HOLIDAY GIFT IDEAS!

Surely, you must have been thinking (as I have) of some possible unique gifts for your gay friends. If you are like me, you also would be waiting to the very last minute, because after all, procrastination is a terrible thing to waste. Every year I go through this ritual worry about getting something for my more "difficult friends". You know the type. They are always on top of the latest trends and fashions. I mean, you don't want to come off looking like someone who lacks taste or class.

Hopefully, this little article might be of some help to you. It strikes me that with all the political maneuvering being done by groups such as the conservative right, we should make a gigantic effort to support those businesses which are "gay friendly"....obviously, I do not know if these businesses are all gay-owned, nor do I care; I do know they welcome our business and treat us with respect.

Books are always in good taste; I picked up a copy of "The Unofficial Gay MANual" (by Kevin Dilallo and Jack Krumholtz) recently at AfterWords in Milwaukee. What a hoot! And, the advice in the MANual makes good sense. This book has just been released, and Carl at Afterwords tells me it is a hot seller for him. The selection at AfterWords is the best I've seen outside of Madison. Definitely worth your time to head for Murray Ave. on Milwaukee's east side and check out their shelves! If you don't live near Milwaukee, check out Afterwords Marketplace ad in this issue. Not only can you order by phone, but you will be helping to make a donation to BESDT Clinic and Center Project as well!

Sassie Lassie Gift Shoppe, next to The Floor Company on Military Avenue, Green Bay, has a great selection of lingerie. Now, I know what you're thinking, but use your imagination. Not all lesbians wear flannel, and, of course, there are always the drag divas on our gift lists.

Some of the nicest gifts to be found are at Gregory & Company, Brookfield Plaza, and at Kenosha County's (Salem, actually) Wychwolde (pronounced "witchwood").

Flowers are always great! Tom T. Tulip on Brady Street in Milwaukee, has a nice selection....and great ideas to suggest. And, of course, there's Pedal Pusher in Green Bay (the most unique gifts I've seen in a long time), and Twigs on Riverside Drive in Green Bay is nice, too. How about sending that guy on your list (who already has everything you could ever afford to buy) a great floral centerpiece to spice up his home for the holidays! Something really big and outrageous comes immediately to mind. Just send it care of Mark to Quest's address, I'm sure I'll get it!

Or, how about a lodging gift certificate: Hotel Washington, Madison; the Chanticleer Guest House in wonderful Door County come to mind immediately!

Antiques are always nice, and become the biggest surprises. Sheboygan Antiques has nice "stuff" and is certainly worth your time and effort. They are running a 20% off sale right now!

There's always a gift certificate if you are really stumped, but remember, it's not how much money you spend on the gift, but how much imagination you used!

Please don't forget about doing business with the folks who genuinely are not judgmental about the gay community, and have yourself a very "Mary" Christmas this year!

No, no, I asked for a BUD Lite! Centerpieces were all the rage again this year at the Mr. & Miss Wisconsin Pageant. The Blue Lite had four tables with these lovely candelabras. Hi, Lilly!
