Rozalla Comes Home to Popular

The lovely Queen of the Club Anthem, Rozalla, returns to the US (from the U.K.) on her new label, the New York City-based Popular Records. This marks the beginning of a new chapter in Rozalla's career in which she has amassed seven Top 30 hits (including those anthems, "Everybody's Free to Feel Good," "Are You Ready To Fly"), two critical-duction team, Band Of Gypsies. More focused than its predecessors, the new album is bound by subtle African influences at work in both the songwriting and instrumentation. Grand, lushly produced tracks like "Coming Home," "Counting on Love," and "Sun Down" recall classic Rozalla while atmospheric singles like "Leave It To Me," "You Make Me Feel" and "Road to Bemba" slow the tempo, seamlessly binding African chants and percussion within an ambient lullaby.

The new album is due for release soon - early summer!

Italian Pop Superstar Alexia's #1 Worldwide Smash Hits the U.S.

"Uh La La La La" is a #1 worldwide smash outside the U.S. and the single recently hit the ultimate chart position in numerous European and South American countries including Italy, Spain, Poland, Finland, Switzerland, France, Holland, Brazil, Argentina and Mexico.

ANGELS

Saw a television show the other night called "Touched by an Angel." See that particular show prompted me to write this article.

All of us have been touched by angels...What is an angel? An angel is a divine messenger, a spiritual being existing on a higher level of vibration than most of use here on Earth. Traditionally, when we think of angels, a loving spirit comes to mind. But the term can also apply to those with evil intent. I'd like to focus on angels of the light, the loving beings we think of.

How can you recognize an angel? Because angels usually exist at a higher vibrating frequency than the three dimensional world, they usually "appear" to be "invisible." Angels come to us in many forms. They come to us in times of need, or when we ask for divine assistance and, sometimes, they just appear! They come to us in dreams, visions...they may take on a human form, or appear as a light, a bird, a gentle breeze, or simply as a feeling.

Have you ever had the sensation that someone was looking out for you? Perhaps, you were driving when "something" told you to slow down, just in time to avoid an accident? Maybe you were experiencing tremendous sorrow, when suddenly a wave of acceptance and well-being flooded through you. Perhaps you were suffering intense physical pain, when you prayed for divine assistance and fell into a healing sleep. At these times, and many others, our lives are being touched by angels.

Angels can also appear as very "real" three-dimensional beings. In the great cosmic scheme of things, human beings are very close to angels.

The difference between humans and those we call angels is a matter of vibration. Everything we see and touch and experience is vibration. This is not a new idea. Eastern religions have recognized vibration for centuries. It is just recently that modern Western science has started to catch up.

Wester physics will concur that nothing is solid. What used to be termed "solid matter" is now recognized to be electrically-charged particles vibration at different frequencies, creating the illusion of solid matter. The world around us, which appears to be so solid, so "real", is really a "matter" of vibration.

Is it so difficult, then, to believe that there are beings all around us, vibrating at frequencies so high that they "appear invisible?" Perhaps this simple experiment will help you understand: Focus on an object across the room, such as a lamp. Now hold your hands up in front of your eyes. Your hand appears solid. In fact, it's so solid that it blocks the light. Now, move your hand, slowly back and forth, so that the light appears and disappears. Increase the speed of your hands movements—what happens? Your hand seems to disappear. The faster it moves, the more "invisible" it becomes - so that eventually, that light is visible at all times!

As we human beings raise our vibrations, we become "in tune" or aligned with beings existing at higher frequencies. How can we raise or lower our vibration? We do it all the time. IT starts within our hearts and minds. For example, when we are depressed, we feel "heavy", our thoughts are "dark," we say we are "down and dragging" and appear to be "under a dark cloud." Alternately, when we feel love, we feel "light-hearted," "elated," we say we are "flying high" and appear "glowing."

We must realize that our thoughts and feelings are real, and therefore have a real effect on our very beings - spiritually, mentally, emotionally and physically. Cancer research has shown that patients with a positive attitude fare better than those with a negative attitude. Pay attention to your thoughts, they affect your feelings (vibrations) and, consequently, your physical body and spirit. And, most importantly, recognize and honor your feelings without judgment. Feelings have to be acknowledged before they can be changed.

When we learn to love and accept ourselves "warts and all," we find we have more compassion for others. As love and compassion become a part of our outlook, we find we have less need to control others (consequently we have more control of ourselves), we become loving compassionate beings. We feel lighter and happier.

Love is not limited to commodity; love generates more love. Love is like a river of light that flows through us and into others. Love does not judge, love does not control, and no one can ever take away our ability to love. Only we can open our hearts, or close them. With love, we raise our vibrations to higher and higher frequencies. Love is the highest vibration (feeling) we can experience, and the more we love, the more angelic we become.

Have a great week. Take care and until the next week, keep smiling.

In the event that you would like to contact me for your own personal consultation, you may reach me at 920-772-4981.

LEATHER/FETISH

by Papa Joe

I am in a hurry guys -- Spring time is here. Thanks to El Nino, crocus, daffodils, and wild cherries are in bloom, lilacs and tulips are budding -- and I am inside doing this column -- not for long. Besides, it seems to be a little slow, news wise, in the ranks of my lusty albeit somewhat kinky brethren.

Speaking of spring, isn't that Martha Stewart something?? She is planting her onions and leek as well as sweet peas one minute and the next making Kielbasa. Did you see those Easter egg cakes. She has too much time on her hands -- What's worse, I got caught watching.

First a word about Reggie White and the rest of the Fanatical Religious Right -- I am put in mind of the saying -- "Don't confuse me with facts, my mind is made up" -- or would that be stereotyping? NOT --

From: Atons/Minneapolis The Mr. Minnesota Drummer / Drummerboy Contest changed the contest date to April 17 & 18 which was the same weekend as the Atons Leather / Levi night. The L/L night was rescheduled to Saturday, April 11. We hope you made it to dinner at Joe's Garage at 7:30 pm. Joe's Garage is located on the north side of Loring Park.

The Drummer Contest organizers recently announced the details of the weekend and we put most of it in the Calendar on the web site: <http://starbase21.com/ATONS/calendar.htm>

FYI - The Atons of Minneapolis introduced its Flash Service for people interested in club leather events in the Twin Cities area in addition to their web site They will flash you with the latest news if you get on the list. Check the web site or contact Chris at < atons\_of\_mpls@hotmail.com >

Basically, it's a fund-raiser Event for Mr. WI Drummer/Drummer Boy. Raffle Tickets will be sold for drawings. I believe there is an after hours party at Si's 1st Street club house as well. Hope this is enough time to get into your next article.

Later: Chip

It is in plenty of time, Chip -- in fact two weeks from today it will be out -- 3 days ahead of your event -- I can't be there -- take pictures for me and give me a write up about it. OK?

Regarding WIS. FOX VALLEY BEARS

Keep in touch. And speaking of bears

From Milwaukee/ Brew City Bears Sat. Apr. 25th 10 PM. Brew City Bears Club night and party at the Boot Camp.

While at the Boot Camp; Wed April 22, Brady St. Clinic, aka BESTD Clinic will be doing HIV testing and or counseling.

Sometime back, I mentioned Erv and Ross invited you guys to consider having HIV testing etc, at your events and that testing is now oral -- you no longer get the prick -- Anyhow, I went to see how it was done. Sure enough, they stuck that sterile thing in my mouth for a couple of minutes and Poof -- I was done.

I knew the results of the test, so it was in and out but, had it been positive, they offered counseling, referrals to a whole lot of services that would have let me live a long and fairly normal bunch of years. Isn't life wonderful? -- and before we leave the Boot Camp The Firebirds will be doing something to celebrate their anniversary, probably a dinner, open times are limited so keep your eyes open.

The Shaft Club (The Eagle) Club nite (latex and rubber theme) Contestants for April, Mr Eagle were Carl, Patrick (Mr Eagle - April 98), Billy, Eric, and Jim- See pictures.

I will have info on their Apr 10 piercing night next issue.

One thing that was mentioned to me at our meeting, I don't stress the fact that we always have club nights in the 4th Friday of the month and that we GIVE AWAY FREE PRIZES there is NEVER A COVER at Touche' - which is a 4 am bar. ---Jim/Rodeo Ride

Hey, Jim, I couldn't have

Two people from the Appleton area said they were going to get in touch about a bear gathering in The Valley -- we have a start.

said it better -- you did stress it this time - love to all in Chi Town -- and thanks for the compliment.

PAST/OUT

BY DAVID BIANCO

April 11, 1953 (45 years ago this week): The Mattachine Society open its first convention, held in Los Angeles.

What was the Mattachine Society?

In 1950, a handful of gay men with Communist Party ties began meeting at the home of music teacher and union organizer Harry Hay in the Silver Lake neighborhood of Los Angeles. They created what is now recognized as the first long-standing U.S. organization devoted to advancing gay rights - the Mattachine Society. At its first convention three years later, however, the original leaders stepped down, and the group shifted away from its leftist beginnings toward a more conservative outlook.

The idea for the Mattachine Society emerged in 1948, when Hay, an active member of the Communist Party, attended a gathering for supporters of presidential candidate Henry Wallace. During the soiree, it became clear that all of the men there were gay. Hay and others facetiously talked about forming a group called "Bachelors for Wallace," which would support Wallace if he added a plank about sexual privacy to his platform. Though Bachelors for Wallace never got off the ground, Hay was intrigued by the idea of a homosexual rights organization and began looking for others to help him make it a reality.

Two years later, Hay finally found men who shared his vision. One was his lover, Rudi Gemreich, an Austrian Jewish costume designer who would later achieve fame in the 1960s as the creator of the topless swimsuit. The others were fellow Communist Party members, Bob Hull and Chuck Rowland, and writer Dale Jennings. These core members began meeting in secret at each others' homes and took the name the Mattachine Society, after an all-male performance troupe in medieval Europe.

Early meetings hammered out the philosophy of the group, one that had never been articulated before in America - that gay people were an oppressed minority with their own distinct culture, of which they should be proud. In April 1951, the Mattachine founders formalized the group's mission statement, listing as its main purpose the unification of homosexuals in a fight for their own emancipation.

Through word of mouth and by distributing flyers about the organization at gay bars, beaches and other hangouts, the Mattachine Society grew exponentially within the first few years. Members met in small "guilds" or discussion groups to propose actions to improve the lot of gay people. The organization quickly expanded to other cities along the California coast. While most members were men, lesbians also became involved, though mostly in the Northern California guilds. Some guild meetings attracted as many as 200 people. For many newcomers, it was the first time they had not felt alone or isolated in their sexual desires.

On the other hand, the need for secrecy and the model of the American Communist Party resulted in a series of extreme and even arcane rituals, such as a candlelit initiation ceremony for guild leaders and a solemn oath that "no boy or girl, approaching the maelstrom of deviation, need make that crossing alone, afraid and in the dark, ever again."

Over the next few years, the Mattachine evolved in several ways. As the organization grew, its membership became more diverse in outlook, and some new members didn't share the political vision of its leftist founders. Many were more interested in fitting into society than in actually changing it. Also, in early 1953 the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC) held hearings in Los Angeles to investigate alleged Hollywood Communists. Though Hay, Rowland, and Hull had all resigned from the Communist Party, conservative members of the Mattachine Society viewed the leaders' former political ties as a liability to the organization as a whole. To make matters worse, an article about the group in the Los Angeles Times revealed the Communist background of Mattachine lawyer Fred Snider and raised fears about the secret nature of the society, whose membership the article estimated at 200,000. (Two thousand was more like it.)

The Mattachine leadership called a national convention to restructure the organization as an above-ground one, with a constitution, by-laws, and elected officers. On April 11 and 12, 1953 (and at a follow-up session in May), several hundred gay men and lesbians met at a Universalist church in Los Angeles to discuss the future direction of the Mattachine Society. It was the first large public gathering of homosexuals in U.S. history. The leftist founders decided to step down for the good of the whole, and the organization passed to the more conservative leadership of men like Hal Call and Kenneth Burns. Burns urged the Mattachine membership to follow "a pattern of behavior that is acceptable to society in general and compatible with [the] recognized institutions . . . of home, church, and state."

Within the next two years, membership dropped off sharply. By 1955, most of the group's efforts went into publishing a magazine called The Mattachine Review. New members did not learn about the radical origins of the organization, and throughout the 1950s the Mattachine Society advocated for the assimilation of homosexuals into mainstream America. The national organization finally disbanded in 1961, but several local groups continued to use the name Mattachine well into the 1960s. Several of these, like the Washington, D.C. chapter headed by Frank Kameny, were militant in the style of the original founders, and their activism helped shape the gay liberation movement of the 1970s.
