Psychic Thoughts

by Susan Reed

Clairvoyance is one form used to see into the future. However, there several tools that can be used with clairvoyance to clarify and enhance the readings.

Tarot cards are an excellent way to clarify readings. There are 78 cards in a deck which include the 22 Major Arcana and 56 Minor cards. The first approach allows us to see that the trumps are a collection of qualities and attitudes which are most valuable for living. In the Major Arcana, a person will find creativity, peace, positive action and a sense of personal power. These specific cards are treated as the progress of an individual on the path of enlightenment.

There are some readers who interpret the Major Arcana as a sequence which is divided in some way. Some see it as two halves with the break coming at the Wheel of Fortune. Thus, the first half deals with the outer concerns of life, such as work/career, marriage/relationships, and the achievement of success and power. At a certain point in our lives we will realize the limitations of such things and turn inward on a quest for self-knowledge. Thus, self-knowledge is represented in the second half of the deck.

Inner awareness is brought out in the second half of the deck. We live in a time which looks primarily at the self. For many individuals, psychology has replaced religion in life and psychology deals with personal issues. The Tarot reminds us of concerns outside ourselves which are necessary so as to be met with complete success.

In a Tarot reading, we are shown how to deal with specific issues in our personal lives. This includes out emotions where we find ourselves at the heights of bliss and the depths of despair. In a reading, you are allowed the opportunity to bring both bliss and despair into the picture. Thus you are guided through the negatives and the positives.

The Minor deck consists of four suits: Wands, (Clubs), Cups, (Hearts), Swords, (Spades), Pentacles, (Diamonds). Each suit has fourteen cards: Ace through 10, plus Page, Knight, Queen, and King. The four suits structure themselves around the concept of the four elements: Earth, Air, Fire, and Water.

Wands belong to the element of Fire. The Wands thus show us scenes of electricity, experience, action and optimism. All of these qualities are associated with Fire and fiery personalities.

Cups belong to Water, which flows rather than forces, giving way rather than resisting. Cups cards show scenes of love and gentleness. It is also a sign of fantasy and inspiration when Cups come up in a reading. Fire brings about power, and Water brings about a sense of passiveness where individuals are unable to take a strong course of direction.

Swords are the most complex of the Tarot Cards. They show sorrow and pain, but also analysis and truth. They signify the pains and defeats life tends to inflict on us, and for this reason, many people find them frightening in a reading. We must keep things in perspective and remember that these form only one part of our lives. We can learn a great deal from the negative part of these cards, so there is no real need to be fearful of them.

Pentacles are derived from the element Earth. The other suites symbolize states of mind or types of experiences. The Pentacles refer to the outside world. Thus they symbolize money, nature, career, and prosperity. Pentacles prefer society to adventure, discipline and hard work to gain a sense of freedom. Through Pentacles you will see that there is satisfaction to be gained from creating something very real in our own worlds. When Pentacles appear in a reading, the person being read will enjoy the magic which is hidden within nature and ordinary life.

In summary, Wands and Cups tend to show more positive experiences, while Swords and Pentacles denote the more difficult aspects of life. Wands and Pentacles deal with practical concerns, while Cups and Swords depict the emotional side of things in our lives.

I did a short reading on someone who had the eight of Swords in the past, the two of Wands in the present and the Ace of Pentacles in the future. This person felt that there were limitations and restrictions around him and he didn't know how to break free from this. He then had to take a strong look at what he had accomplished in his life, and he needed to make the plans necessary for him to succeed. Once he was able to lay the ground plans for what was yet to be, he found that he would be met with complete success, personally, professionally and financially.

Angels of Hope MCC - Appleton From Store Front to Church Building

Angels of Hope MCC Appleton is looking forward to a move to a church building in the 800 block of Richmond Street to replace its 110 Locust
St. storefront worship location.

Rev. Ken Hull, pastor, says the rent will be only $5 more a month, and utility costs will probably be less.

The Appleton church is affiliated with Angels of Hope - Green Bay.

Services are held Sundays at 5 pm in Appleton, and at 11 am
& 7:30 pm at Angels' Green Bay location, 3607 Libal St.

Green Bay's Dan McDonough Appointed to UN Global AIDS Task Force

Dan McDonough, of Green Bay, has been appointed to the 45-member United Nations Global AIDS Task Force by its executive director, Dr. Peter Perot, to replace a member from Zimbabwe, who died of AIDS related complications.

The United Nations has funded the $3 billion Task Force to initiate HIV/IDS care service programs in developing nations over the next four years.

McDonough will serve on the Task Force's SE Asian Committee and will spend a month in SE Asia this winter, visiting Vietnam, Northern India, China, Malaysia and Indonesia, talking with people who benefit from each project, project staff and government officials.

McDonough, living with HIV for over three years, is a client and volunteer at AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin,
Green Bay (Center Project).

The Task Force meets quarterly. UN Headquarters in New York, Uganda and Argentina are scheduled for this year.

RAINBOW OVER WISCONSIN Awards Funds to Argonauts Of Wisconsin & ARCW-Green Bay

A second grant this time for $600.00 was approved by ROW's board for ARCW, formerly Center Project to be used for AIDS Awareness advertising for 1998. A grant was awarded earlier this year for the purchase of condoms to distribute in area bars.
This new grant was needed because of a shortfall in money raised by AIDS Walk Wisconsin. Some budget cutting was inevitable.

The educational awareness ads featured in Quest throughout last year had been terminated due to lack of funds. Quest publisher, Mark Mariucci, a ROW board memeber came forward with a proposal to move the ad series to the front cover of Quest this year and not to charge anything for them. This additional grant money approved will probably be used for ad space in Quest when covers of Quest are not being used for ARCW's AIDS prevention awareness campaign.

At the same board meeting Argonauts on a $1000.00 grant for money to be used for emergency funds for persons with HIV.

ROW's board decided to split the grant request in two and give $1000.00 directly to Argonauts of Wisconsin seperately to be used for similar purposes but for persons who are not affected by HIV.

At the same mmeting ROW members welcomed Diversions Bar from Menasha

Some guys have all the luck! Lee, who was scheduled to be one, had his South American trip pushed back to April, so I had him instead of looking for a Daddy sitter. Last evening with the return of cold weather, we built a fire, uncorked a jug of wine and cranked up the surround sound and did the sound track of Cats. Phantom of the Opera followed. Lee likes to sing along and his voice caused pleasant vibrations in my chest where he laid his head.

It don't get much better than that. Eat your heart out.

From: Argonauts/Green Bay A brief update to the kidnapping of Ric L.'s bear at Buddies—it was returned in a brown paper bag which was tossed in the front door after the bartenders patrons and owners raised the ransom of $100 for the Argonaut Charities. Actually, they raised $110.05.

The Argonauts of Wisconsin, Inc. will be hosting the 2nd annual Easter Egg Fundraiser from Sat. Apr. 4 through Easter Sunday. Buy an egg for a buck and win the prize inside. Beer busts, free drinks, videos, bottles of booze, candy bars and the famous "door prize" can be yours. Plus, there will always be a few zonks. Eggs available not only at our home bar, Brandy's II but also at Buddies. Both taverns on Main Street, Green Bay. Last year, this fundraiser raised well over $1,200.

Also, a Ron Clausen (or Klausen) has been telling folks in our leather community that he is a member of the Argonauts. This has gained him some free housing and other amenities afforded to members of Clubs. However, Ron has no affiliation with us whatsoever. --Thom/AOW from/ Firebirds/Milwaukee New officers for '98 & '99 are Scott A - President; Kurt - VP & Road Capt.; Randy S - Secretary/Treasurer.

There was a big turnout for the Club night March 7. In attendance were members of The Argonauts of WI, Brew City Bears, Castaway MC, Oberons, Fox Valley Bears, Great Lake Bears, Hellfires, Jackaroos from Australia, and the Red Guard from Stuttgart, Germany.

The Oberons and the Firebirds traveled together to The Blue Max in St. Louis of March 13-15.

The Sat., April 4, Club night will begin at 9 PM at the Boot Camp and will benefit The Community Center Trust Fund.

Also want to announce four new pledges.

Heads up --

Wisconsin Mr. Leather Contest -- Details being worked on, it appears that it will fly in October, more than likely on the 24th.

I have been contacted for names and addresses of persons involved with the Wisconsin Mr. contest(s) in the recent past. There are folks trying to work out details to produce a Wisconsin Leather Man (only) contest. There are also looking for a few self starters to assist.

If you folks who had something to do with the Mr. contest(s) in the past, would like to get in touch with them, mail to me at Quest, or e mail PPA-JOE@aol.com. I will forward.

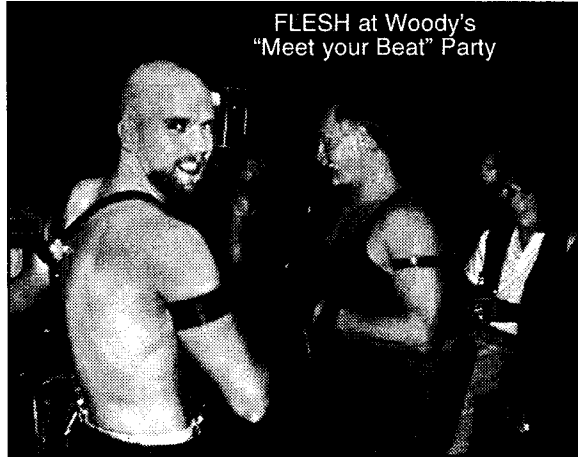

As you know, the current, probably late, production Co., has been promising to deliver regional contests as well as a State wide competition. Except for several poorly attended (contestants and audience) contests over the past several years, for the most part, this has not come to pass.

It will be good to get this on track once again.

of Grass, Whitman repeatedly changed pronouns from "he" to "she." The "man who wandered with me" in his New Orleans poem became in a revised version "a woman I casually met there who detain'd me for love of me." Whitman invented a heterosexual history for himself, complete with six illegitimate children, though there is absolutely no evidence to support his claims.

In fact, the evidence all points to Whitman's intimacy with men and boys. Peter Doyle, a former Confederate soldier whom Whitman met while living and working in Washington, D.C. during and after the Civil War, is perhaps the best known of his "camarados," as he referred to his companions. "Our affection is quite an affair, quite romantic," Whitman wrote home. Forty years later, Doyle remembered their chance meeting on a streetcar as love at first sight: "We were familiar at once - I put my hand on his knee - we understood."

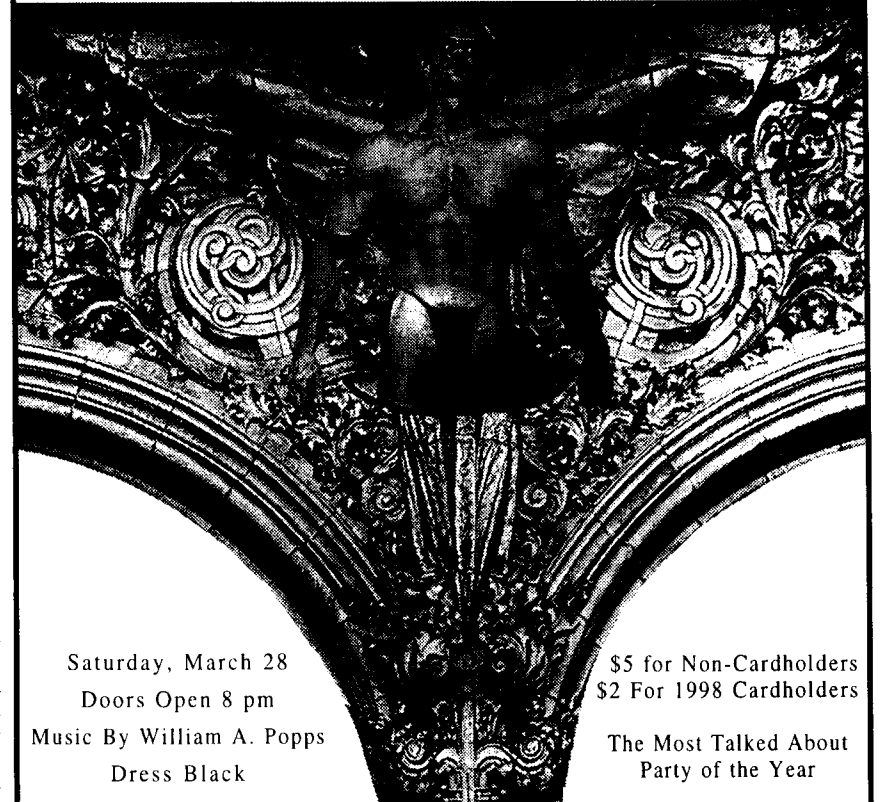

In his final years, incapacitated by a stroke, Whitman relied on first a teenage, live-in "special friend," Bill Duckett, and then a personal secretary, Horace Traubel. He held court at his row house in Camden, New Jersey, greeting such well-known admirers as Oscar Wilde and Edward Carpenter. Though Whitman continued until his death to be evasive about his sexuality, more openly gay poets like Carpenter, who were inspired by Whitman's homoeroticism, had few doubts about the older man's sexual leanings. "Walt Whitman," Carpenter wrote, "was before all a lover of the Male. His thought turned toward men first and foremost, and it is no good disguising that fact."

904 LUDINGTON STREET (REAR ENTRANCE) ESCANABA, MI 49829
(906) 789-0140

March 26, 1892 (106 years ago this month):
Poet Walt Whitman dies in Camden, New Jersey.

Who was Walt Whitman?

Walt Whitman, the preeminent nineteenth-century American poet, is sometimes called the "good gray poet," because as an older man he sported a flowing white beard and hair. But we might also dub him the "good gay poet," since his homoerotic poems were early celebrations of love between men and his intimate relationships were all with men and boys.

Whitman was born in 1819 near Huntington, New York, a town on Long Island. His family moved a lot during Whitman's childhood, as his father, who was beset by financial problems, tried his hand at everything from farming to construction. Whitman left school at age 11 to help support his family by apprenticing to a newspaper printer.

When he was 17, the mostly self-taught Whitman began a brief career as a teacher, taking several short-term positions in towns around Huntington. Though most sources are vague about why he left teaching four years later, one recent biographer, David Reynolds, found evidence that Whitman may have made advances toward his male students and been driven out of the profession.

Whitman discovered a second, more lasting career, in journalism, and in 1838 founded a weekly newspaper, The Long Islander, which is still in circulation 160 years later and boasts "Founded by Walt Whitman" on its masthead. For the next few decades, Whitman held editorial positions at seven different newspapers, mostly in New York City but also in New Orleans, and he always wrote as an outspoken advocate of social, economic, and political reform.

But it was his poetry that secured him a place in American history. His first collection, Leaves of Grass, was published in 1855 as a slim volume of 90 pages, which he himself set into type at a Brooklyn print shop. Always a perfectionist, Whitman revised and republished the book eight times during his life. The 1860 edition is the most significant for gay readers, because it contains the original "Calamus" cycle of poems, which extol male camaraderie or "adhesiveness," as Whitman called it. "I believe," he wrote in one of these poems, "the main purport of America is to found a new ideal of manly love..."

While many of the Calamus poems use vague words like "brotherly," "the man I love," and "comrade," it's hard to mistake the meaning behind some of the more erotic ones. In "Loafe with Me Upon the Grass," Whitman reminisced about "... how we once lay, such a transparent summer morning;/How you settled your head athwart my hips, and gently turned over upon me, ..." The poems are filled with same-sex longing, as in "Once I Passed Through a Populous City," written about his sojourn in New Orleans: "I remember only the man who wandered with me, there for love of me,/Day by day and night by night, we were together..."

At the time that Whitman wrote these poems, homosexuality as an identity and a sexual orientation did not quite exist. It wasn't until the late 1800s that doctors and psychiatrists became interested in same-sex desire and began to theorize about it as an "inversion" of proper, man-woman desire. What once passed in Whitman's poems as non-sexual, brotherly devotion thus became a sexual "abnormality" several decades after they were written. In subsequent editions of Leaves

The History of the Wisconsin Club scene

Part one

Beginning with this or the next issue, I will start to lay out the history of the club scene as I know it. This has always been a goal of mine and Mark/ Editor/ Quest has expressed interest in publishing same.

It will be written as I get the time and doled out by Mark, as space allows. Each issue will be about 600 words. I will do my best to keep it going in each issue, but you must remember, summer is coming and I like to be outside as much as possible. You my dear and devoted reader, take a back seat to my ass being in the saddle of a Harley.

I welcome you input, comments and criticism. If you feel an area needs further expatiation, has another view, biased reporting or whatever, you have the responsibility to make it known. Where it can be done, your comments etc., will be incorporated and credited.

In doing this, we can serve the new members of our community as well as recording our history. With your help it should be reasonably accurate.

As usual, your clubs news, announcements and information will take priority.

Before we get to the traditional leather/levi or MC clubs in our area, let's start by exploring the different type of clubs.

The Shaft, The Men of Rubber (MR), The Wisconsin Leathermen, (WLM) Great Lakes Harley Riders (GLHR).

To round out the list, let's take in California Boot Men InterNETional (CBMI) and Men in Boots Club International (MIBCI) as well as InterBike North America (IBNA) which many of us know about.

These clubs are different in that they serve a limited cause/cliental and for the most part are owned/operated by a business or one person. Some hope to make money in the process. And there ain't necessarily nothing wrong with any of that.

Fetish type of Clubs:

Men of Rubber, an international rubber fetish group, is owned by Rich Brooks/ Chicago, charges $35.00 annual membership for which you get a small newsletter and announcements of their events. You can buy a rubber vest with patch, MR T-shirts and other assorted rubber goods found in the newsletter. You get invited to pay to play parties (usually $20.00) which allows you to invite guests, who also must pay. Club nights, beer bust all designed to build the treasury. With almost 200 members and one hell of a following, this could build into a nice career.

MR has a web site < www.menrubber.com > you can visit for pictures and more information.

MIBCI, is a club run by a boot man for boot men, Scotty/Vancouver. Annual membership fee of $32.00 US, which gets you a very respectable quarterly magazine with notice of events, boot related articles, fantasy tales and art, personal ads and the like. You can also buy T shirts and a few other related items. This group also has a very sizeable membership spread out on five continents that I know of. Web site <http://www.bootsplus.com/bootmen.htm> Where members can view private collections of men in action.

CBMI, owned and operated by a boot man David/Palm Springs, for bootmen, has no dues, for that matter, no nothing. If you are into boots, you just need a computer before you ask David to put you on the E mail list. Like MIBCI, you get to meet a lot of folks of your ilk Web site http://www.genesisnet.net/workers/david_minor/cbmi.html. This site is very extensive with lots of related pictures and bios.

There are many more, catering to many different fetishes, but the above should give you a range of the way they are run or controlled. ---to be continued.
