PAST/OUT

BY DAVID BIANCO

November 2, 1976 (20 years ago this week):

Elaine Noble and Allan Spear are re-elected as the nation's only two openly gay state legislators.

Who were some of the first openly gay elected officials?

In the mid-1970s, the gay and lesbian movement reached a new phase when the first open gays and lesbians began to win election as public officials. Gays had campaigned for public positions as early as 1961, when openly gay drag entertainer Jose Sarria won 5,600 votes in his race for the San Francisco Board of Supervisors. Other open gays ran for office in the next 13 years, and at least one of them won - Kathy Kozachenko of the Ann Arbor, Michigan County Council.

But in late 1974 one gay man and one lesbian burst onto the political scene as openly gay legislators. In November of that year Elaine Noble was elected a state representative in Massachusetts, and one month later Minnesota state senator Allan Spear revealed his homosexuality in a newspaper interview.

The openly lesbian Noble - a former cocktail waitress, educator, and community volunteer - ran as a Democrat for a seat in the Massachusetts House representing Boston's Fenway district. She narrowly won the primary and defeated her Republican November opponent with nearly 60 percent of the vote.

In office, Noble found herself torn between her goals as a legislator representing a mostly straight, elderly, and poor district and the demands of the gay and lesbian community that she be focus on "their" issues. In more than one occasion, she was accused of "selling out" and acting against the best interests of gays and lesbians. For example, when 2 dozen gay men were accused of pedophilia in Boston, she quickly held a news conference and condemned the accused men (most of whom were never found guilty). In 1976, she flew to a fund raiser in San Francisco to raise money for the straight, pro-gay politician who was running against Harvey Milk for the California Assembly.

On the other hand, Noble did try (albeit unsuccessfully) to pass a statewide job-protection bill for gays and lesbians and certainly helped break down barriers and stereotypes among legislators in Massachusetts and nationwide. After she served two terms, the district lines were redrawn, and she found herself in the same district as her ally, then-closeted gay legislator Barney Frank. Rather than face off against Frank in a primary, Noble ran for the United States Senate in 1978, but she lost the primary to future presidential contender Paul Tsongas.

Noble left elected office with some bitterness toward the community that had both embraced and scorned her. She told the Advocate: "I guess more than anything I'm just exhausted and very, very tired and probably disillusioned because I really tried the best I could and it wasn't good enough for the gay community. To be honest, I don't know what 'good enough' is."

In part inspired by Noble's November 1974 election, Spear granted a front-page interview to the Minneapolis Star-Tribune soon after his re-election to a second term as a state senator in which he indicated that he was gay. This announcement was not met with universal acceptance. One state senator indicated during a committee meeting that he thought the state should appropriate money to help Spear get his homosexuality "cured." Nonetheless, many of Spear's fellow senators were supportive, although most expected him to lose his 1976 bid for re-election. Spear's Republican opponent in that race spent so much time denying that homosexuality was an issue in the race that it became clear that it was. Spear won with nearly 70 percent of the vote.

In the years that followed, Spear made a name for himself fighting for strict drunk-driving laws and expanded child care services. He also pushed for a gay-rights bill, which met strong opposition from religious conservatives but was ultimately passed in 1993. By that time, Spear had risen through the ranks of Minnesota's senate to become that body's president, a position he still holds in 1996.

In the two decades since Noble and Spear became openly gay elected officials, dozens of gay men and lesbians have come out in office or run as openly gay and lesbian candidates. In 1991, the Gay and Lesbian Victory Fund was founded to help raise money to elect openly gay and lesbian candidates - and as of 1996, the Victory Fund counts 115 openly gay or lesbian elected officials in the United States.

David Bianco, M.A., teaches gay and lesbian history at the Institute of Gay and Lesbian Education in West Hollywood. His first book, Modern Jewish History for Everyone, was recently published by History for Everyone. He can be reached care of this publication or through his E-mail address: AriBianco@aol.com.

>From (Oberons - Tim) Oberons announce new officers for '96-97: Pathfinder (President) John Wilke, Assistant Pathfinder (V-P) Steve Polomis, Scribe (Secretary) Bobbie Smith, Exchequer (Treasurer) Tim Jones

Tom Rollo was voted "President Emeritus" in honor of 6 years of distinguished service to the Oberons and the Levi/leather community as a whole.

Club night held at B's on Sat., October 12, was a fun affair. Bobby (behind the bar) & Mike (in the DJ booth) were gracious hosts. Though a bit south of the other bars, it's worth the trip.

November's club night, the second of our fund-raisers for the Christmas Club for Children with AIDS, will be held Sat., Nov. 16, at the Docks (formerly Gargoyles), 10pm- 1am. Theme: "Gobble, Gobble 2: or Indians Teach Pilgrims to Corn Hole". Also, in support of the Christmas Club, the Castaways will hold a beer bust during their run the week-end of Nov. 8-10.

(FYI) the following dates set in concrete unless otherwise noted in a future column. Make note of them and you won't have to try to keep them straight

2nd Saturday of the month - except 3rd Sat in Nov. Oberons bar nite following day Oberons monthly meeting 1st Saturday of the month - quarterly - Castaways Bar/club nite Note, not routinely the same Saturday. 4th Sunday - regular monthly meeting. 3rd weekend in January - Argonauts anniversary cocktail/dinner party 3rd Weekend in August - Argonauts Northwoods, a campout at the farm

2nd weekend in November - Castaways MC anniversary party/run (Elections) - along with the Olympics and Leap Year come the presidential election - Get out and vote; it is becoming more important each year. We need to gain the rights of other family units which include health, death and dying benefits.

A couple of years ago, I asked a candidate for US Congress how he and his ilk viewed the Gay vote. He replied. "It is unfortunate that the Gay community doesn't take elections seriously. In the past they did, there now seems to be little unity and because of it, as a block, their vote really doesn't effect a campaign or election. He said further if we unified, we have enough support with mainstream America, to move congress our way. So get out and vote, makeem believers and unite to win our rights.

To the (Caller inquiring about fistings): Sorry, we worked in the garden, doing those things needing doing when fall weather cooperates. Here's the information: Mid America Fist In Action. Mail to (M.A.F.I.A.) Box 2230, Chicago, Il. 60610-2230. There were several members in your area a few years back.

Just a note to all regarding questions and requests you might have. I will be happy to help you if and when I can. Keep in mind, there are persons all around you would also be happy to steer you on to your needs. Ask a club person or a bartender to clue you in. Believe me, they've hear it all and most know all.

Last April 3 1996 I wrote ("Beer Town Badgers) - a club that folded over a year ago and BTB, a fund raising arm of Si Smits of The Boot Camp." I stand corrected, The BTB Corp. is a fund raising arm of The Beer Town Badgers, which now seems alive and well.

Many of us got an invite to an Oct 26 fund-raising party for G/L Community Center Trust Fund, sponsored by the Boot Camp Saloon, hosted by the BTB Corporation and held in "their" Club house at 904 S. 1st Myself and some of you wondered about this Center and the other Center that is proposed, called "Milwaukee Lesbian/ Gay/ Bisexual/ Transgender"

Some of us believed both are working for the same cause(s) and a contribution to one is like to the other.

At this time, a call to Si Smits of the Boot Camp requesting information regarding set up, structures, mission statements, purposes, Board of Directors and Trustee etc., - has yet to be returned.

The information I have, indicates Si who, (sometimes with a cadre of long time friends) either owns, controls or sits on the board(s) of the Boot Camp Saloon, The Wisconsin Leather Mens Association, The Beer Town Badgers, the BTB Corporation, the G/L Community Center and the Club house. All of the above are connected with this fund raiser. Also listed as advisors and/or supporters are four other businesses.

In other paragraphs there are references to other individuals suffering with AIDS "establishing a Community Center Endowment Fund in 1995 wishing to leave a living memorial to the community". This fund "will receive gifts intended for the perpetual assistance of a Community Center" - "promises to bring us many important benefits;" and "your contributions will be meaningful to everyone by continuing to provide a positive future for all Gays and Lesbians."

A call to Nancy Snow of the "proposed" Center indicates there is no connection between the two centers. She was unfamiliar with purpose and goals of the other.

If you need more information, want to send a contribution? Write G/L Community Center Trust Fund., Box 1686, Milwaukee WI 53201 or call (414) 643-1652.

Must run, need to make a perfect act of contrition to my cardiologist before I stack thick slabs of tender roast beef on 6 slices of fresh baked bread, ladle on some horseradish and my own minty beef sauce and call it dindin. Blanch. — Joe

EDITOR'S NOTE: Our sources have assured Quest the Board of Directors of the Beer Town Badgers will publicly announce its financial statement before the end of the year. They look forward to a positive future of support for the establishment of a G/L Community Center. M.M.

It's Mark After Dark!

by Jess Littleman

It's Friday. 10:24. I know this because when I glance over at my office wall at the clock I can clearly see the big hand near the five and the little one is near the twelve. I am running real late for a date, and I still have a two and a half hour drive ahead of me (unless I speed--then, it's only two hours). You see, I'm supposed to meet Mark in Madison at Manoeuvres at Midnight. Mmmmm. I told him I might be late because of work, but so what? This last project should have been done an hour ago--my co-workers and underlings could have finished up without me--I WANT TO BE THERE ALREADY!!!!

I hate to admit it, but I miss him a lot when I'm back up here. I know, I know, I'm the one who says I don't do long distance relationships, but this is different somehow. It's kind of like--oh, I dunno--it's like going on week-end-long dates. He's incredibly romantic. He always has something interesting to say and speaks his mind well. More importantly, he likes listening to me and usually doesn't give me that "Confused Dog" look when I go off onto tangents.

Best of all, we participate in activities that do not occur in either a barroom or a bedroom. We take walks, rollerblade, canoe, go biking (yes, we are the perfect spokespersons for Tampax!), watch movies, go to nearby parks and try to sneak kisses, go out to eat way too much, shower together, and lay around in the buff at a local nude beach.

And when I stay an extra half day just so I can wake up next to Mark in his bed, I wonder what all of this means to him. We do talk about how we feel towards each other and relationships in general, but we never discuss any further than the next time we might be able to visit each other. Mind you, I know he sees other men; I do, too. Still, we have never exchanged the 'L' word and a growing part of me wishes we would.

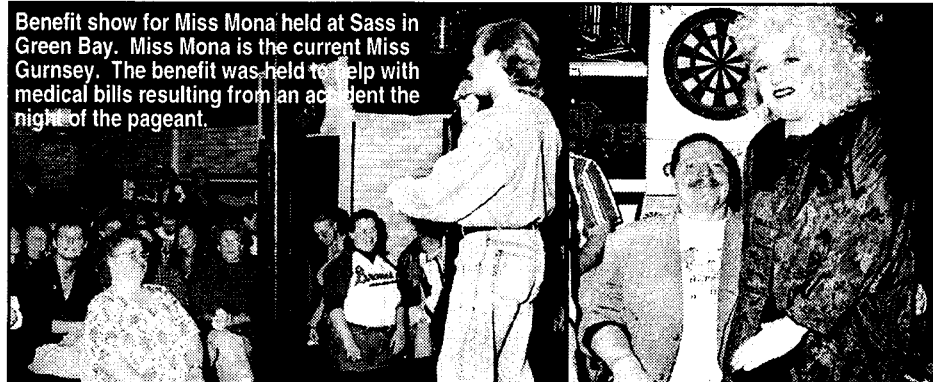

So, after reading this, you may be thinking to yourself: "Wait, this isn't Past Out, is it?" (No, that column is elsewhere.) But, you may also have wondered if I want Mark and I to make something more out of what we have, why I haven't asked Mark how he'd feel about it. The truth is I'm being selfish. It's been about a year since I left someone who told me he'd love me forever, but forgot to mention he'd also never respect or trust me and always resent anything in my life that didn't revolve around him and him alone. Mark has his battle scars, too, not the least a decade-long marriage ending with a painful divorce. The bottom line is we're probably both too afraid to use the 'L' word in the heat of the moment before we actually, accurately, deeply, truly mean it. I more than respect that in Mark as well as myself.

Now it's just over two hours and a half a dictation tape later. I turn my car off of Washington Street near downtown Mad City and head for the bar. As I look for a parking spot amidst the rainbow-bumper-stickered autos, I think about what might happen this weekend: Will we have thing to talk about? Am I just a friend visiting, or does he want the full spectrum of companionship? Does my breath smell bad? What if he didn't wait for me and went home with someone better looking? (That's just my insecurities cutting through....) What happens if the "L" word gets used by one and the other doesn't share the same emotions?

If I had anything else running through my mind at that point, it disappeared at seeing the growing smile on a handsome man at the door, waiting for me. I put my arms around broad shoulders as his lips meet mine. I don't know what the future has in store for the two of us, but I know I'm the center of this man's attention for the remainder of the week-end, and I'm not going to waste one moment feeling scared or wistful. I'm going to give Mark the attention, friendship, and yes, the love he shows me. What can I say? We're both worth it.
