Nothing Like a Quickie

It's another Friday night. The bar is filled with a thick combination of machined smoke and hazy customers. This is the fifth time I reach down for my highball and discover nothing but the rocks. I get the attention of Greg for a third of whatever I'm drinking tonight. The dance floor crowd, such as it is, dances to yet another white-guy-thinks-he's-a-rapper-while-his-dark-and-lovely-girlfriend-screams-out-the-same-line song (not that I don't like the tune, mind you). The crowd is slowly shifting into a new mode; the personnel and the persona changes as the big and little hands of my watch both point up at "12". I feel like a change of scene, so I tip the counter in front of me inadequately and head upstairs.

The music follows me up the thin stairwell past the pool hall into the second-floor bar. As I sit down, I'm assaulted by the once-over generally associated with pick-up scenes. I try to make eye contact with no avail. This bartender up here—what's his name again?—takes notice my full mug and just smiles as he walks by. I start looking for a place to park it and notice that it's people I don't feel like talking to, ex boyfriends, and overnight guests who never called back. Oh, and one straight woman. This is not promising. I'm thinking to myself. I give it another five minutes and head back downstairs for a shot with Greg before calling it.

I shimmy through the dance mass and I get into the only open spot on the bar. I'm taking a swig of my libation and I feel someone looking at me, so I turn towards the instigator standing under the deejay booth. He is looking right at me. He is at least a head taller than his friends. He is wearing his baseball cap backwards. And There He Is.

The story we share is not uncommon. We introduce ourselves; we dance; we talk as small as the ambient noise levels allow. We walk each out into the parking lot; we make plans to meet a friend's house; we sleep together. We spend an impromptu weekend together; we eat in and go out; we watch cable. And in the end, we both discover we've run out of things to talk about by noon on Sunday.

He talks to me a day later. "Well, hello. I called this morning." "Hi, yourself. I guess you got my message I'd be here." "I'm not ready for this." "I know. That's OK." Hug. We keep on walking our own ways.

It's another Friday night. Greg just delivered highball number three into my hands, taking less than whatever cash is appropriate from the shrinking pile in front of me. I'm not sure if the haze I see is from the fog machine or the drinks. The crowd is not the same as it was this summer. Or maybe I'm just seeing it differently. Any train of thought is vanquished by the flickering on of the fluorescent tubes above my head. I make my goodbyes and walk out into the brisk morning air.

It feels like autumn suddenly; I think to myself as I quicken the pace to my car. When did that change happen? Things are changing. Let's hope for the better.

Papa Joe

Two club nights happened this past weekend, I missed them both. In Milwaukee, the OBERONS at B's, still on their "Homeless in Milwaukee" theme, raising money for children with AIDS.

In Green Bay, the ARGONAUTS at BRANDY'S II, a beer/soda bust, which if they had told their Alumni, you, my dear and faithful reader, would have known about it. Said Alumni is crushed. Reba, that's a no-no, are you pissed at me?

Change in the THE FIREBIRDS Rendezvous scheduled for Oct. 26. NOT a club night at the Boot Camp Salon; instead, it is a Halloween costume (optional) party at the Hotel Wisconsin. The party begins at mid-night, has a $10.00 entrance fee which includes refreshments. Walk-ins are invited There is a $100.00 prize for the best costume.

Out-of-towners staying over? Check out the Hotel Wisconsin (414-299-9707), where special rates have been arranged. Mention the Firebirds. Call FB's hot line at 414-223-1142 for more info :- ) DUH! (-:

From the CASTAWAYS MC's, the following, taken from a letter, which is edited slightly.

"The Castaways are busy preparing for their 17th anniversary, Nov. 8 - 10. As of today, they have guests signed up from Atlanta and Phoenix as well as persons from many clubs much closer.

The weekend will start with Friday registration at the Hotel Wisconsin. Ten PM, at the 1100 Club, a beer/soda bust with the proceeds going to the Oberons Christmas Club for Children with AIDS

The weekend highlight will be the Saturday afternoon show (public welcome) featuring Ma Barker and her boys, again The 1100 Club. Later that evening will be the cocktail and dinner party, available separately for $25.00. The deadline is Nov. 4.

If you are interested, you can get applications from any Castaway member, The 1100 Club, or write them at PO Box 1697, Milwaukee, WI 53201-1697.

The Castaways have been busy traveling the country attending other LL club runs, anniversaries and activities. These cities include Minneapolis, Kansas City, Hilbert, Las Vegas, Grand Rapids, South Bend, Green Bay, Des Moines, St. Louis and Chicago. Local activities included joint club nights with the Unicorns of Madison, the Rodeo Riders of Chicago. A joint club night with the Firebirds was part of the "Get Links Project" of Mr. Chicago Leather and International Mr. Leather.

Thirty two members and friends traveled by bus to Chicago to sponsor a cocktail party at Clark's on Clark, in honor of the Chicago Hellfire Club's 25th anniversary.

From there it was off to the Eagle where they held a late club night. Breakfast at The 1100 Club awaited them when they arrived back at 6:30 AM Sunday.

Activities for '97 already firmed up include two joint ventures with the Argonauts of Wis.; The Daddy Weekend - April 26 & 27 - and Northwoods.

At least one bus trip is planned, details TBA. They are also looking to do joint club nights with other clubs either at home or other cities."

Nov 10, afternoon, THE SATURDAY CONDO ASSOCIATION will hold traditional rites inducing new inductees and others wishing to renew their vows. "Her Leadership" being utterly deposed, will turn the official prosthesis over to "Lesser Her Leadership" who will preside as facilitator of these wholly rights. Her Grace, the Grand Dutches will ably assist.

Thank you for your feedback regarding In My Opinion.

About the young men who got into scenes which went too far. The gist of the comments relate to when, what and where as well putting our lifestyle in a bad light.

I didn't explain to the newer readers of this column; "In My Opinion" is aimed at those looking at entering our Community. They, with the same desires, lusts and fantasies that you and I have/had and maybe the guilt of "I am weird or sick," need to know they are normal.

They also need to know there are some who would take advantage of a novice, for that matter, anyone. They should know they can ask question or speak up and where to turn for assistance. We old timers may have developed an eye for trouble and should be available to help them.

I didn't think it necessary to say it is not just our scene where these types can be found. Far from it, you will find trouble anywhere babe, in all walks of life, sexual persuasions and in the religious right. Just read the paper for a couple of weeks.

I failed to say these incidents took place ten, as long as ten-plus years ago. In the Metro Chicago area the first three; JJ was picked up and killed by a serial killer who drove truck, not from a Gay bar. G was killed by a person he went home with from a Gay bar. DJ was knifed by a older man he approached in a park. The gun incident, spring '96, out of a Milwaukee Gay bar.

In light of Dahmer, Gacy and other wierdos, it goes without saying "it could happen today, even in your town." Please believe me when I say - if you and I can, by our openness, mentoring or alertness, prevent another incident, we must give it a shot.

PAST/OUT

BY DAVID BIANCO

What was the custody battle over Sharon Kowalski?

The recent discussions and debates over the question of same-sex marriage have to be understood in the context of the decades-long struggle by same-sex couples for legal recognition of their relationships. In the 1980s, no couple did more to raise awareness of the injustice of American family law than Karen Thompson and Sharon Kowalski.

In 1979, Thompson and Kowalski became lovers, exchanging rings and naming each other as life insurance beneficiaries. Living in the town of St. Cloud, Minnesota, neither was public about her lesbian identity, nor was the nature of their relationship clear to anyone but their closest friends. Thompson and Kowalski were anything but gay-rights activists - Thompson even voted for Ronald Reagan for President in 1980.

A tragic accident on a Sunday night in November 1983 changed all that. Kowalski, then 28, was hit by a drunk driver while driving her car, and she suffered severe brain damage, losing the ability to walk, care for herself, or even speak more than a few words at a time. During the first several months of Kowalski's hospitalization, Thompson was at her side, providing love and support during her painstaking recovery. At first, the Kowalski family thought Thompson was a good friend, and they appreciated her help. But eventually Sharon's parents began to ask questions about the nature of the pair's relationship, and with a psychologist's guidance, Thompson explained that Sharon was her lover.

The Kowalskis did not take the news well. Calling Thompson "sick" and "crazy," they denied her further visitation rights and even accused her of sexually abusing their disabled daughter. They moved Sharon to another Minnesota facility several hours from Thompson's home, even though several doctors had noted that Sharon responded best to therapy when she was in Thompson's presence, and even though Sharon repeatedly indicated her desire to be reunited with her lover.

An intense legal battle ensued. At first, Thompson focused on the right to visit her lover. The Kowalskis and Minnesota courts denied her that right for almost four years. Thompson gave speeches and raised funds for her legal battle throughout the nation, even writing a book entitled Why Can't Sharon Kowalski Come Home?. The couple's plight became a rallying point for lesbian activists throughout the country - but it also found much resonance for gay men, many of whom were themselves dealing with legal issues surrounding visitation and guardianship rights as AIDS repeatedly pitted devoted lovers against anti-gay parents. In August 1988, more than a dozen cities around the country held "Free Sharon Kowalski Day" rallies to raise public awareness of the case.

In January 1989, Thompson finally won the right to visit her lover, although Sharon's father Donald remained Sharon's legal guardian. When the pair reunited, Sharon was moved to tears and typed "I love you" on her keyboard.

But Thompson's legal battle was not over. Donald Kowalski had recently petitioned the court to be released from his legal guardianship of his daughter due to his own health concerns. Despite the fact that Thompson was the only individual to petition for guardianship, a Minnesota court awarded custody of Sharon Kowalski to a woman it called a "neutral third party." A friend of the Kowalski family, Karen Tomberlin was anything but "neutral." Tomberlin had shown little interest in Sharon other than to keep her away from her lesbian lover. In awarding guardianship to Tomberlin, the court criticized Thompson for invading Sharon's privacy by publicly revealing her as a lesbian and using her situation to raise money. Thompson, who had never before been a political activist or even an open lesbian, had a simple response: If she didn't reveal the nature of their relationship, how could she argue that she had a right to visitation? And if she didn't raise money for legal fees, how could she defend her position in court?

The case finally came to an end in 1991, when a Minnesota Court of Appeals reversed the lower court's decision and awarded guardianship to Thompson. The court's decision contained words of encouragement for lesbian and gay activists who hoped the government would move toward greater recognition of same-sex families:

"All the medical testimony established that Sharon has the capacity reliably to express a preference in this case, and she has clearly chosen to return home with Thompson if possible. This choice is further supported by the fact that Thompson and Sharon are a family of affinity, which ought to be accorded respect."

Cream City Chorus Announces Site of Dec. 14 Holiday Concert

The Wisconsin Cream City Chorus, off to a busy October start, has announced their Dec. 14 holiday concert will be presented at Cross Lutheran Church.

The Chorus performed at the October 6 Sunday worship service at Cross and also at the Coming Out Day celebration sponsored by the HRL and PFLAG at the Milwaukee Art Museum, also on October 6.

For more info about the Chorus and its upcoming events, or to inquire about possible performances, call the chorus office at 344-9222.

Faulkenberg - An Unfinished Life Exhibit Nov. 1 at BESTD Gallery

A new showing of the work of gay artist Jim Faulkenberg will open at the BESTD Gallery on Fri., Nov. 1 and run thru Dec. 31.

Following the popular "Faulkenberg Retrospective" earlier this year, the new show is entitled "Faulkenberg - An Unfinished Life" and will feature works few have ever seen.

Mary Faulkenberg Schultz, Jim's wife, has put together this exhibit remembering that his perfectionist nature might have objected to using works not up to his finished standards. That is just what she wanted to share with Milwaukee - his unfinished life, cut short by AIDS in 1992.

The gallery is located at 1240 E. Brady St. (first floor) and the hours will be Mon., Tues. & Wed. 10-9; Thurs. & Fri. 10-5. FMI call 272-2144.

Nov. 2 Halloween Masquerade Ball to Feature Robert Nugent Jones, The Resentments and FfWEep

The Halloween Masquerade Ball, a benefit for BESTD Clinic, Holton Street Clinic & MAP, will be staged Nov. 2 in the ballroom at the Wisconsin Hotel, 720 N. Old World Third St.

Nugent is a singer, songwriter, synthesist and entertainer. His original pop style is heavily influenced by Erasure, Madonna and Pet Shop Boys. His performances are enhanced by his unique, upbeat dancing and singing.

He's already performed for thousands in venues as large as Shoelkopf Stadium in Ithaca, NY to as small as Step N Brew Cafe in Madison.

He was seen most recently in Milwaukee at the Links Block Party last month.

Honey West to Debut New CD!

Chicago---Honey West, one of Chicago's most-beloved cabaret performers, announces she is spending this month in the studio completing recording her debut CD - "Take Honey West Home" - for release in November "just in time for holiday sales."

Jim Casey of BuzzWerks, Inc., Kevon Smith of Island Recording and West's new personal manager, Douglas L. Hartzell of Entertaining Marketing, Inc. will collectively produce the debut CE under the banner of West Recording, Inc.

Ten of Honey's most requested showstoppers will be featured; the release will coincide with a concert at the 2,500-seat Vic Theatre, Belmont and Sheffield, Chicago, close to Thanksgiving.

WOW...what a night August 17th turned out to be!

*(THE TIARA....THE CERVICAL COLLAR
THE APPLAUSE....THE SIRENS*

THE WALK DOWN THE RUNWAY...THE RIDE IN THE AMBULANCE)

First...an excellent turnout at Napalese Lounge for the '96 Ms.

Guernsey contest. A sincere thank you to everyone who put your money where your mouth was and donated more than $6,000 to Center Project while putting the Ms. Guernsey tiara on my big, blonde bouff.

And then there was the little matter of that telephone pole. Now that the fog has cleared from and staples are all out, the bones are fusing and the majority of skin is my normal pasty white rather than that very attractive purple-ish/blue, I've come to realize that you...my friends, my family, my fellow contestants, my cohorts in crime...are once again here when needed. Your dollars and your prayers...your visits, your telephone calls and your general support mean more to me than you'll ever know.

Despite the damage I did on that night, I consider myself one very lucky Mona. First, of course, that I'm still alive to cause as much trouble as humanly possible for a long time yet. But close in second place, I consider myself a very lucky man that I'm surrounded by such kindness and generosity and caring. You have proven once again what an outstanding community I am involved with, and I'm very proud to be a part of it and very grateful to be on the receiving end of that caring. I thank you from the bottom of my heart!

Lots of love,
Mona
