February 12, 1976 (22 years ago this month): Actor Sal Mineo is stabbed to death in West Hollywood.

Who was Sal Mineo?

On the evening of February 12, 1976, a resident of a West Hollywood apartment building heard someone in the street crying out for help. Hurrying downstairs, the man found actor Sal Mineo bleeding to death from stab wounds, the victim of a bungled robbery attempt. In a sad twist of fate, Mineo's life ended just as he was beginning to reconcile his homosexuality with his career.

The child of Sicilian immigrants, Mineo was born in the Bronx in 1939. He was a tough kid growing up, much like the characters he later played on screen. At age eight, he was expelled from parochial school for being a trouble-maker. He subsequently joined a street gang and by the age of 10 was taking part in robberies. Trying to keep him off the street, his mother enrolled him in dance and acting classes, where Mineo immediately shone. In acting school, an agent spotted the 11-year-old's potential and cast him in the Broadway run of Tennessee Williams's play, "The Rose Tattoo."

Mineo appeared in Williams's play for over a year, then took the role of the young prince in "The King and I," opposite Yul Brynner and Gertrude Lawrence. With those impressive stage credits behind him, Mineo went to Hollywood in 1955, where he made his first movie, Six Bridges to Cross, launching his career as a celluloid juvenile delinquent. But it was his second film that same year, Rebel Without a Cause, that made a star of the teenager. For his compelling portrayal of the anguished Plato, Mineo received an Academy Award nomination for Best Supporting Actor.

The character of Plato is significant in gay filmography because he was the first gay teenager in Hollywood history, a sensitive kid with photos of movie star Alan Ladd taped inside his school locker. Plato was also achingly in love with his best friend, Jim, played by James Dean. Like many gay characters in films of that era, Plato died a violent death at the movie's end, while Jim went on to a heterosexual future with Judy, the character played by Natalie Wood.

In subsequent films during the 1950s, like Crime in the Streets, Dino, and The Young Don't Cry, Mineo continued to be cast as a street punk or disaffected youth. His roles earned him the nickname "The Switchblade Kid," and his rebel persona made him a hero among teenagers. When at 20 he launched a brief career as a rock 'n' roll singer, Mineo's first single, "Start Movin'," stayed in the Top 40 for 13 weeks and eventually went gold. Mineo got a chance at a few meatier film roles as he entered his twenties. In 1959, his performance as jazz drummer Gene Krupa was a critical success. The following year, Mineo's portrayal of a young Auschwitz survivor in Exodus with Paul Newman and Eva Marie Saint garnered him a second Oscar nomination.

But with his teen years and baby-faced looks behind him, the good roles began to dry up for Mineo. In the mid-1960s, Mineo observed that he was "on the industry's weirdo list," offered roles mostly as psychotics in forgettable films like Who Killed Teddy Bear? In 1971, he played his last movie role in Escape from the Planet of the Apes - as an ape.

Several factors worked against Mineo in Hollywood. His dark Italian features immediately set him up for ethnic typecasting. In addition, Mineo talked openly about his sexuality. Commenting on the death of his Rebel Without a Cause co-star, James Dean, in a car crash, Mineo was quoted as saying, "We never became lovers, but we could have - like that." He also admitted, "I like them all - men, I mean," though he added, "and a few chicks now and then."

When his film career waned, Mineo took sporadic television roles but found greater success back on the stage. He directed the Los Angeles and New York productions of "Fortune and Men's Eyes," the John Hubert play about homosexuality behind prison bars. Mineo also appeared in a San Francisco production of "P.S. Your Cat Is Dead" as a bisexual cat burglar. He was set to reprise that role in Los Angeles, but it was on his way home from rehearsal that he was fatally stabbed.

Rumors flew about Mineo's murder, all of them suggesting that to live as a gay man was to court danger. The most widespread story was that he was killed by a hustler he had brought home for sadoomasochistic games, but in fact, he was murdered by a stranger who was attempting to rob him. Mineo's assailant was arrested, convicted, and sentenced to life imprisonment in 1979. The teen idol and two-time Oscar nominee left an estate of only $8,500.

ARCW Needle Exchange Program Ranked 2nd Best in Nation!

Milwaukee---The AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin was awarded a $25,000 grant provided by the George Williams Fund of the Tides Foundation, San Francisco, for operation of its 1998 needle exchange program in Milwaukee and Racine.

ARCW's needle exchange program ranked second best in the country because of its harm reduction philosophy and its comprehensive, nonjudgemental approach to working with injection drug users, their spouses and/or sex partners, a group increasingly at high risk for contracting HIV disease.

In 1997, through five prevention outreach workers, ARCW exchanged over 300,000 clean needles in Milwaukee and Racine. ARCW also referred 191 drug users into its AODA treatment program through its needle exchange program.

both scenarios and then say, 'See, twenty more persons became infected when we didn't put condoms in the bars.' Unfortunately, that's not possible. And that's why we need to believe, as I do, that we are making a monumental difference in those lives we have protected. And we need to praise ourselves for those unknown lives that were saved.

When I say thank you, I am thanking you on behalf of all who benefit from the programs funded with ROW dollars. And I am thanking everyone who contributes to ROW fundraising events.

Keep up the good work and the good spirit of cooperation! Your friend,

ARCW/Center Project Region thanks Rainbow Over Wisconsin

Editor's Note: The letter of thanks is self-explanatory, and is printed verbatim.
Dear Rainbow Over Wisconsin Members:

On behalf of ARCW/Center Project Region, I thank you for your recent financial contribution of $830, which will be used to supply area bars with life-saving condoms.

The cost of care for HIV infected individuals throughout the term of their illness has been estimated at $119,000 per person! More importantly, the pain and suffering this disease causes to individuals, families and society as a whole cannot be quantified monetarily. And, although it is impossible to 'prove' that we have prevented even a single infection by making condoms available in bars, I believe we have prevented many.

The difficult thing about responding proactively is that we alter the future and are unable to see what would have occurred if we had NOT gotten involved. It would be so satisfying if we could see

LEATHER/FETISH

by Papa Joe

SuperBowl Sunday is gone, the Pope is back in Rome, Washington is in another twit, all is right with the world, I hope. While in DC, I found a couple of Denver men who bet me the Broncos would win. It was a sure thing, wasn't it?

Club announcements and activities:

Argonauts new Officers - President, Steve J; Vice President, Craig G; Secretary, John K; Corresponding Secretary, Russ S; Treasurer, Thom T; Sgt.-at-Arms, Dick M. All were introduced at the Argonauts anniversary Jan. 17 dinner held at the Ashland Cafe.

I lift the following from an accompanying note: "Dinner was good...held at the Ashland Cafe... a gay friendly place.... Barb and the Ken, the owners, had a great staff who were friendly and hospitable. They did an excellent job and we wish to thank them. Stop in for breakfast or lunch if you get the chance."

The bust at Brandy's II was a great success...thanks to Mike of the 1100 Club and Terry of Brandy's II.

The after hours was held at an old Mineral Water Plant provided by Mike D. It seemed like the old days of the Manhole or The Body Shop. The difference was there was no duct tape in sight and no black plastic.

Argonauts Charities was the beneficiary of a show and raffle fundraiser by Dawn and Brenda at Sass and Buddies presented the Club a check. Their contributions are greatly appreciated." Thom/Argonauts

The Castaways MC held their elections Jan. 17. The new officers are: President, Jim B; Vice President, Bob P; Treasurer, Tom R; Secretary, Bob B; Road Captain, Michael P. Bob P/Castaways

Both are beer busts w/ raffles from 10 pm till 1 am.

We are also planning our annual bar crawl to Chicago which will be a joint club night with ONYX (Men of Color) at the Cell Block, some time in April. Details TBA.

By the way, I also received a digital camera for my birthday and I will start e mailing pics to you when I can. Your friend in leather

Jerry S/Oberons

Jerry, my good buddy: you sure must have been a good boy to get a DC for your Birthday. I look forward to the pictures - - I am not sure my Editor/publisher can cope with them at this time - - Send them anyway, I have a 2.7 GB HD just waiting to store them. You know what this DOM likes, so focus on "it"

Editor's Note: I am sure we can find a way to make the digital pics work!

Feb. 20 -22, Minneapolis, The Black Guard will be hosting their annual run Black Frost. This is one of the more popular indoor runs in the upper mid west, attracting a lot of hot men from plains states. Most of the participants are repeaters and go with the intent of "catching up" with long time friends. Many of the Wisconsin Clubs make this there "must" run and for a bunch of years, a group out of Milwaukee takes the train. It is quite a party. I have some very fond memories of those trips!

Great Lakes Harley Riders are asking local folks to help house a few of their Gay Bros. coming in from all points of the world for Harley Davidson's Homecoming 95, June 10th - 14th. You can contact the housing coordinator Jack, for the details. He can be reached at (414) 747-0703 or E Mail, Jakonabike@aol.com.

All GLHR will be pre-screened in fact, most who are coming are professionals and are not expecting to stay for free. I've lifted a section of a recent letter to their membership. " - - - some of you will be staying with local Riders, some will be put up at friend's homes. Most of your hosts will be very gracious and some will offer their homes to you at no fee. However, it is reasonable to expect a fee/rent. If you accept their offer, you will be expected to take care of all fees in advance."

If the housing is offered at reasonable fees or gratis, make sure your "hostess gift" adequately expresses your appreciation. Expect all Leather Fest '98, Cell Block/Chicago a whole weekend of parties with the highlight to be the 1998 Cell Block/Male Hide Leatherman contest on the 21st.

Among those joining us for Leather Fest Weekend are: Emcee, Frank Nowicki; Kevin Cwayna, International Mr. Leather 1997; Christof Lehn. Mr. International Rubber 1998 and Mr. Marcus. Keep an eye open for their ads and press releases.

Mid-Atlantic Leather (MAL), an event which, until you experience, you can not get a true feeling for. Because I am jaded, I ask Randy (young and todie 4 hot) for his version as a 1st timer. The first parag was lifted from his prelude & has account has been edited due to space.

"I had an awesome time!! I did finally catch up on my sleep... there was so much to say. I had a great time! I missed my flight in the morning. I had soo much fun with the president of the Spartan Motorcycle Club, I didn't want to go home!"

Believe it or not, I'm still grinning after only 18 hours of sleep over 4 days! Being that I was a first-timer at the 1998 Mid-Atlantic Leather Event in Washington, DC I didn't want to miss a leathered moment.

It's not everyday that you can wear chaps, Wesco boots, arm bands and an L.A. police department t-shirt to brunch. But that was the attire of choice for approximately 1,000 leathermen who flooded Washington, DC January 16-19. The event was expertly orchestrated by the Centaur Motorcycle Club of Virginia and included several spectacular happenings such as "Leather Cocktails," "The Dark Dance," and an awesome Leather Mart which had some of the best fetish merchandise around.

Even though the main events were the focus of the weekend, I found that it was the side-shows which made M.A.L. unforgettable. I use the term "side-shows" because it just fits. One of the best side-shows occurred during brunch at a restaurant called Trumpets. Let me tell you about it... After a long night of partying until 5 a.m., the last thing I was in the mood for was more drinks and conversation. So I stumbled into Trumpets at 11 a.m. - touted as an elegant dining experience - with Papa Joe, Lee, Bob G, a teacher from Virginia, and a new leather buddy from Chicago named Bob, just wanting to get some grub in my system to soak up the booze. Everyone was decked out in leather, despite being a bit piqued from the night before. We were just there to grab some food before the big contest at "Tracks." At the bar, the men took part in Bloody Marys, I opted for a honkin' glass of diet coke & 4 extra-strength aspirins. (I'm a whimp)

Then, bursting from the entrance of Trumpets, came this woman with pony tail bopping behind her who barks out in a voice that hails from the streets of Brooklyn, "Hey Pawll, take it easy on me today I'm workin' on two howas of sleep and I dont wanna be botha'd too much ya know." I thought we were in trouble!

The boys grabbed their drinks and I downed my lousy coke, choked on the aspirins and headed to the table. Marion, the Brooklyn Bombshell, pounced on our table. "Hi, I'm Marion, let me grab some mora drinks for you guyz." Counting and pointing around the table she said, "Bloody, bloody, bloody, bloody and what are ya havin sweetheart (referring to me)... a what, a diet coke? what the hell's wrong with ya... your havin a mimosa, pronto!"

She was right, the mimosa - I should say 6 mimosas - cured my hangover - real quick! Decked out in a leather jacket, Marion entertained us for hours while we ate. She didn't even have time to serve us, so the cook and manager did while she sang songs and assigned us all nick-names... Papa Joe was "Fluffy - 1" and Bob was "Fluffy-2"...

Paul, the incredibly hot manager, decided to put on a skin tight t-shirt which outlined his woofy body, put on arm bands, said to her: "Marion, lets go... get to your other tables." Marion replied, "Yeah, yeah... just a minute... whatdya want, girl?"

By the end of the brunch, we had heard and seen it all, ate delicious food, had conversation on topics ranging from breast size and oral sex to Bob's muscle laden chest and my "firmness." My new leather buddy Robert, "The Senator," acted as Marion's assistant and served coffee to her tables. Marion belted out several tunes and her rendition of "Killing Me Softly" brought cheers from the patrons. It was truly a brunch to savor forever...

Marion was so good the we decided to go back for dinner!... Unfortunately, I could not attend, I had a date with one of the hottest bootblacks in the country... About this bootblack, grrr!! is all I can say... Lets just say, I met the bootblack at 7 p.m. and got out of his room at 12:30 p.m. (the next day) needless to say I missed my 9 a.m. flight!!!!

Anyway, the moral to this story is that if there is a leather event to go to, this is the one! The hospitality of the Centaur group was phenomenal. They created an atmosphere to make wonderful leather friends around the country. And if you get to "Trumpets" - Tell Marion, her boys from Wisconsin sent you!
