders biked to Milwaukee to join the Oberons for a special guest club night. When you think of all the bovines it took to provide all that leather... By the way, The Oberons talent show comes up this weekend.

Jet's Place celebrated its 2nd Anniversary with a big party on June 5th. Jet & Bob & Bob grilled the meat & the free beer flowed all afternoon. It's nice after all the changes that bar has been through that Jet & her staff have made a go of it. Congratulations gang!

Grant Dixon & his Victims of Desire male dance troupe, which performed in Madison twice previously, got the word out about themselves and were booked this time around at Dance Dance Dance, again at Rod's (on the patio this time) and at Green Bay's Napalese Lounge. They brought in some new faces (and bodies, of course) for this tour & captured more than a few hearts (and Libidos) in those cities.

The Holiday Invitational Tournament's (HIT) 2nd annual fundraising celebrity Pie Toss at Your Place was certainly a creamy mess. The big bid of the night was $150 to 'pie' Rona from M&M. All total $1,288 was raised for HIT's 10th annual event this Thanksgiving.

R-Bar in Wausau got 'SEXY' when Ebony de Angelo from Minneapolis & her friends performed at the bar June 12th. The show pulled in a big appreciative, fun crowd.

The June 12th Holly & Company Show at La Cage was a special one for star Holly Brown. Miss Brown celebrated her 25th year in show business that night (all 25 years with tits?... I wonder). Anyway, every staff member handed her bouquets of red roses — 25 dozen, to be exact.

That bar's weekly 'Claim to Fame' is bringing in more & more live acts. Last week's show had 5 contestants, and four sang live. (Look for a rising star with the name 'Parker' on it.

1101 West in Appleton closed June 2nd. Many good memories for lots of people went with it...

Al Thomas, who purchased DK's in December from former owner Dottie, has made a business decision to change to a men's bar. He re-evaluated the direction of the bar after six months of business & decided it wasn't economically feasible to keep a women's orientation. He's made some interior changes, and changed the name to the Triangle.

Welcome back to some advertisers who haven't appeared in these pages for some time: Who's, Green Bay, & Bulldog Road, Chicago. Bulldog Road will appear on a regular basis now, but who knows about Who's. (Michael — it's up to you).

Don't forget to check out the calendar, it's going to be a busy season.

See you at the Chicago Parade... We'll be in the van passing out magazines.

according to the Philadelphia Gay News. Catholic Archbishop William Borders, who had earlier taken a stance of neutrality, announced opposition to the bill shortly before the vote. All black and women members of the Council voted for the measure.

Supporters succeeded in stopping last-minute amendments that would have excluded teachers, food handlers, and children under 18 from the bill.

Gay and lesbian activists observed that behind-the-scenes lobbying by Baltimore Mayor Kurt Schmoke and City Council President Mary Pat Clarke were instrumental in getting the bill passed. Mayor Schmoke's support contrasts the stance taken by his predecessor William Schaefer, now governor of Maryland. Gov. Schaefer took no official stand on gay rights, but was perceived to be opposed to it privately.

Contacting Program Raises Questions

Minneapolis, Minn. [Equal Times]- Efforts in tracing exposed partners of HIV-infected persons, a program that prompted widespread controversy two years ago, have been stepped up in the past six months by state health officials who say workers are getting increased cooperation and acceptance.

Meanwhile, critics say some individuals are being harassed by health department workers who have made repeated phone calls to workplaces urging individuals to be tested.

The original Partner Outreach program which focused on self notification of exposed sexual partners, was discontinued about six months ago and a new program was initiated. Four health department staff members are working on HIV contact notification now and two more will start in July.

Partner Outreach, which was handled by psychologist John Gonsiorek under a contract with the state, was designed to assist newly found HIV-infected persons contact their previous partners themselves.

Some critics say the state discontinued the program because it was failing to produce enough names.

Mike Moen, director of disease prevention at the health department, said the new program is a "hybrid" of Partner Outreach. State workers will either contact identified partners or will assist the individual, Moen said.

He said many individuals want to have partners notified of possible exposure to the AIDS-causing HIV but prefer to remain unidentified. The state program allows that, he said.

Moen said the program focuses first on assuring that a newly found HIV-positive person has had appropriate counseling. Workers ask about information provided to them and answer any questions about where to go for services, he said.

The second discussion, according to Moen, inquires about possible contacts who have been exposed. If names are given, those persons are contacted and urged to be tested."

A February 1987 outline of HIV counseling procedure by the department states that the purpose of the counseling is to assist the patient in protecting his/her health and the health of others.

Gays Go To Prom; Press Says, 'So What'

Bloomington, Minn. [Windy City Times]- Student Damon Laudahl and his boyfriend got all decked out in tuxedos, drove up to the John F. Kennedy Senior High School in a white limousine and attended the spring prom — and school officials said they didn't mind at all.

Mr. Laudahl notified several newspapers and television stations in the Twin Cities area about his intentions, but the media refused to cover it because "there was no controversy," Mr. Laudahl said. The reason he called the media was because he figured it might get a rise out of them and he wanted to "pave the way" for other gays who will be coming along.

Mr. Laudahl checked with JFK's vice principal and the student council and encountered no objections. He said that most of his fellow students were supportive except one male student who hit him on the head and called him "some nasty names." The student later apologized.

The women's team "Madison Network", sponsored by Cheri's Back East and The Hotel Washington, competed against 6 teams and took 2nd place in the Women's "A" Division.

The two Madison teams were the only volleyball teams representing Wisconsin in the annual tournament. "The Dairy Queens" were supplemented by one team member from Milwaukee's GAMMA.

Madison Bicyclists Plan Trip

A group of recreational bikers in Madison is holding their annual summer bicycle ride on Saturday July 16. The ride will begin at the Hotel Washington and end at Goodland County Park where a picnic will be held afterward. Organizers say that anyone in any shape will be able to make the leisurely trip, which will travel on bike paths and back roads. A van will follow to assist anyone with problems.

Those interested should meet at the Hotel Washington, 636 W. Washington, Madison at 11:00 a.m. on Saturday, July 16. Those not wishing to bike can meet the group at Goodland County Park at 1:00 p.m. for the picnic.

For more information contact Ken at (608) 257-8580.

Biking Network Moves Into High Gear

In addition to the events listed in the Calendar of this In Step, the Gay Bicycling Network has fun rides planned throughout July, August, and September. On Sunday, July 10 the group will go for a "naughty park" ride from Estabrook to Underwood; the day begins at 1:00 PM with a fruit snack at Jim H.'s. On Saturday, July 16th the annual fish-day ride to Port Washington is scheduled. On Sunday, July 17 the network will work-out preceding the Circus Parade. Some bikers will be taking their ten-speeds to Madison on July 23rd for a ride before the MAGIC Picnic.

The GBN's major camping weekend will be held in Door County on July 29, 30 and 31. The group will pitch tents at the Egg Harbor Kamping Resort and plan both moderate and advanced routes throughout the peninsula. Call Jim H. at 332-8049 for more information.

In August the annual Hoan Bridge ride will be held on the 20th; other August ride co-ordinators are needed. As before, the season will end in September with a bike trip to Madison during the full moon of September 24 and 25. (Sorry, Al's runners, but the GBN couldn't compete with the L/G Pride Week!) For weather confirmation, to volunteer for ride coordinator, or for other information on any GBN activities, please contact Bob at 963-9833; you can always leave a message. ▽

SSBL Action

By Tom Salzsieder

[Milw.]- The M&M Peanuts pulled the upset of the Season June 11 as they rallied for 9 runs in the bottom of the fifth inning of their game with The Raiders to take an 11-10 decision. Time ran out before the Raiders could attempt a comeback. The win moved M&M one-half game ahead of La Cage for first place in the recreational division.

A short handed La Cage team had lost to the Raiders earlier in the day. The loss by the Raiders dropped them into second place in the competitive division, but they can still win their division and the right to go to the Gay Softball World Series if they can defeat YP in their final showdown on July 16.

Beer Garden split two games and remains in first place in the women's division.

The Wreck Room Spurs softball team will hold a fund raiser for the league on Saturday June 25 from 4 to 7:30. David W. will be at the piano from 4-6:30, and then a Mr. and Mis. SSBL Contest will be held. All members of the SSBL are eligible to enter. There will be showings in uniform of softball attire, and a "Do your own thing" in summer wear. Members of the Spur team will present a male review between showings. Patrons can vote for their favorite players by buying ballots for 25 cents each. You can vote as often as you like. Come support the Spurs and the league in this fund raising activity. All proceeds will go to the league.

Ch-Ch-Ch-Changes

We all want to make changes in our lives, unfortunately most of us don't know what we really want. Or we have some idea of what we'd like but are afraid to go out and get it. No matter what group you fall into you can make some changes, here are a few you may want to consider.

Call that cute guy you've been meaning to ask out, what have you got to lose?

Volunteer at a hospital or a community organization. Actively doing for others will refresh your sense of self.

Change something about your self, color your hair, get contacts. Don't be timid.

Clean out your closets, and toss everything you haven't worn in the last year.

Start keeping a daily journal. You'll get to know yourself better.

Unplug the TV set for a week, and pretend it's out of order. T.V.'s a time gobbler. You'll find that without it you'll have to come up with more exciting activities.

Go through your address book and call old friends you haven't spoken with in a year or so.

Sign up for a cooking class.

Exercise after work instead of plopping on the couch. You'll be surprised at your alertness.

Send a love-note.

Answer ten help-wanted ads, even if your happy with your current job. Dare to apply for a "dream" job too. Who knows what a few interviews could lead to?

Splurge and buy yourself something new.

Go to the humane society and adopt a pet. A pet gives you the experience of being responsible for another living creature.

Try the newest breakfast cereal instead of your old stand-by.

Send flowers to someone special.

Call your mom and invite her to lunch.

Stop ignoring Milwaukee's cultural offering because you know they'll always be there. Go to the museum tomorrow. Go out and explore parts of the city you haven't seen or try some ethnic food you've always wanted to.

Break out of your shell. Try to meet at least one new person each week.

Take a bath, with someone.

Get tickets to something you've never experienced before — opera, ballet, a jazz concert...

Fall in love.

Throw out all your socks and underwear that have holes in them.

Sleep in the nude.

times the drooling occurs, maybe something is triggering it.

Dear Mona,

This may sound silly but I have a thing for men in uniforms! The latest object of my desire is my mailman. I greet him at the mailbox almost everyday and he's always friendly to me. How can I approach him?

—Postage Due

Dear Due,

For starters, I would suggest sending yourself risque postcards and maybe even mention something about the mailman in them. This should give you the answer and hopefully the reaction you desire. Just remember, don't include your return address or he may figure it out.

Dear Mona,

One of my roommates has recently developed a fixation with Bette Davis. He impersonates her whenever we go out and in the past few weeks he has rented and watched almost all of her movies, twice and sometimes three times. Last week he even told me that he wants me to call him Bette. I'm starting to worry and need to know what to do because I don't know much about Bette Davis, so please just tell me.

—What did happen to Baby Jane?

Dear Jane,

Hide the axes and no matter what happens don't offer to open any garage doors or gates while he's behind the wheel of the car.

Dear Mona,

It's almost summer and the bikers and joggers are out in droves. Last year I almost got into at least a dozen accidents because I can't help staring at all the men while I'm driving, especially the ones in the tight bicycle pants. Please give me some advice before I do have a serious car accident.

—Eye Strained

Dear Strained,

Maybe you should wear blinders.

I've got a deep dark secret that I'm afraid to tell my boyfriend. We haven't known each other very long and he's new to town and I'm afraid someone else may tell him first. What should I do?

Dear Wimp,

Tell him. How bad could it be, I mean I know people who'll admit that they still listen to the soundtrack from "Grease."

Dear Mona,

A few months back I met this guy who was in town for the weekend. We had a great couple of days and exchanged phone numbers. I really think he's the one for me but I hardly know him, plus he lives on the other side of the state and our schedules don't leave anytime for visiting each other in the near future. What should I do?

"Before Stonewall"

In a few days, we will once again celebrate the anniversary of Stonewall.

We will march in Gay Pride Parades and we will hold rallies in order to affirm our pride and show our solidarity. We will discuss the political climate, and consider what we can do to improve it. It is, indeed, good, and vital, that we do these things.

However, before these things come to pass, I would like for us all to take a few minutes out, right now, if you like, for some quiet reflection on the lives of those people who lived before Stonewall, and who make it possible.

Let us consider the women and men who have always been visible, who wore their visibility proudly and definitely long before it was politically correct, or even physically safe, to do so.

Honor with me the women who refused to dress and act in a manner which they saw as untrue of themselves, and denying of their strength. Honor the men who refused to deny their feelings of gentleness.

Celebrate the courage of these beautiful women and men who refused to be categorized into baskets of pink or blue, and who wore their refusal uncompromisingly, and openly. Affirm with me our bulldykes and our drag queens.

'Bulldyke' has always been the label thrown by society at any woman who showed herself to be non compliant to the wishes of patriarchal men. Women in the Feminist Movement, who were otherwise committed, stepped back, almost involuntarily, out of fear, at the hurled accusations that they were 'dykes'. As we all know, for women, non-compliance has been the big taboo, both in manner and in dress. The women who dressed non-compliantly in pants and shirts, and wore their hair short, before and after this was permitted to women by the factory-work of the Second World War, took the accusation and wore it as a part of their attire, along with their short black leather jackets and boots, their military posture and their eagerness to tackle non-traditional jobs, in order to give to women a new set of "traditional" jobs.

They danced in their clubs, or sat in their bars, and kept the places on the dance floor, and the worn leather stools, warm for us. They wore their visibility, and collected scars. They did what they knew to do at the time, for their relationships. Today, role playing has passed out of fashion, and much of their style is laughed at by a few as dated. But, let us not forget: we could not have done better. Their presence, their visibility, made us possible.

The drag queens have, if possible, been the targets of even more righteous wrath, because, while a patriarchal society may feel disturbed by women to "mobilize upward" to the things of men, it definitely resents bitterly those men who "mobilize downward" to the things of women. And so the beaded gowns, the sweeping trains and headpieces, the presentations of the glamorous Heterosexual female stars, have been attacked by the Heterosexual and even the Homosexual communities, who have used the image to castigate all Gay men. We need to affirm the stubbornness which turned upsidedown and inside out expectations of "proper" male and female behavior then, and which do so now, and enable us to do so. These men, with their undaunted insistence on glamor, paved the way for new possibilities of being, and showed us genuine manhood, personhood, in the form of stubborn refusal to conform, to be any less than the vision which they saw in themselves. They showed us courage.

It often happens, as a minority group is making a bid for acceptance, for legitimization, by the mainstream community, that it succumbs to the temptation, imposed on it by that community, to disown its more visibly deviant members, as being "overly visible"; too loud, too strident, too extreme, unreasonable, holding the group back. It has already been suggested in some quarters that Homosexual people, who are working to gain civil and social acceptance by the Heterosexual mainstream, do so by leaving behind their more extreme brothers and sisters. This is a temptation which has been faced, in turn, by the Black and Jewish communities, as they assimilate. Given the emphasis of the mainstream on Gayness as a behavior, it will be faced even more so by the Gay community. Let us show our society that we do not disavow our own.

The early patrons of that Greenwich Village bar were representative of their time, as we are of ours. They articulated, as we articulate, needed expressions of personal freedom.

Let us affirm the expressions of freedom and being which make us such a splendidly diverse membership. As members of a statistically deviant subculture, we function as agents of societal refreshment and change. We keep society from becoming behaviorally and emotionally rigid; we keep it honest. And those of us who manage to keep in touch with their own needs to be uniquely themselves, in deeper ways, by so doing also give us permission to do so, and make that more possible. Being visible, they keep us from unwittingly closing ourselves off in set emotional habits; they keep us honest. By keeping visible new possibilities, they are part of affirming life and change, alternatives, which are what being Gay is all about.

So, let us pause, and affirm whatever powers of being that we individually may acknowledge, that these people, who spent their lives in, and before, the Stonewall bar did not lose their nerve. By facing a brutal society, they helped it to become maybe a little less brutal. By being visibly different, they helped to keep the door open for individual human difference, for us, for the people of their time, and for those yet to come. Let us pause, and affirm, and claim proudly these, and all of us who celebrate the essence of what we are: possibilities. And on Gay Pride Day, let us raise our glasses to those who, with their courageous lives, offered us a trust. With their uncompromising forthrightness, they provided the dry timber of Gay Liberation for which Stonewall was the spark. ▽

ADVICE BY MONA

Dear Mona,

I live in an apartment with two other guys who are habitually late with the rent, if they bother to pay me at all. I've got a good job, thank god, and I can cover their part of the rent if I severely budget myself. Meanwhile, they party every weekend and never pick up after themselves. I'd move out but the lease is in my name, what can I do?

—Feeling Used

Dear Used,

As an old friend of mine used to say, "with friends like those, who needs enemies." You are being taken for a ride. Go out and find yourself some new, reliable roommates and give these guys their walking papers.

Dear Mona,

Recently I had an accident at work and I lost part of a finger. It bothered me at first but now I've gotten used to being slightly imperfect. The problem is my boyfriend. He claims that he's disgusted by my missing appendage and refuses to even look at it. I'm afraid this could drive a wedge into our relationship and I don't know what to do.

—9½

Dear 9½,

It could be worse, but unless you are an octopus I wouldn't expect it to grow back. You didn't say how long it's been since your accident but I would give your boyfriend some more time to accept the situation. In the meantime you could buy a copy of Hemingway's "The Sun Also Rises" for your boyfriend to read, maybe then he'll realize how silly he's being and he'll consider himself lucky that your accident wasn't worse.

Dear Mona,

A friend of mine recently moved in with me and brought along his pet cat. I had no objections at first but now after a month

I'm finding cat hair everywhere, especially on my clothes which really bothers me. I don't want him to move out but he probably would if I asked him to get rid of the cat. Now I'm starting to have dreams about "accidentally" killing the thing, which terrifies me. What's your advice?

—Cat-astrophe

Dear Cat-astrophe,

Before you start planning on restringing your tennis racket, I'd think about the consequences if your roommate found out that you did away with his cat. Try to keep the cat out of your clothing by closing your closet door and buy a lint brush, quick.

Dear Mona,

My boyfriend and I are both very athletic and we love the out-doors. Last year we went camping every week-end when the weather was nice. We greatly look forward to these jaunts and our little romps in the woods again this year, if you know what I mean. Do you see any problems with this?

—Nature Lover

Dear Nature,

Just two: Remember it is tick season; Use heavy lube — sparks could cause forest fires.

Dear Mona,

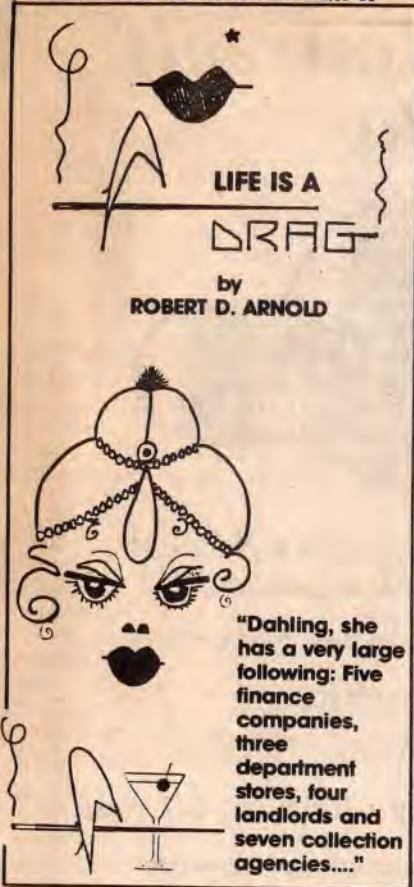

My lover has a serious problem, he drools in his sleep. It doesn't happen that frequently but when it does it annoys me to no end and I can't even sleep with him for the rest of the night. I haven't told him why I sometimes sleep on the couch and I'm afraid of what he may be thinking my reason is. What can I do?

Wet Behind the Ears

Dear Wet,

By all means discuss the problem with your partner. Discussion is the key to any good relationship. Also keep track of the verbal orgy and be able to take with 24 horny guys all at once. Quite a trick!

3. If someone says they would like to get someone on the "horn", they are referring to their interest in meeting somebody with a dildo.

4. Other callers may tend to exaggerate about their intimate dimensions. As a rule of thumb, divide their claimed physical birthright in half or double your own dimension.

5. If a fellow sex-line caller says that he would like to give you a "ring", chances are he actually means that he's quite taken with your personality and would like to give you a cock-ring as a token of his affection.

6. Not only do the 1-900 numbers provide an excellent forum for the expression of fantasies, they also provide the only real opportunity a man will ever have to fake an orgasm. The quality of a fake phone orgasm is generally determined by the creative use of moans in ascending volume and frequency. An excellent faked orgasm should create a high-pitched squealing feedback on the phone line.

7. If someone inquires as to your interest in a "3-Way" call, he probably is wondering whether you'd mind if his lover joined the fun by picking up the extension in the spare bedroom.

8. Often one will get the distinct impression that there are more people on the line than just those talking. Trust your instincts, there are. These verbal voyeurs hang on the line, but say nothing. They derive their pleasure from eavesdropping on other's sexually casual conversations. At this time there is no solution to the problem of telephone peeping Toms, but they can usually be identified by their rapidly excited breathing.

9. Setting up a date with someone you meet on the phone lines can be a disaster waiting to happen. Since many people employ fantasies in the conversations, how they describe themselves may be a product of an over-active imagination. Remember, there are only so many hot 21 year-old, blonde haired, blue-eyed boys with washboard stomachs and 9' out there. Chances are you've hooked up with a bald 39-year-old, who single handedly caused hundreds of farms to go bankrupt last time he went on a diet. And be careful making dates with those from other states, as air-fares continue to rise and making a connection with such people can be difficult.

10. Watch out how long you stay on those lines. Ear infections can result from long sessions on the phone and telephone bills can sky rocket.

Ron & Kim's 5th Annual Summerfest Pick Hits & Tidbits

By Ron Geiman & Kim Zwiobohmer

[In Step]- This is our fifth annual column highlighting the best of Summerfest activities. Every year Summerfest sends us this huge press kit listing 'everything you need to know about Summerfest but were afraid to ask', and we go through it and wean out the best musical offerings. Kin, who is the DJ at Club 219, voraciously reads Billboard and Dance Music Report, along with 'very important magazines' such as People, and Star, so those are his qualifications. I, on the other hand, have eaten my way through the grounds on more than one occasion, and besides, I'm the Editor.

What's New

The New Age Stage has been added on the southeast end of the grounds, offering a selection of acts performing minimalist music of which we have minimal interest, so we didn't list any of their acts.

Amusement rides will be added for the first time since Summerfest kicked the 'Million Dollar Midway' off the grounds back in '81 due to the 'undesireable elements' associated with it. Now they've brought in at least six rides including water bumper boats (a nice way to cool off) and a huge Ferris Wheel (designed to hold up to six - maybe three our size).

New food stands include Germanfest, Saz's Express, Fannie Mae, and Al's Seafood (sorry girls- they don't mean Sailors!)

For all of you who think you've got Whitney's or George Michael's latest hit down perfect, they've added a chance for you to make a recording at one of four booths set up near the Rock and Comedy Stages. The recording booths will record your voice over a taped musical soundtrack to provide you with a professional sounding tape. (Holly Brown - eat your heart out!)

Prices

Opening Day (Thursday, June 30) will be Dollar Day for all patrons. Admission that day will be $1 from 11:30 a.m. until closing, thanks to Pabst Brewing Co. Monday, July 4, admission will be FREE from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m., also courtesy of Pabst. After 1, the admission is regular price.

Basic prices are $5 in advance or $6 at the gate. If you picked up Early Bird Coupons, you can get in for $1 from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. on July 1, 5, 6, 7, and 8th.

The "Three Day Pass" allows you entry for three days for $12. These passes are available at Sentry, Pick'n Save, Sun Food, Shop Rite, Marcus Theatres, First Bank Milwaukee, Ticketron Outlets, the Amphitheatre Box office and Mainstream Records.

The best seats in the house at the Marcus Amphitheatre are reserved, and they are going to cost you various prices. They may be purchased at Ticketron Outlets or at the Amphitheatre box office. 14,000 seats will be open free to those attending Summerfest, but you've got to wait in line half the day to be assured of getting in.

"A Beginner's Guide To The 1-900 Phone Lines"

The explosion of the 1-900 phone services has opened the door on new territory, eager to be explored. Yet there are those among us who are still unfamiliar and afraid to venture into this seemingly untamed region of gay society. And like the early explorers, those who are not well prepared for their journey into this new wilderness are destined for disappointment and disaster. So, after exhaustive research and an enormous phone bill, I am proud to be able to present the following beginner's guide to the 1-900 phone lines.

Setting Up

Proper preparation is an essential ingredient for a successful session on the phone lines. It is vital to have your equipment set-up correctly and positioned prior to dialing the number. Here is a short checklist.

1. Choose a location. Pre-select a location in your home from which you plan to call, most often a bed, couch or big comfortable chair. Your phone should be near-by and be sure to have a table with-in arm's reach on which you can place any items or accessories needed for your adventure into the sex phone zone. Please note, calling S&M lines may cause some people to become more physically involved and often results in arm flailing, much trashing about and assuming of unusual positions. In these cases, I suggest setting up on the floor and the removal of any sharp or breakable objects from the area.

2. Essential Equipment. The most important item on any list would be the telephone. Always be sure the phone is in working order and remember failure to pay your phone bill will result in disconnection. Often a steamy bout on the phone lines will leave the receiver slick with perspiration and lubricant, many people have solved that sticky problem by adapting those non-skid bathtub decals for use on their phone. There's nothing worse than having a slick receiver slide out of your hand at a critical moment. Other items to remember; pen and paper for messages, lubricant, 1-900 phone numbers, towels and plenty of imagination.

3. Telephone accessories. There is a wide variety of items which may come in handy. Among gadgets to consider: Vibro-Matic vibrating telephone, heavy-duty speaker phone or Call Waiting.

4. Selecting a 1-900 service. Contrary to what many people believe, those gorgeous pieces of man-flesh featured in those ads are not the men you will actually be speaking with when you call. People who base their decision on their attraction to a Nautilus honed body in an ad will often be sorely disappointed. The best method to use is the scientifically proven "Eenie Meanie Miny Moe" method.

Talking Tips

There are dozens of bits of information a rookie phone-sex caller should know about phone line etiquette, jargon and procedure. The following list should provide enough information to successfully complete their first call.

1. Using the 1-900 numbers is the ultimate form of safe sex and it is not necessary to use a condom unless, you're planning to put it on the receiver to muffle your voice, making it less recognizable. Other people will use a rubber sheathed receiver if they use the phone as some unusual sexual aid claiming it makes clean-up a snap.

2. Many phone-sex services allow you to connect with up to eight other "horny guys." If you have the phone company install the 3-Way calling feature on your phone, you can be set-up for the ultimate

Food

Here's our favorites of the many food offerings on the grounds: BBQ Pork Sandwich and Mozzarella Marinara (Saz's); Steak Sandwich (Fox and Hounds); Greek Combo Plate (Zorba's); Fried Eggplant and Chicken Parmigian (Venice Club); and Steak Tacos and Chimichanga (Monreal's). Ribs, Gumbo, and Cajun Chicken Sandwich (Gus's BBQ); the Burgers (Someplace Else); Subs (Cousin's); Onion Rings (Big Boys); Guacamole (Chi-Chi's); and we're looking forward to trying the BBQ Shrimp and Rice (Al's Seafood).

Entertainment Pick Hits

For the sake of brevity, we'll use the following abbreviations for the stage names: Marcus Amphitheatre [Marcus]; Matilda

Bay [Matilda]; Old Style Heartland [Old Style]; 93QFM/Mainstream Rock Stage [Rock]; Pepsi/WKTI Comedy Cabaret [Cabaret]; and Bank One Sports Area [Sports].

Every day at the festival, at the Cabaret stage, you'll find Comedy Sportz doing shows at 5:30 and 8:30; and the indestructible Sigmund Snopek at 6:45 and 9:45. Be sure to catch them both at one time or another.
