Mark in Madison vs. Green Bay Randy

by Jess Littleman

I'm the first one to admit I'm fried at the moment. Two cups of double capp and yesterday's beer bust are affecting my motor skills and speech centers. I'm not coming up with a clever opening, so I'll do what most other professional writers do when they hit a wall right before deadline: Plagiarize.

It was the best of weeks; it was the worst of weeks. Seven days ago, I was head over heels in like, heading towards love with Randall. We haven't been apart for more than twelve hours. At the same time, the pacing of what we're doing and where we are going feels great—comfortable. Not too fast, not too slow; the sex is wonderful, but not the only thing the relationship is built upon; we're sharing each other's lives without trampling on each other's privacy. I like where we are at, and so does Randall.

So when he reminded me he was going out of the country for vacation for a week, I was sad to see him go, but it was no big deal. He had made these plans long before we became itemized, and it just slipped my mind that this was the Wednesday he was flying out.

Thursday rolls around. After putting in extra hours, my boss harps at me one more time to schedule my days off for this year. When I get back home, the ID'er light flashes at me. I scan the screen, and realize it's Mark from Madison. He wrote me a week or so ago 'just to say hi.' The thought then hit me—MADISON AWAITS YOU!!!

In just twenty minutes I called half the people in my database and finalized my plans for getting out of town for the weekend. In less than twenty-five hours, my dream had been realized by watching quite possibly the largest penis ever videotaped in the back room at Manoeuvres.

I met Mark and Robbie around midnight at the bar. We drank, we talked, we went back to Robbie's new place to do what was on everybody's mind since the bar-pee like a racehorse on steroids. Sleep came quickly.

The next day could be summed up in three words: Fah Byoo Lous. Robbie and Mark hung on each other through breakfast and the Farmer's Market. Lunch at some seaside restaurant up to Antiquing (gay men and old furniture? Is it a first?). They showed me a great time. Robbie wasn't feeling well, so Mark invited me to stay in Janesville for the night. Not my first choice, but since I was on vacation and I was just playing it by ear anyways, I agreed.

Mark showed me around his hometown. We ate and drank and made eyes at the other two and a half gay people in the city. We took a walk along the banks of the overflowing river and drove through the historical house district. All the while and almost up until dawn, we talked. I was really enjoying Mark's company, so I never even thought twice about going to bed with him. I mean, not all the way to bed with him, just sleep in the same room as him--the room with air conditioning. In what might actually be a first for me, I put on clothing to go to bed--loungewear pants and a tee. As I crawled under the covers, Mark graciously took the hint, kissed me gently on the cheek, turned out the light and pulled up the covers.

Man, was I relieved! If Mark would have made moves towards me, I would not have been appreciative, nor would I have been able to resist him. As I drifted off to sleep in the dark, I realized that regardless of what else happened that weekend, I was cheating on Randall. I was enjoying the company of Mark, and we were being more intimate than most two people are as 'just friends.'

Sleep came easy. A few hours later, I got up to go to the bathroom one last time. I wasn't really even awake (I hope I remembered to put the seat up before I whizzed!) and crawled back into bed. Actually, I crawled a little too far and ended up laying half on top of my host. Soon afterwards, he shifted like his arm was falling asleep and wrapped himself around me. Oh, oh a little voice tried to say in my brain, but another area of my body awoke before I go to full consciousness. I turned around and kissed Mark hard like a lover would. He kissed me back, and we spent the rest of the early morning hours making passionate love to each other.

The rest of the trip was just as wonderful. Although we mutually agreed not to let on to Robbie, we held hands whenever we could. When I left Madison, Mark and the rest of my friends, I felt great and greatly confused.

Back in Green Bay, I had a day or so before Randy came home, and during that time I mulled over what I was going to do. Fact: I was more attracted to Mark in Madison than Green Bay Randy. Fact: Mark said he wasn't ready for a long-term relationship. Fact: I don't do distance relationships. Fact: I still felt a lot of great things for Randy, as he did for me. Fact: He wouldn't put up with me cheating on him. Fact: I didn't know where I was going with Randy. Fact: I'm confused.

As I finish this installment, I'm still not one hundred percent sure how I would resolve this part of my life. I knew I would remain quiet to Randall about what occurred between Mark and myself. But, as for the future, particularly how I still wanted Mark in my life somehow. I also didn't want to give up Randall. I was in limbo.

I decided to write a quick note to him. I sat down on my bed to write, and stared at a blank piece of paper for an hour, the writer not able to find enough of the right words to tell another man how I felt. Finally, I just scribbled a couple of lines:

Mark - I love you. I hope that's OK. Jess

I folded the letter into an envelope and placed it in my nightstand drawer, where it still sits. I hope someday I get up the nerve and mail it, but for right now it's enough just to know I said it. There are a lot of consequences to those words, and I hope I'm up for whatever comes next.

Papa Joe

Already thirty some persons signed on to joined the Leather contingent for the AIDS walk. Title holders in the contingent will include Mr. Chicago Leather 1996 Jeff Affolter and Mr. S.E. WI Leather 1996, Jerry Straley. All persons of the leather community are invited to join them. You can sign up any time before the walk at MM Festival Park (Summerfest Grounds) where there will be a table called "United Leather."

After the Walk, 4 to 7 PM, Jerry S, et. al. will co-host a beer bust & raffle with The Castaways MC. Again, this event will take place at The 1100 Club. Spread the word and make this a show of the unity of our community.

Lest I forget to mention it, Jerry (formerly of Tulsa) will be taking the early Sunday red eye back from Tulsa, OK. where he is judging the Mr. Tulsa Leather Contest that weekend.

Steve J - AOW, get a replacement so I can get the Green Bay dish.

For that matter, anyone, anywhere, on line, send Leather dish to PPAJOE@aol.com - - if you don't want your name mentioned just say so. Bear in mind that I don't spread evil dish or dirt, just fact or fun. That is, unless you heard a good rumor - - computer humor - C: enter: ### - - get it??

Rumor has it, The Argonauts will have a home page soon. This will put them in the league with The Oberons. Friend and computer guru Tim J, announced same a couple of issues back.

Before you all think I am a whiz with this online stuff, let me s'plain. - I know "activate flash secession now" and "download". Please don't push this old queer too fast.

Forgot to mention the Argonauts revived an old tradition at NorthWoods- Veranda Club High Tea - - This rather formal event is attended by the more genteel set where the young and prettys amuse the dodderers with sedate games, finger sandwiches and God awful punch.

And speaking of God awful punch, plans for The Castaways MC - anniversary run - 2nd weekend in November - you can sign up now. See a Castaway or check in at the 1100 Club.

By the time you read this, The Men of Rubber's field trip will have happened. This private party required an invite, so if you tried to get in at the last minute and couldn't, know capacity was reached.

For the most part there are many more bottoms than tops. Many come with the hope of a fulfilling scene. This party will be rigged in that four hot and experienced tops have been invited to facilitate their needs. Hope it works for all.

Also, The Oberons club night at Just Us will be over. Hope you all had a chance to get there and their "Homeless in Milwaukee" theme is successful. Sure was last month.

MAD CITY DISH

By John S - Pledgemaster Unicorns of Madison (slightly edited) -

Unicorns under new management Richie L, President; John L, treasurer; Derek L, secretary and me, Pledgemaster - some new changes being considered include by-laws changes, pledge process re-worked and revived, a new commitment to communication. Our present plan is to focus on local area concerns, and avoid spreading ourselves too thin. We are considering doing a run every second year.

Robert D's sendoff dungeon party was smashing success. We made two toys for the dungeon, one later dubbed "barcalounger of bondage" in which the guest of honor was trussed up like a thanksgiving turkey - - He is a gem of a person and we miss him terribly but wish him well.

Still no Rod's. We're happy that the HUD clearance went through and we heard the Scheel family is now arranging financing.

Sincerely, horny - John

MADCITY DISH.

by Derek - Secretary - Unicorns of Madison

We (The Unicorns) are in the rebuilding process. We have two new pledges. They should have a ball at your run. I think it will be a big turnout for us. We are working on getting coat check going at maneuvers for this fall and winter. No activity yet in the "pit" where the hotel stood. Rumor has it Greg is suppose to start at the end of Sep.????!!!!

We are also planning on getting over to terrorize Milwaukee some time this month :-):P Some of us will be over this Sat. for the club nite and some of us to the party on the 14th. You will be seeing more of the Unicorns this fall.

As far as Madcity gossip. Same ones sleeping around, getting drunk and trashy, etc. nothing new.

If you get a chance, could you slap a blurb in column about the diversity of leather. We have run into a perception problem that is common to all leather clubs. "We would like to join, but we heard you were all into heavy SM". Tell them we are not like that, we are a leather fraternity and open to all fetishes! In fact, half of our members are strict fetish people.

:-) See you soon. Derek

Thanks, guys: - you said it best - and ain't it the truth. Did you know the misconception(s) usu-and penpals in the future for all ages 15-75.

The network will be run by Timothy Hanson, an Omnifest subscriber and a member of the community.

"Chicago, San Francisco, New York and other openly gay communities all more than likely have networks like this, so it's time that Milwaukee follows the trend," says Hanson. Community members from all over the first gay rights state are invited to send info to this network.

At present, Omnifest is available only in the City of Milwaukee, but plans are underway to launch the system on the Internet.

Comments, concerns or suggestions can be sent to thanson@omnifest.uwm.edu

Integrity/Metro Milwaukee Changes Meeting Days

At its first September get-together, Integrity/Metro Milwaukee changed its regular meeting day to the first Tuesday of each month; therefore, their next meeting is October 1.

Integrity is a recognized organization within the Episcopal Church which seeks to minister to its gay and lesbian members and develop goals that serve its group and community.

The group meets the second Tuesday of the month (next is Oct. 8) for a service in the church at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 914 E. Knapp, 7 pm. After the service, there is a social, speakers and discussions and a short meeting in the parlor of the church, concluding around 9 pm.

All are welcome. Park in the rear of the church and enter from the door off the parking lot.

FMI, call 276-6277.

FREE FLU SHOTS IN MILWAUKEE

The flu season upon us, free flu shots will be offered in Milwaukee on Oct. 17 and 22, with the ladies and gentlemen of The Gay & Lesbian Nurses Association administering them.

The shots will be offered at The M & M Club (upper level banquet room) on Thursday, Oct. 17, 6-8 pm, and on Tuesday, Oct. 22, 8-10 pm.

The vaccinations continue to be recommended for individuals who are immune compromised and their care takers.

Additional sponsors include The M & M Club, The Milwaukee Health Department, BESTD Clinic, St. Camillus HIV/AIDS Ministry and our friends at In Step and Q-Voice.

The shots are free; however, donations will be accepted.

FMI, contact BESTD Clinic at 272-2144 or St. Camillus HIV/AIDS Ministry at 259-4664.

HOMOSEXUALITY & THE BIBLE NEW SUN. EVENING SERVICES AT ANGELS OF HOPE

Rev. Ken Hull, pastor of Angels of Hope MCC Church in Green Bay, has announced Sunday evening services will start October 13 at the church's new home, 614 Forest St., and he will begin the Sunday 7 pm services with a series of five sermons on "Homosexuality and the Bible."

Says Rev. Hull, "I believe the series should be of great interest to all of us. We will discuss what the Bible really says or does not say on the subject of homosexuality. Everyone is most welcome."

Angels of Hope is growing in its new home; Sunday morning 11 o'clock services will continue as usual.

ARGONAUTS OF WISCONSIN CLUB NIGHT IN GREEN BAY

The Argonauts of Wisconsin will hold a club night on Sat., Oct. 12, at Brandy's II in Green Bay. A beer/soda bust with food will be featured from 9-2 for $6. Raffle tickets will be sold for many great drawings throughout the evening.

All are welcome to this and any Argonauts event. Out-of-town guests may book a hotel room by calling Steve Jones (414) 494-5029 prior to Oct. 4.

NEW LES-BI-GAY COMPUTER NETWORK LAUNCHED

A new gay, lesbian bisexual computer network has been launched on Milwaukee's Omnifest, a local community computing services funded by local organizations.

The network will feature local events, local organizations and much more. In addition, there will be spaces available for gay, lesbian and bisexual discussion, and a page set aside for personal ads ally is that the inexperienced believe the knockers. Knockers are generally low self esteem persons who knock to feel good. Let's do our part to set the record right.

You hit on one of the goals for this column. Hopefully, the newcomer to our very diverse "scene(s)" get the inside poop, friendly dish and not crap.

The above rubber party is a good example. They do to each other that which makes them feel good, no more, hopefully no less.

Your subject matter will be addressed in future issues as I continue - -

Love to all - still looking for a good boot boy - -

IN MY OPINION Part IV

Sub titled God + Gay = "guilt"? - Conclusion and more

If you remember, a couple issues back, I talked about how important it is to believe that you as a Gay person with kinks and fetishes are normal. Consider these as God's gifts, not burdens or punishment. There should be no guilt, no recrimination and no blaming.

Your desires, just like those with desires for muff diving and the missionary position with persons of the opposite sex were given to you by a Higher Power - - Be grateful and comfortable with it. You don't have to have a T shirt printed up, but if you do, why not??

But above all, don't abuse it. When someone's kink harms another, they are without question a sicko in the category of Gacy and Dahmer, regardless if the acts are that violent.

How would you call it when the guy in a cop uniform picks you up in a popular bar, gets you home and pulls out a real loaded revolver (you can see the bullets) and says to you, "I want to splatter your brains on the wall?" One of the young men I interviewed said it happened to him right here in Milwaukee by a guy wearing a DC cop uniform. I have been told that another can verify it, but, for now, let us call this hearsay.

How far can a scene go?? Is it right for this person to create such terror just to fulfill his fantasy? Leaving out the probability of an accidental discharge of the gun, is it right that at your expense, he may have had a rush?

You friggen A, it ain't. Those persons need to be exposed by all who know them. I don't care if they are pillars of the community, a friend, etc. All in the know (and the cop above was) accept responsibility for saying or doing nothing. It is too late if the "accident" happens.

Beside the kid mentioned above, I have known three young men, gorgeous inexperienced kids, who got into dangerous situations, two are dead, murdered. The other is brutally scarred for life. Yes, they were heavy duty bottoms, living life on the edge of what proved to be a fatal attraction. Had the word been out on the two murderers, would it have made a difference? I can't answer that, but when the third kid got away and spoke up, the disappearance of young men from the same area stopped.

Most of the time, these persons do not come to the bars where they might be recognized but now and again they do. When they do and if we know or suspect something, speak up for we are our brother's keeper.

To you guys looking for a heavy scene, make sure it works for you. Don't be afraid to ask questions of the person coming on to you. Do others know him? Know and feel secure with the "scene" ahead of time. Let him know that others know you are leaving with him by introducing him around. Be careful of those in their cars in the lot or side streets.

To those of you who have been in questionable and downright scary or dangerous situations, speak up loudly and clearly, shove it back in their face, push their shit down their throats in front of everybody - especially where they hang out, at work and at home.

And finally, to you guys who have been around for awhile, accept the responsibility of being a mentor. If you see a questionable situation about to go down, take steps to make it safe or intervene. Regardless of what may be thought of you, if you know of a person with the potential of going too far, speak up for the burden could be heavy if you don't.

It is the memory of how those two beautiful young men died and the trembling voice and sobbing of the third that I write this.

Next time, I will get off my soap box and talk about nice things like top, bottom, passive, dominant, butch and fem and all those words like "Old guard code" used to describe and define relationships in our community.

We'll talk again soon. Papa Joe

PAST/OUT

BY DAVID BIANCO

How did Billie Jean King come out?

Women's tennis - like women's golf, men's ice skating, and other sports - has long been subject to rumors about the sexual orientation of many of its most prominent participants. Unlike Martina Navratilova, who spoke at the 1993 March on Washington and served as a plaintiff in the case that successfully overturned Colorado's anti-gay Amendment 2, 1970s tennis champion Billie Jean King has been much more private about her lesbian relationships. But a 1981 lawsuit brought her sexuality - and, by extension, that of women's tennis - into the public eye.

Billie Jean King had long been a pioneer in women's tennis - from breaking barriers by wearing shorts on the court instead of a skirt to helping to found the Virginia Slims Tennis Tournament. Seven years after marrying Larry King (not the talk show host) in 1965, Billie Jean began a relationship with Marilyn Barnett, a Beverly Hills hairdresser. Barnett even moved into the Kings' Malibu house, and Barnett was at Billie Jean's side as her "secretary" when she defeated Bobby Riggs in the much-hyped "Battle of the Sexes" at the Houston Astrodome. The women were not public about their relationship, and the tennis star gained a reputation as a "women's liber" - but she was relatively safe from suspicion as a married woman.

But in 1979 the affair ended, and the Kings planned to sell the Malibu house, worth about three quarters of a million dollars. Barnett refused to leave, and became distraught. She attempted suicide, and ended up wheelchair-bound because of a broken back suffered by jumping off the balcony of the Malibu house. After a second suicide attempt (by drug overdose) failed, Barnett began to threaten to go public with more than 100 amorous letters Billie Jean had sent her. Despite receiving $25,000 in hush money from the Kings, Barnett was not satisfied and in April 1981 brought a "palimony suit" against the tennis star, alleging that she had been promised financial support for life. Coming just two years after the celebrated palimony case brought by the former girlfriend of movie star Lee Marvin, the press gave considerable attention to the lawsuit against King - especially the tabloids, which described the affair as a "galimony" case.

Two days after the suit was filed, Billie Jean King called a press conference in which she declared, "I've decided to talk with you as I've always talked - from the heart." With her husband at her side, King conceded that she had been Barnett's lover and called the relationship "a mistake." Larry King publicly took the blame for the affair, by saying that he had neglected his wife through his frequent business trips. In subsequent interviews, the tennis champion repeatedly denied being a lesbian, telling People "I hate being called a homosexual, because I don't feel that way. It really upsets me." Her 1982 autobiography rejected the very concept of labeling her sexuality.

A Los Angeles Superior Court judge threw out the case, calling Barnett's use of the letters "certainly close to extortion," but the scandal nonetheless clearly hurt King's career. She found herself heckled on the court during the summer of 1981, and she lost six endorsement contracts. In addition, Avon cosmetics threatened to withdraw its sponsorship of women's tennis as a whole.

At the time of the Barnett lawsuit, several publications ran stories exploring the extent of homosexuality in professional sports. Some of these stories were sensationalist - calling lesbianism "rampant" in women's tennis or questioning whether homosexuals were appropriate role models for children. But other news outlets were more pro-gay in their approach to the issue, notably Sports Illustrated, which declared, "The sex lives of individual athletes are strictly their own business." One Newsweek writer wrote: "Billie Jean managed to turn a tawdry legal blackmail attempt by an ex-girlfriend into a personal portrait in courage."

In the decade after the scandal, King was largely out of the public eye. But she did make a bold appearance at a tribute to Navratilova in the summer of 1993. At a fund-raising event for the 1994 Gay Games (for which Navratilova was the spokeswoman), King thanked her fellow athlete (and partner in victory in the 1979 Wimbledon women's doubles tournament) for helping her understand her own sexuality. She declared: "One thing I love about Martina is that she demands acceptance on equal terms for all of us. Not tolerance, but acceptance. Because she is comfortable in her own skin, she helps all of us be more comfortable in ours."
