THE RETURN OF SLUTBOY

Oh, oh. The weather has turned nice, the workplace has finally calmed down a trifle, and my testosterone production feels like it's tripled. Everywhere I go, I see butts/legs/shoulders/eyes/arms/packages/mouths. Needless to say, Nature is calling, and honey, I ain't talkin' no bathroom break!

Take for instance the past sixty days. First, I slept with those two couples a weekend apart. I liked the Milwaukee couple's style, but found the Madison couple more attractive overall. I'm hoping to visit all four of them (two at a time—I'm good, but not that good!) on long weekends in their home towns soon. And although it's not that important, I've discovered the Paper Valley is all that over the Regency Suites, but not nearly as cool as the Raddison. Anyway...

Not long after my fling into married life, such as it was, I ran into Francis, an old fuck-buddy of mine. He was out on the town, looking just barely half of his thirty-five years, well-groomed and as tasty as always. I wrangled an invitation back to his place for a night of "Who's on Top?" Great sex, average kisser, occasionally does drugs, never calls back, always teases former partners out at the bars afterwards. If you get an invitation to Francis' private after bar parties, I highly recommend taking him up on the offer, but remember—he never likes to cuddle afterwards, and he doesn't take American Express (joke!).

The next evening I was still enjoying the smell of Francis when I saw Schneider. He's the bellboy/waiter/bartender type. We always tried jokingly to get each other torqued since the threesome we participated in about a year ago. He was standing on the other side of the bar, alone in a crowd, and I couldn't resist walking over to give him the time of day. After checking the signs, I could see he was interested in getting naked. He was a refreshing change: A top, fairly dominant without the annoying need for restraints or devices. I enjoyed having him hold me down. All the same, I wouldn't want the Schneider-type poking me every day, just as much as I wouldn't want a bottom-only type either. I like variety.

After a long weekend of not visiting the house I actually stay at, I stopped in for dinner with my roomies. Hey, I pay rent for my room, I might as well stop in there from time to time! Robert and Lu are the best and the worst roommates I've ever had, and I love them. I pay next to nothing in rent, eat out their fridge and run up the phone bill. It's kind of like being a houseboy to a straight couple. They wondered where I'd been, who I was with, and what I was doing. I put off the third degree by being honest while leaving out the important details.

Later on in the week, I found myself at the bar once again. I was playing bar dice and losing, not minding the haze of the tequila shots I ingested. I scanned the patrons sitting at the bar and realized it was a gallery of past entanglements. Oddly, I remembered them from where we had sex more than the exploit itself. There was The Car Hood, The Wraparound Couch, The Shower, The Motel 6 Floor, The Red Felt Pool Table, The Waterbed in the Basement, The Whirlpool...and I realized I was becoming more cruisy than a low-rider pickup truck on Main Street.

I stopped and thought about that for awhile. I drove my butt home to look at the first article I wrote. It reminded me that the life I had been leading for the past few months was not the life I was looking for. Sure, it was a lot of fun, and it wasn't like I was just having sex for the hell of it—I liked these guys. I just didn't want to be alone.

It was then I realized—again—that the practice of one-night stands is exactly what causes the loneliness, at least in me. You're OK for a day, but then you don't call each other, or find out how the other's day went, and where you're going out to dinner, and what you're doing together this weekend. It's just sex, and maybe 'Hello'-initiated smalltalk down the line.

Does this mean I'm going to stop going to the bars? No. Does it mean I'll never fling again in my life? Probably not. What it means is that before we 'do the deed' we're going to talk. Exchange phone numbers. Go out to a movie or dinner. Hang out at each others' homes. I want to become a friend and a boyfriend to another man as well as sexual partners.

As the weekend approaches, I take the those first few steps towards the life I want one more time. Maybe on the outside you won't be able to see any change. But when I start acting the way I would want another man to treat me, I feel better about who I am when I look in the mirror. I think that's important. What I'm trying to say is I think there's something else out there that I would be happier with, and it's time to start looking for it again.

I'll be seeing ya out and about.

CREAM CITY CHORUS SETS STAGE FOR 10th ANNIVERSARY

Planning for the Wisconsin Cream City Chorus 1996-97 season is already well underway, and includes three major concerts and several community appearances. This year, which marks the chorus' 10th anniversary, includes a few changes for the chorus, including new locations and schedule.

The first major concert of the season will be a truly traditional winter concert, a tribute to and revelry in the diversity of holy days and holidays at year's end...Christmas, Hannukkah, Winter Solstice and more, plus good old winter itself will be celebrated in song.

April, 1997, will find the chorus performing a classical concert, featuring Faure's Requiem and other pieces of remembrance for those who have left us due to AIDS. This event promises to offer music that will touch the hearts of all who attend.

The final concert, to be held at MCPA's Vogel Hall, will be the Chorus' festive Gay Concert...another night of gay pageantry, humor and the Second Annual Cream City Chorus silent auction.

The chorus is also auditioning new members to help fill out its strong core ensemble. Rehearsals begin Wed., August 7 at the First Unitarian Society on No. Astor St. To arrange for an audition, contact the Chorus office at 344-WCCC or write P.O. Box 1488, Milwaukee, WI 53201-1488.

Lower East Side National Night Out Observance in Milwaukee

The Lower East Side Event will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a community potluck at St. Hedwig's Hall, 1150 E. Brady St. Everyone is invited and admission will be either by bringing food to share or paying $5.

Singsational Productions presents 'Second Time Around,' entertainment from 7:00 to 8:15.

Milwaukee Mayor John Norquist, U.S. Senator Herb Kohl, Congressman Tom Barrett, Police Chief Arreola and other dignitaries are expected to participate.

Papa Joe

The number one story in the Wisconsin Leather scene is the closing of the Wreck Room, followed closely by the rumored demise of the 1100 Club. Both are closed for both have been sold; both to re-open as a student lounge and as The 1100 Club. Read on.

As reported some time back, MIAD made Bill K. an offer for the WR that he could refuse; that is, until they more than doubled it. $350 K turns out to be the just right to accomplish the terms of the sale as well provide for Bill's move to the Northern Wisc. where he will pursue his two favorite sports, fishing and lads.

When I talked to Bill, he said a quick lock up was necessary to get things done before the closing date this fall and still not cut into his summer sports. He also commented that not one of the rumors proved correct.

There are many memories that go with the bar, from the weekend it opened when I happened to be in Milwaukee. What little leather I owned, (jacket, vest and boots) I felt welcome for the first time since Chicago.

The T Bird front end, the Henhouse, the kitchen and the small back bar with the hay bales in the loft. The 2nd floor before it was finished, later the basement -- Wow, I am getting turgid.

The Silver Stars, The Argonauts of Wisconsin, The Castaways, The Oberons and The Condo Association all called it home and their scrapbooks are full of activities that seemed to happen since forever. Everything in its time and in its place. As with many losses, there is no replacement.

The Oberons, the only club still calling the WR home, will be seeking a new place to hang out and perhaps move in their large trophy case. I'll let you know if and where their monthly club nite is being held. There were several Bear events slated for the WR; keep an ear open for rescheduling.

I didn't get a chance to talk to Tim J, the WR's afternoon beverage host to find out where he will be plying his trade. You can bet his following will be there.

About The 1100 Club closing. Again the building was/is being sold to Michael, Bob et al. The one week close down was necessary to complete conditions of the sale prior to the sale closing date of Aug. 1. Sorry, guys, it doesn't get juicier than that. At press time, the restaurant may not be open on Friday, but the bar will.

Bob aka Grandma, got her seaman's licence and by the end of July, will be plying his trade in the galley of a research boat on the Great Lakes. He claims the money and bennies are great.

About the new bar that will be opening, the best I can do on that rumor is that someone casually mentioned "that it would be a good time to open another leather bar." If they do, I hope it will be in walking distance of The Boot Camp and The 1100 Club.

As I thought the Rodeo Riders guest bar night at the Boot Camp was the 20th. It is always nice to stay out late now and then. Beside a good time, we got to see old friends and admire the new studs and young pretties. The after-hour party was just too late for my hubby and me.

Back again and between quilt instead of guilt and Chigago, I don't know when we've all had so much fun. It was a quiz. Good to see you're on your toes.

No further word on the Gay re-opening under a new name, of the Knights Lounge, Broadway St., Green Bay. Would you guys let me know?

My apologies to Robert (Bob) Jansen, The Main Club, Superior, for failing to congratulate him on being named Honorary Grand Marshall of the Twin Cities Pride Parade. This honor is well deserved for his many years of service to the Gay communities South and West of Lake Superior. Having a Gay bar owned by a Gay person, makes a lot of difference. It is important to support them.

Regarding how you can get to me, feel free to send to Quest's U.S.P.S. or on-line addresses. If they don't have a link to me, you can e-mail me at PPA@AOL.COM or USPS, PO Box 341611, Milwaukee, WI 53234-1611.

If you are on line, drop a message and let me know where you are from. OK? Thanks.

About press releases and notice of events: Most, if not all, the area publications, Quest included, want to get them. I remember back when, I sent a newsy letter about something or other to InStep and Ron G called to asked "what do you want me to do with this?" I learned that most, if not all, of those announcements about events were not the work of some reporter calling around, but press releases sent by the event organizer.

Wisconsin Light and In Step did a half day seminar on making press releases. It was very informative; my copy of the handout walked. Could be they have copies available, or better yet, maybe the publishers will do it again. Don't miss if they do.

You say your favorite bar doesn't carry Quest (more importantly, my word of wit and wisdom), talk to the bar manager or owner or get a new bar. You really don't need to be that deprived.

IN MY OPINION Part III

Sub titled God + Gay = "guilt"? Or was Jesus queer?

Read Jim Senyszyn's letter, (Page 4, last issue of Instep) so I can drop three paragraphs. All I will add. "If Anita Bryant was right, Jesus is/was queer." A news service claimed she spoke to a school board meeting, demanding that all male teachers over thirty and still single be fired for they were queer and would molest and recruit the children. Christ, who was unmarried (addressed as Rabbi - teacher) was thirty something when he told his followers to bring the little children to him. . . . Was He also a pedophile?

What I am trying to say, you can read anything you want into the Bible and it takes a warped mind to have the mind set of the RRR.

Given # 1. Dr. Joyce Brothers, Dr. Ruth and my Harley Biker Buddy Maddog1200 (a certified shrink) and all of us, already know sex is a basic instinct found in cats, rats, elephants and chimpanzees as well as humans. I'll bet at one time, even Carrol Voltiola. BUT, unlike cats, rats, elephants, chimpanzees and maybe the RRR, we as human males don't have to wait for a female's estrogen to get our testosterone moving. Nor, even though we may find it enjoyable, do we have to sniff the fruit for ripeness before plucking. We as humans can do the act for the joy of it. Such is the difference in this basic instinct. This is a gift that we humans have.

Given #2. We being human have an evolved reasoning brain, turn on to many objects and situations like bondage and discipline, ropes and chains, heavy leather work boots and panty hose, etc. These are called fantasies and/or fetishes and are normal in men and women, Gay, non-Gay alike. Because of it we can control the "spilling of seed" with a thought. We can fantasize to fruition (aka choke the chicken). Being normal we have done it and if not severely impaired, will continue until late in life. Long before we reached the age of reasoning and long before I knew that the thing between my legs was for more than relieving pressure and initials in a snow bank, objects and persons caused excitement that I couldn't explain. It wasn't taught to me, it was just there. Can a child be sinful?? My God, being unable to do wrong, would not allow it.

Joyce Brothers wrote something like, "if you don't fantasize, you are either lying or something akin to brain dead."

Given #3. The Bible, Koran etc., are history books written by man as guides and who made the "word" fit their times and are best viewed as such. As extreme examples of what I mean, which of you would stand still for a woman in a red dress being stoned to death for wearing that red dress, or giving a widowed woman, her children and kitchen sink to a surviving brother.

Accepting the above means that I am normal when I say not only do I turn on to other men, I turn on to kinky sexual fantasies and fetishes.

And so do others every day, average solid pillars of our and non Gay communities. Animals don't.

Why would a supreme being make something that has to be hidden or be ashamed of? It didn't. It is a gift and there is no guilt - UNLESS - you have been taught guilt or abuse your gift.

Mel White said so,— read his book, Stranger at the Gate. Once you do, your struggle will be over.

So to those of you who like me, know you are queer and have been since day one, there is no need to struggle with your religion's teaching. Question your religion. If it don't stand up to examination, it ain't God's fault. Nor is it yours. (to be continued)

WI-USofA Pageant Plans Set

Once again the U.S. of A. Pageant System franchises have been past on to another promoter. Earlier this year Jingle Productions took control of the U.S. of A. After Tag Teams decision to leave the business, Jerry Bird the President of U.S. of A. Pageantry, Inc. contacted John Jacob and Randy Haddock offering them the franchises. With much consideration they formed what is now known as Jingle Productions.

Jacob also General Manager of The Pivot Club in Appleton had experience promoting and producing large shows and events. "The transition and subsequent work has been time consuming and educating, but everything is starting to come together quite well," said Jacob. Considering the enormous amount of work involved with promoting and producing these pageants they decided early to franchise out most of the Miss Gay Wisconsin U.S. of A. Preliminary Pageants. Jingle Productions felt this would give each Sub-Preliminary Pageant a different personality while maintaining the high standards of the U.S. of A. System.

With most of the Preliminary Pageants to the Miss Gay Wisconsin U.S. of A. already run, the much awaited announcement of the date for the State Pageant which is a preliminary to the national Pageant has been set.

Miss Gay Great Lakes U.S. of A. At-Large will be held at the Pivot Club on Sunday August 11, 1996, the two day Miss Gay Wisconsin U.S. of A. Pageant will also be held at the Pivot Club Saturday and Sunday September, 28 and 29, 1996. Anyone interested in running for the Miss Gay Great Lakes U.S. of A. At-Large Pageant or in one of the remaining Sub Preliminary Pageants please contact John or Randy at Jingle Productions 1-800-401-2748.

PAST/OUT

BY DAVID BIANCO

When did Rock Hudson's homosexuality become public knowledge?

Rock Hudson is an excellent example of the complex nature of the closet and public awareness of a prominent figure's homosexuality. Hudson was rumored to be gay from the earliest years of his career, yet some people denied he was gay even after he died of AIDS in 1985. As Hudson was both an active lover of men and the movie star who throughout the 1950s and 1960s seemed to personify manliness, his case is almost a textbook study of American anxieties over masculinity, sexuality, and fame.

Born Roy Scherer Fitzgerald in 1925, Hudson made his first major splash as an actor in the 1954 film Magnificent Obsession, in which he played an unruly playboy who becomes a surgeon. As a 29-year old bachelor, though, Hudson raised eyebrows throughout 1950s America, and articles with headlines such as "Too Busy for Love" appeared in the popular press. The scandal-happy Confidential wanted to do an expose on Hudson's homosexuality and even offered his lover $10,000 to discuss the subject, but no story appeared. Some say that Universal Studios offered Confidential some dirt on another one of its stars in order to keep Hudson's sexuality out of the publication.

To quash the rumors, Hudson quickly married Phyllis Gates (who Hudson later claimed was bisexual, although she denied that). The three-year marriage temporarily boosted Hudson's heterosexual image. But in the following decades, as Hudson established himself as a leading man in feature films and on TV's "McMillan and Wife," rumors about Hudson continued to spread, although it was never discussed explicitly in print. In 1971, someone sent fake invitations to the wedding of Hudson and Jim Nabors (TV's Gomer Pyle) to several gossip columnists. Although the pair had been good friends, they were not lovers and certainly never married — but the hoax still seems to have hurt Nabors' career. In Hudson's case, none of the rumors seemed to slow his fame as a masculine idol — or his pursuit of handsome men.

In the 1970s, Hudson became friends with Armistead Maupin, whose serial novel Tales of the City about gay and straight San Franciscans appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle. Maupin (among others) urged Hudson to come out and break down stereotypes about gays and lesbians. Hudson consistently demurred, considering his sexuality to be private and objecting to the public spectacle of the gay liberationists with their parades (which he once described as marching with a jar of Vaseline). Nonetheless, Hudson threw parties for dozens of handsome men and joined Maupin in exploring the sexual playground of 1970s San Francisco.

Maupin later satirized Hudson by including him as a character in Tales of the City, albeit identified only as _____. In one extended plot line, Maupin's gay character Michael Tolliver visits _____'s Los Angeles home, where he sleeps with _____. The movie star questions Michael's participation in the Gay Men's Chorus, contemplating why people make such a big deal out of being gay. Michael tells his host that gay organizations make it easier for gay people to be proud of their heritage — a heritage Michael informs _____ he's a part of.

Hudson was diagnosed with AIDS in mid-1984, although his disease remained a secret for more than a year. When he appeared increasingly gaunt in his role on Dynasty and other public appearances, his publicists insisted that he was simply dieting. He looked particularly ill in his last public appearance, which ironically was a commercial promoting his old friend Doris Day's new show on the Christian Broadcasting Network.

In July 1985, news of Hudson's disease hit the newspapers, garnering far more public attention about the disease than any previous AIDS-related story. Several newspapers and TV stations initially treated the story as proof that AIDS affected more than just gays and drug users. Amazingly, some gay-run AIDS organizations cooperated with this farce. A representative of one such organization even told the press that Hudson's illness proves that "AIDS is not a gay white male disease."

Soon, however, the Chronicle and several other newspapers ran lengthy stories about Hudson's decades-long struggle with vastly different public and private lives. The media coverage of Hudson's illness was often ridiculous — several news outlets raised the question of whether Linda Evans might now be infected since she had kissed Hudson (her co-star on Dynasty) on TV. Tasteless jokes abounded (Why is everyone in Hollywood terrified of AIDS? Because they've all had a piece of the Rock), but the widespread attention brought public awareness of the ongoing AIDS crisis to a new level. Calls to AIDS hotlines soared, and private-sector fund-raising for AIDS research skyrocketed, boosted by a $250,000 contribution from Hudson himself to jump-start the American Foundation for AIDS Research.

HIV TESTING - IF YOU HAVEN'T DONE IT, DO IT!

Knowledge is power and knowing your HIV status gives you more power than ever over your life and health! While BESTD Clinic and many others have always encouraged people to be tested, the news on the HIV/AIDS treatment front screams at persons who may be HIV infected to find out as early as possible.

A variety of new medications have been introduced and approved for use within the past six months. It is becoming very apparent that multi-faceted therapies are most effective in slowing the progress of the HIV virus and also dealing with its ability to skirt around particular drugs by mutating. There is also the professional wisdom of beginning therapy as early in the infection as possible for the best possible and longest lasting results.

There are many clinical and outreach testing opportunities around Milwaukee that provide a variety of days and times that should meet everyone's need. For appointments or information on where and how to be tested for HIV, call BESTD Clinic at (414) 272-2144.
