I dragged my ass out of bed and over to the showers in another building. That building has a shower in an alcove to the rear of the rest of the showers—perfect for self-gratification on mornings when your tool just won't keep quiet.

While sitting on the bench and getting ready for the shower, someone walked by and I smelled the same cologne from the previous night. I looked up and I saw who it was—a beefy guy with chest and arms that only come from regular hard workouts at the gym. He had an ass and legs that were equally magnificent. I was sure it was my anonymous lover from the night before.

I watched him as he walked over to the showers and just as he was entering, he turned slightly, bringing into view the most beautiful, beefiest looking piece of man meat. He glanced quickly at me and smiled as he adjusted his meat and turned back into the showers.

My own meat started to react to the situation and I was anxious to get into the showers. Last night left me aching for some relief. My tool was starting to get fully aroused and anyone here in the showers would know. But, I was so horny I really didn't care.

I entered the showers and looked around for him. There were some others, some quite beefy and would have distracted me if my mind had not been filled with the memories from last night—his chest against mine—his legs straddling my waist—his ass mashed against my jewels, painfully stretching them to a pleasurable sensation—my tool reaching, straining—his massive tool pulsing, throbbing between us—his ultimate lust searing my chest, loins and chin.

I made my way back past more men showering, water running over beefy, muscular, sensuous bodies. The memory of that unique cologne, as faint and subtle as it was, drove me on to the alcove in the back of the showers. I developed a sense of tunnel vision and thought only of burying my face into him, inhaling deeply of his man scent and feasting on him.

I reached the alcove, a private area in the showers. My anonymous lover was waiting, his torpedo at full attention. The water ran down in torrents, over his hard muscled body. He wasted no time and reached out for me and pulled me into him. We kissed and probed each other's mouth with our tongues as our tools fought their own battle. His was definitely winning but mine was giving him a hell of a battle.

He turned me around and approached from behind. From his shower bag, he fetched a condom and stretched it over his huge fat member. Wrapping his strong muscular arms around my chest, he brutally pinched my nipples with one hand and firmly gripped my man meat with the other.

We released our pent up desires and fell into the corner, letting the proof of our pleasure wash away, leaving only memories.

Afterwards, we both went our separate ways. He was transferred and I never messed up in the chow line again, as tempting as it was.

in 2000-2002. In nearly 14 percent of cases, oral sex was the subjects' only sexual exposure during the time they were infected; this mode was reported by 20 percent of MSM with syphilis, and 6-7 percent of heterosexuals. These figures did not include possible infection through oral sex when sexual intercourse also occurred. People with syphilis in the mouth may not show any symptoms, or the sores could be mistaken for herpes or aphthous ulcers, the researchers noted. The syphilitic sores may carry high concentrations of the germ and be highly infectious.

"These data underscore the need for educating sexually active persons regarding the risk for syphilis transmission through oral sex," the researchers concluded. "Persons who are not in a long-term monogamous relationship and who engage in oral sex should use barrier protection (e.g., male condoms or other barrier methods) to reduce the risk for sexually transmitted disease (STD) transmission," the researchers advised. The full report, "Transmission of Primary and Secondary Syphilis by Oral Sex - Chicago, Illinois, 1998-2002," was published in the Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report (2004;53(41):966-968).

After Delay, OraSure to Launch Saliva-Based HIV Test

Associated Press (10.20.04)::Daniel Rosenberg

Saying its saliva-based HIV test works properly, Bethlehem, Pa.-based OraSure Technologies Inc. said Wednesday that it would start shipping the tests early in November. The product launch was delayed after a clinical trial of the OraQuick Advance Rapid HIV-1/2 Antibody Test showed a higher rate of unconfirmed positive results than the company had found in its own clinical data.

The company conducted another study that mirrored the field use of the test, and reviewed more than 12,000 test readings. Results from that study, in addition to data from several independent studies, "clearly indicate that the test is operating within its specifications," the company said. OraQuick Advance is the only Food and Drug Administration-approved rapid HIV test available that uses saliva, the company said. Analyst David Lewis of Thomas Weisel Partners said he believes the less invasive, user-friendly oral test will expand the existing public-health HIV-testing market of 3 million people by as much as 25 percent.

Hepatitis C Cases Up Statewide

Associated Press (09.01.04)::Jenny Price

Wisconsin had 18,082 reported hepatitis C virus (HCV) cases as of 2003, state Epidemiologist Angela Russell said Wednesday. There was a five-fold increase between the 828 cases reported in 1997 - the state's first year collecting the data - and 4,203 cases reported in 2002, possibly due to increased testing and reporting requirement awareness, said Russell. There was a subsequent decrease in 2003 to 3,593 new hepatitis C cases. Among newly reported HCV cases between 1997 and 2003, males comprised two-thirds; 70 percent were age 40 and older; 29 percent lived in Milwaukee; and 15 percent were among state prisons inmates, according to the state Division of Public Health.

The data, based on reports submitted by laboratories and public health departments, do not reflect the actual number of people who have HCV since most people do not exhibit symptoms or get tested, said Russell. The data will help the state assess where to focus its efforts on education and prevention. "People have had this for 20 to 30 years and just didn't know," Russell said.

Syphilis Through Oral Sex on the Rise

Reuters Health (10.21.04)

Syphilis is increasingly being transmitted through oral sex, according to a new CDC report published Friday. Mistaken in the belief that oral sex is safe sex, many people are unaware they can readily catch or transmit syphilis in this manner. Moreover, syphilitic sores in the mouth can increase the risk of HIV infection.

Over the period from 1998 to 2002, Dr. C. Ciesielski and colleagues from the Chicago Department of Public Health observed patterns of syphilis transmission change substantially. During the 1990s, syphilis occurred almost exclusively among heterosexuals, the researchers noted. But since 2001, men who have sex with men account for nearly 60 percent of people with syphilis.

To explain these findings, the researchers interviewed people who were infected with syphilis

By Cruisin' Carl

My anonymous lover—partner or maybe assailant—continued to ride me with agonizingly slow and sensuous strokes. Up and down while pressing his body against mine with a torpedo-sized piece of man meat, tightly squeezed between us. He slid up between my peccs. It was so huge that I thought it would hit my chin and if I had not been gagged I would gladly have taken him in my mouth. But all I could do was hunch up, squirm and moan to express my pleasure he was giving me.

As he continued to work us, sweat began to roll down between our bodies, enhancing the slippery feel our bodies were experiencing. The scent of his body began to waft up into my face, bolstering my sexual arousal and I detected a slight, lingering remains of an unfamiliar, distinct cologne. It was unlike any I had ever smelled before. It had a masculine, sexy allure that had me inhaling deeply, straining to get more. The combination of his natural body odor and the faint cologne, drove my lust for him to a maddening frenzy. I bucked and humped with wild enthusiasm. I was getting dangerously close to complete satisfaction and would be testing the strength of the condom. My release surely would be the most satisfying ever in my life.

Suddenly, he tightened his grip around my torso and squeezed our chests together. He buried my tool to the root and started shuddering like he was being electrocuted. I felt his release powerfully between my peccs, and searing my chin. I bent my head forward, letting my face take the next blast with several more following. He jerked each time but gradually his body became calm as he lay there, panting and moaning gasping for breath. Our bodies were engulfed with his lust.

I, however, had been denied my ultimate pleasure. If only he had lasted a few moments longer. He got up and extracted himself from me and removed the condom. He squeezed out the last of his pleasure, pressed his torpedo against my aching tool and quietly walked away, leaving me only with the smell of him and his strange cologne in my mind.

I lay there with the evidence of lovemaking all over me and it was starting to get cold. About five minutes later I could hear foot steps coming. They sounded like boots and probably Sarge's.

"Well Private, by the looks of you, I'd say you had a pretty good time here all by yourself. You are an absolute mess! What did you do? Have a wet dream?" Sarge bellowed and guffawed at my embarrassment.

Evidently, Sarge thought I had gotten off all by myself with my hands tied up over my head and no way to physically stimulate myself. He removed the blindfold and gag and untied my hands. Next he ordered me to get up and he attached the leash around my neck.

With a jerk on the leash, Sarge lead me outside and back the way we had come earlier. It was almost sun up. We went back inside and I was put back into the padded cell. Alone, and filthy from my anonymous lover, I was left naked and hungry for nourishment and sexual relief. The latter I figured I could handle myself but I was just too tired and fell asleep.

I awoke to the sound of the little slot in the door opening up to let a tray of food to be let in. Breakfast? Perhaps. I ate ravenously and placed the tray back and it was promptly retrieved. Having eaten, I began

2:30 PM - End of the construction day, Bill is taking off but STETSON decides to stay a bit longer to take care of some urgent business - the business of relieving his horny cock. Sensing that everyone has left the job site, he strips off his shirt and shorts and out springs his hard-on. Stetson is a handsome man with a chiseled face and a perfectly defined body.

12:00 PM the next day, BRET LARSEN and MATT decide to try out the new double showers they installed the day before. After getting naked and wet, Matt decides to take the test one step further. So he gets down and swallows Bret's man hose. Matt gets his own hard-on serviced, which Bret does leisurely, suctioning hard on the head of Matt's dick. He shoots a good load with Bret's cock still buried inside.

4:00 PM Monday afternoon, BILL RAY and Matt decide to get ahead on the dry wall project. This gets interrupted because Matt has other ideas in mind - getting inside Bill's pants. Bill is a willing partner so he whips out his tool and feeds it to Matt's hungry mouth. Bill pumps into Matt hard, plunging in deep.

1:30 PM Wednesday, KYLE LEWIS, BRIAN HANDCOCK and Bill are back on the site. As Kyle and Brian drill nails into the wall frame, Bill imagines a dildo connected to the drill bit. Kyle notices the lustful look and moves in for the kill, with Brian also moving in from the back. They undress each other and soon lips are wrapped around cocks, as they begin sucking each other off. Finally, it's time to drill Bill. (see, it all ties in at some point!) Bill gets drilled by Brian, while Kyle watches from the side. They do a round robin and take turns assaulting Bill's ass with their tools. The two guys shoot their huge loads all over Bill's body, while he pumps out a load of his own.

Downtown San Diego is undergoing gentrification. With lots of hot and sweaty construction guys.

7:30 AM - ERIC HUNTER, BOBBY WILLIAMS, and ROCCO DI NIRO take a break from their work, but instead of coffee, they decide they'd rather chow down on something else. Bobby gets down on his knees, and begins giving Rocco, the young Italian kid with a sizable hard-on, a blowjob. Not wanting to be left out, Eric joins in and forms a daisy chain suckfest. Soon Bobby is gorging on the two young cocks, stretching his lips wide to accommodate both cocks. With their break coming close to ending, they stand next to each other against the truck and blow their wads

Dear Ruthie

Alright, enough of my soapboxing, lets change the subject with a letter.

Dear Ruthie,

My girlfriend is a pack rat. I knew this when I moved in, but she swore she'd change. That was 1 year ago and nothing's changed. She's too embarrassed to have friends over but she won't clean.

Our guestroom is full of boxes of her junk, and our bedroom has two stacks of boxes that are up to my waist. Our breezeway's full of crap. A side table in our dining room has papers and file folders all over it and five stacks of paper beneath it. The basement is bad, too. And now she's collecting "TV Guides!"

What bugs me the most is that much of it is stuff she accumulated with her ex-husband. I understand keeping mementos, but I'm talking dozens of boxes. She says it all has special meanings. How can a spoon rest have special meaning? I don't care if she bought it on her honeymoon, she's with me now!

YES, it's true! That sexy slab of male meat on the cover is none other than Todd - my manager, stud about the trailer, and personal manservant. Isn't he the cutest sugar-booger you've ever seen?!

Todd won an "Outbound" cover-guy contest that H.I.T. sponsored at the M&M Club. The other contestants were deserving as well, but I'm certainly glad this hottie claimed top honors. Bravo Todd! I'm so proud of you!

I don't want to live in a sty (I'm paying half the mortgage, too), and I don't want memories of her ex-husband everywhere. Am I wrong?

(signed)
Clutter-Free Kris

For those of you who caught me in "Auntie Mame," thanks for supporting Milwaukee's smaller professional theater companies such as RSVP Productions. Muchos grassy-ass.

Dear Clutter,

I know what your girlfriend is going through. Last month I gave up my '72 Dodge, and it broke my heart. The paint was gone, it had a rag for a gas cap and the backseat sported a stain that looked like the Pope (which was neat) but smelled like hell (which wasn't neat).

As we usher in a new presidential term, I salute you, my readers, who undoubtedly voted. There is strength in numbers, and even if you're not politically inclined, your vote reminds our country that this community has a strong voice and helps prove that this community cannot be ignored.

Before taking the car in, I laid across the hood and hugged it, then one of my boobs got caught under a rusty windshield wiper, and Pearl had to call 911.

Why do we get attached to things? I don't know. I once cried my eyes out when I left a favorite tube top in a taxicab. My life was turned upside down when my Shaun Cassidy pillow caught on fire, and I didn't talk to an ex-husband for weeks after he gambled away our Paul Lynde commemorative plates.

It's screwy. I wasn't upset when my twin, Poinsettia, broke into my place, stealing money and Ponderosa gift certificates. But when she hocked my "Hee-Haw" bobble-head dolls, I hit the roof.

It's like the time my cat got outside one February and froze to the side of my trailer. I didn't cry a tear. Granted, the little bastard liked to whiz on my waterbed, but still, I'm not a block of ice, unlike Whiskers.

After the people from FACT arrived (Freeing Animals Congealed to Trailers), they peeled the hairy heathen from the aluminum siding, thawed him out and took him to a new home. I still felt nothing for the psychotic feline. A day later, I lost it when the spring broke in my Chiquita Banana kitchen timer.

I was a basket case when the dry cleaner lost a pair of panties autographed by Mike Wallace, and don't get me started on the time the cat (pre-petrified, of course) humped my Telly Savalas lamp off the toilet tank, smashing it to bits. (For years I kept Telly's nose in a china hutch next to a Kirk Cameron souvenir coin and my ticket stub from "Mary Kay Letourneau—The Musical.")

I think we hold on to items because they offer a comfort we think we can't do without—as though we'll lose the memory without the item there to jar it. But once these items are gone, it's amazing how quickly we often get over them. I forgot about my Dodge and bonded with my new '93 Fiesta within days.

You absolutely have an issue with your girl. If you're paying rent, it's your home, too. First, estimate how much of the clutter is yours and remove/organize it.

Next, tell your partner that you can't live this way. Remind her that you did things her way for a year. List the positives regarding why all of the clutter is necessary. Then list why the clutter has a negative impact on your life. The negatives will likely outnumber the positives. Review the lists with her.

Research the cost of storage space, demonstrating that you're open to options other than tossing everything. Find out how long it will take before the "TV Guides" will be of any value. Estimate how much cash you could make at a spring rummage sale, and designate a section of the basement for a "rummage pile." Select a fun thing to do/buy with the rummage money, and make that a goal. She's more likely to depart with things if there's a tradeoff.

Next, buy two good-sized storage boxes. Explain that they are "Memory Boxes," and that she should fill them with items she wants to store in the house. Keep the boxes accessible (but out of site to guests) so she can look at her souvenirs whenever she wants.

If you're regularly using items that once belonged to she and her ex, (and they're making you uncomfortable) replace them with items you pick out together. Try surprising her with a new spoon rest, and explain its symbolism. Can a new spoon rest be romantic? Let me know at www.dearruthie.com!

Cheap Talkin' Chi-Chi

By Chi-Chi

Well folks, Chi-Chi wanted a break this month and we assured her that it was OK. We want our writers to enjoy what they do and if a rest from the onslaught of deadline after deadline is in order, by all means, take a break, get recharged.

Furthermore, we would like to tell the readers to go out and be a little naughty while Chi-Chi takes a break. Let's really give her something to gossip about next month. (Editor) to realize I was horny from last night's activities. So, I started to make myself comfortable and began pleasuring myself the way any lonely horn man would. But just as I was starting to get into the "meat" of things, the door opened and Sarge burst in.

"Horny, are you Private? Get on your knees and get that ass into the air."

Sarge used me as his sex slave and tied my hands behind my back. "That will keep you from abusing yourself," he said as he left, shutting the door and locking it.

Sarge kept coming back, what seemed like every two hours, to use me again and again. Finally, he untied my hands and after leaving, the slot in the door opened again and in came a tray of food, probably dinner. I guess he didn't think I needed to eat lunch.

After dinner, Sarge came back for the last time and used me for his own gratification one last time. When he was through, he finally led me back to the barracks. It was just getting dark—24 hours after my ordeal with STD began. I was thoroughly exhausted from both Sarge's demands and lack of sound sleep. I laid down on my bed and started dreaming.

In my dreams I relived the scene with my anonymous lover. The smell of his cologne, the way he rode and spilled himself all over me, the pleasure that he and I shared stirred the lust in me and I woke up. My hard engorged tool was valid, undeniable proof of my state of being. The morning light was in its twilight phase, meaning it was time to get up and go to the showers—no time for self gratification.

Cordially Yours

By Michael Johnston

Here we are Wisconsin, November already, like it or not! By the time you read this Halloween will be but a memory—AND we will know who will be occupying the White House for the next four years. Enough of all that—lets get caught up... It was wonderful seeing Bob Schmidt at his old stomping grounds The M&M Club. Both he and The Club are still as flawless as they were 25 years ago when we first met. Yes, I have been haunting Brew City for 25 years—and what marvelous memories! The growth our community and this city have made are equally impressive. Sweetest Day 1979 I made my debut—this year I commemorated it at Fluid, hosting the “Drag Idol Contest” for HIT. Bill Wardlow is always the quintessential host, with the most. Christian a self proclaimed Virgin—at least at bartending, along with Drew and Dee rounded off the staff.

Miss Candy Stick a local favorite was the lady of the night, winning with top honors. Lee and Todd otherwise known as Stormy and Bad Weather came in with a hilarious re-entition of “It’s Raining Men.” A truly great way to usher my next quarter of life—“in the life.” The audience was full of fun and generous fans and friends: Roland, BoBo, Claude, Maya, Mark, Jeffrey, David & Mark, Stan from San Antonio, Buffy, the Men of OutBound and countless others celebrating Sweetest Day, Bosses Day or plain old Satur-Day! This was the second contest held for “Drag Idol.” The previous week Craig and Scotty of Switch opened their doors for the tied winning of Miss Crystal Styles and Jeffrey Towbridge. Drag is drag, feathers, leather, cowboy, uniform, velvet ...

AIDS Walk Wisconsin 2004, the 15th Annual took place since last we met. Over $414,176.00 was raised! It was a bright, sunny Sunday and the spirit in the air was as strong as ever! This year other activities took place in conjunction with raising money for the Walk. The Argonauts brought in over $500 on a Saturday afternoon cycle ride. They celebrated in style at The M’s, afterwards. Special thanks to BooBoo for his hospitality.

David & Thor gave a groovy Hawaiian Luau - everyone was leid!

The Kids of ARCW had a fun Friday get-together—proceeds all for the Walk.

Of course as always, I walked the Walk in sensible shoes with WCTC. (The Waukesha County Technical College). What fun we always have—then afterwards refueled at The Pasta Tree. Steve and Robert always roll out he lavender carpet! Too bad Bobby was off...

Congratulations and a Happy 30th Anniversary to the BestD Clinic. What a sensational celebration they had. Well deserved too! Their parking lot was tented, with heaters, and an enormous buffet graciously prepared by Out And About - brava Pam & Bev - Michael too, desserts from the neighboring Mimma’s, wine, Miller beer, coffee...Live music—including the talents of Mrs. Fun! Irv & Ross—the Clinics dedicated stalwarts were on hand, as well current director Kevin Lynch who was beaming with pride, Jerry Warzyn who along with Josh and so many long time volunteers all toasting this momentous milestone. Kevin definitely wanted to acknowledge the great coordination the party reflected by the hard work of Brian & Jim. It is great to see an agency that offers such an important role in our world, take the time to enjoy all the achievements of their devoted work.

Mr. John McGivern is returning to Vogel Hall for the Holidays. December 3—January 2, 2005 in David Sedaris’ “The Santaland Diaries.” John will be playing a maturing elf taking over a NYC Department Store—need I write more?

Thanks to my dear friend ad/PR executive Bonnie De Leeuw of Stardust Advertising I was invited to a VIP preview featuring Mr. McGivern. It has hit written all over it! What a great Christmas gift!

As you can see in the photo, we all kicked up our collective Holiday heels—including: Tony on piano, STILL Cordially Yours, Tracey, Julian, John McGivern—offering a helpful hand, Stephen Rosalind of Bialystock & Bloom, and Dan Petry of TayLar Development).

I had the thrill of seeing Miss Jane Monheit when she played the Pabst Theatre. If you enjoy Dianne Krall, Diane Shurr, Jazz, Standards ... you will love this vixen. Thank you Peter, for a night I will never forget...

The Wisconsin Cream City Chorus has their season under way. Thanks for including me in your highly successful "Autumn In New York" Bistro Show. Their next effort will be Richard Rogers: "The Sweetest Sounds" Saturday, January 15, 2005 7:30 PM Plymouth Church, 2717 East Hampshire Avenue.

My boys of Men's Voices Milwaukee will be raising their voices ever so joyously this Holiday Season on Saturday, December 4, 2004. The Zalazo Center UWM. I always get sooo excited talking about this Group that in my last Column, I did not specify that the Summer Party at Adan & John's was a farewell to conductor Ken McMonagle. Do not fret they are now in the capable and hands and baton of John Francis. I can not wait for this show—even if it means snow...

What fun it was having Randy & Rob here from Texas! Randy lived here cons ago, Rob his partner asked if we knew his cousin Timmy - it turns out Timmy is Boom/The Room's very own Tim! Small world, Pilgrim.

Thanksgiving weekend will not only bring us HIT 26, but yet another fabulous adult entertainer Justin Dragon at Boom/The Room both Friday and Saturday November 26 & 27. Once is never enough! Also Boom/The Room will be adding even more Magic this month to their highly successful club with the Houdini of our hamlet—David Seebach! David will be on hand, with nothing up his sleeve for newby Chris' B-Day, and then will return later in the month to do a Benefit for Men's Voices Milwaukee. Magic and Music—oooh my...

On that "note," remember it's the glamour - not the grammar.

Wishing you a thankful, peaceful, pleasant Thanksgiving - as I remain STILL Cordially Yours.
