What's Happening?

- GPU's Open House for artists is Sunday, May 13, while Monday, May 14, is gay entertainers' night at the Farwell Center. Artists, poets, musicians and other people into crafts should contact Miki Doxtator at GPU to register for either event.

- GPU is also assembling a referral list of gay professionals, such as physicians, lawyers, counselors, accountants, etc. Call 271-5273 to be listed.

- On Saturday, May 5, CBS aired "Beane's of Boston," a pilot for a possible fall series. It presented stereotyped images of gay people, women and elderly. If you do not approve of this type of programming, you may register a complaint by calling WITI-TV6 at 355-6366.

- A proposed gay march on Washington, DC, in October has been met with carefully-worded statements from nationally recognized organizations. MCC, Integrity and the Gay Rights National Lobby issued a joint statement of opposition, citing a greater need for funds to be spent in other areas.

The National Gay Task Force, while supporting the demands of a gay rights bill, also said that "the planning process may limit the ultimate success of the march."

Police are seeking information concerning the death of Tiny. He left the Factory Friday, April 27th, about 11 pm, allegedly with Bobby and Gary. Items missing are Tiny's 1970 Chevy, white over green, WI Lic A 29744, his wallet with probably more than $2,000 and expensive diamond jewelry including several rings, necklaces and a broach. People having any information about Tiny's activities later that night, or of the missing items, should call the Detective Bureau on their direct line, 273-8660. They are most appreciative of the help from our gay community, and their will be no hassles.

Who's Happening?

LEON ROUSE

Leon Rouse is a twenty-one year old political science student at UWM. His contributions to gays in Milwaukee and Wisconsin have been political victories.

As President of the UWM Gay Community, Rouse convinced the UWM board of regents to add the words "sexual preference" to UWM's non-discriminatory policy. In a student referendum he also initiated, over 80% of those voting supported this measure.

Rouse was instrumental in having similar disclaimers added to the non-discriminatory policies of three other schools in the UW system: Whitewater, Oshkosh and Parkside. UW-Madison, the kingpin of the system, is Rouse's next target; he is "almost positive" that he will be successful there in May. The resolution, originally introduced in December, was "pushed off on a technicality" he says.

A consenting adults bill which would repeal sodomy will face the Wisconsin legislature in May, and Rouse is lobbying for its passage. He says it has an even chance.

He also heads The League of United Gay Voters, a satellite of the UWM Gay Community. Its purpose is to recommend qualified and sympathetic candidates for public office to gays for support. Dennis Conta is its choice for Mayor, and Rouse is courting Conta with hopes of becoming a full-time gay representative to the Mayor's office, should Conta win.

SPORTS PAGE

Across the nation "spring" is synonymous with "softball" for thousands of gay participants in the Gay Softball League. This year five cities have teams vying for world series honors: New York, Toronto, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Milwaukee.

New York has 14 teams in the Manhattan Community Athletic Association, now in its third year. Toronto's ten teams belong to the Cabbagetown Group Softball League, also in its third year.

Los Angeles' Intercity Athletic Union, which sponsors softball and bowling for its 1,000 members, won an LA Chamber of Commerce award last summer for its gay sports services. Meanwhile, sister city San Francisco is embroiled in a dispute between GSL and rival Community Softball League, whose admittance of straight teammates has caused controversy.

In Milwaukee, eight teams in the Saturday Softball Beer League sponsored last year's Wreck Room classic. This year's schedule looks better than ever: see the insert in this issue of the Milwaukee Calendar!
