The "H" in HIV does not stand for "Homosexual," it stands for "Human."
Humans contract HIV
only by exposing themselves to someone else's infected body fluids.

April 24, 1982 (16 years ago this week): The lesbian sex wars heat up as the conference, "Toward a Politics of Sexuality," opens at Barnard College.

Lesbian sex wars?

Today, as gay men wage sex wars of their own, the fact that the lesbian community also duked it out over sex in the not-too-distant past may get lost. Sixteen years ago, at a conference held at Barnard College in New York City, activists brought the lesbian sex wars to a feverish climax.

The first battles in the lesbian sex wars occurred in the late 1970s, when cultural feminism began to dominate the movement. Cultural feminists talked about lesbianism not as a sexual orientation, but as a political choice and the logical extension of living as a feminist. In theory, any woman could be a lesbian as long as she was "woman-identified" and rejected men and their patriarchal structures. This take on lesbianism resulted in a playing down of lesbian sexual experience. Though plenty of lesbians were having sex, they just weren't talking about it publicly.

For cultural feminists, "acceptable" lesbian sexuality took on a narrow definition, which branded many sexual practices as "politically incorrect" and the lesbians who enjoyed them as outlaws. S/M dykes were turned away from music festivals, and the butch/femme heritage of the 1950s and early 1960s was demeaned - or even denounced outright. For some lesbian-feminists, any kind of penetration or "dirty talk" in sex was taboo, a mimicking of aggressive male sexuality.

Pornography was at the top of many lesbian-feminists' hate list. Citing statistics connecting rape with the viewing of porn, groups like Women Against Pornography launched a campaign to ban porn as discrimination against women. Some lesbians were also staunch critics of gay male porn because of its S/M content. What these women overlooked, though, was that some lesbians liked pornography, both straight and gay, and found it sexually arousing. Lesbians were even daring to create their own porn, but cultural feminists viewed them as simply having bought into men's oppression of women.

Self-identified lesbian sex radicals began raising their voices in protest. Fierce battles raged in lesbian-feminist newspapers and magazines, most of which were controlled by cultural feminists. In 1981, the feminist art and literary magazine, Heresies, shook up the community when it devoted an entire issue to politically incorrect sex. In one article, Amber Hollibaugh summed up 1970s feminism: "You didn't talk dirty and you didn't want dirty.... You couldn't talk about wanting a woman, except very loftily."

To pursue a frank discussion of sexuality and challenge the lesbian "sex police," academic and activist feminists came together to plan a conference, held under the auspices of Barnard College's annual Scholar and the Feminist Conference. "Toward a Politics of Sexuality" opened on April 24, 1982, with 800 women in attendance. Speakers such as Cherrie Moraga, Joan Nestle, Esther Newton, and Gayle Rubin explored how feminists had oppressed each other by instituting right and wrong ways to have sex. Ironically, organizers of the conference engaged in a "feminist fascism" similar to that which they were protesting. They excluded from the planning process anyone who wasn't in their view "pro-sex," primarily anti-porn feminists. But other lesbians also got left out of the process, if they were perceived as "vanilla" and hence not rebels.

Battle lines were drawn, and some of the excluded anti-porn feminists engaged in a series of mean-spirited tactics. Before the conference, for example, they called Barnard's women's center to protest the participation in the conference of "known sadomasochists." During the conference, anti-porn groups picketed outside, handing out flyers targeting panelists by name.

The day after the conference, the newly-formed Lesbian Sex Mafia held its first public speak-out. As 200 women listened, volunteers stood up to talk about their experiences. "I love sex rough," Dorothy Allison boldly admitted, "and I have many fetishes. If it's possible to do it, I'll try it three times." Pat Califia openly declared herself a sadist, "and that is not spelled r-a-p-i-s-t."

The Barnard Conference divided lesbian-feminists into opposing camps that continued to skirmish throughout the eighties, mostly in print. Battles over "porn" versus "erotica" were the most heated. Lesbian sex magazines like Bad Attitude and On Our Backs (a sly play on the name of the more politically correct newspaper, off our backs) appeared on the landscape. Throughout the 1980s, however, many women's bookstores refused to carry these publications on the grounds that they were pornography. Lesbians purchased them instead at gay bookstores, thus forging an alliance with gay men.

By the early 1990s, there was a new generation of lesbians, many of whom had never heard of the Barnard Conference, who embraced the culture introduced by lesbian sex radicals without really understanding its history. Sex clubs for lesbians, complete with back rooms like those in gay men's clubs, for a time replaced the tamer women-only dances of the 1970s. Strap-ons and butt plugs entered the lesbian lexicon, and Susie Bright (a.k.a. Susie Sexpert) packed auditoriums with lesbians anxious to hear her ruminations on latex and labia piercing. But for those who couldn't identify with Bright, there was also JoAnn Loulan, whose common-sense advice books guided many through the sexual ups and downs of lesbian relationships.

While they were volatile and polarizing, the lesbian sex wars opened up a fuller discussion of sexuality within the lesbian community, freeing women to say what they had been socialized not to say. In that way, the sex wars helped usher in a more diverse era of lesbian sexual expression.

Gay Cominc Jason Stuart Makes a Return Visit to the FunnyBone Comedy Club, Green Bay!

Openly gay actor/comic Jason Stuart makes a 'popular demand' return engagement to Green Bay's FunnyBone May 27-31; it's expected to be a sellout. Ticket info, etc. is available by calling (920) 498-2663.

You may have seen Jason in a recent Drew Carey Show episode in which he played an officious salesman at the Winfred Louder Department Store and hosted a contest between Drew and the ever-so-popular Mimi. Or, you may have seen Jason on Entertainment Tonight's Weekend Edition, a profile of one of America's first openly gay actor/comics or in Vegas Vacation with Chevy Chase.

Jason also appeared in the HBO event film Gia starring Faye Dunaway and Mercedes Reuhl; he portrayed a talent agent at the world famous Wilhelmina Agency.

Later this year, we'll see Jason in Rick Rosenberg's Southern Man; he'll play a teacher who mentors a boy who is physically abused by his father. The father murders Jason because he thinks his son and Jason are having an affair.

porters are bidding to host the annual International Gay Bowling Organization (IGBO) tournament in the year 2000. The tournament, which originated in Milwaukee, is held every years during Memorial Day weekend and attracts over 700 bowlers and friends.

"The City of Milwaukee has much to offer and offers an impressive history of community support. We have put together a presentation, complete with a new logo, and are confident we will present the successful bid in Cleveland, Ohio, site of this year's tournament," claims Jerff Whit.

Competing cities, in addition to Milwaukee, are Columbus, OH, Atlanta and Denver.

The Milwaukee area bowlers are asking for assistance and support for this event. FMI or to get involved, contact (414) 482-1964.

LEATHER/FETISH

by Papa Joe

Lee is leaving town again and I have to get my work out of the way so I can have some spare time with my Daddy sitter. Let's get right to it.

Milwaukee/Oberons May 9th - Oberon club night - 1100 Club - 10 PM - "A Mother of a Club night!" - Beer bust and Raffle. Cum win a mum!

June 6th - Oberons & Firebirds co-sponsor an after-hours party for Daddy/Daddy Boy Contest. Get tickets & information from any Firebird. Cum congratulate all the winners!

June 13th - Oberon club night - 1100 Club - 10 PM - "Let it stand up and salute Harley Davidson!" - Beer bust and Raffle. All Harley Enthusiasts are very welcome!

July 11th - Oberon club night - 1100 Club - 10 PM - "Post Firecracker Wacker!" - Beer bust and Raffle. Cum show some Red, White and Blue!

Watch for the opening of the Bristol Renaissance Faire - Oberons and guests will be there in full force opening day!

Everyone is welcome - enjoy the spring! ---Steve/Oberons

Milwaukee/ Castaways The planning for the 1998 joint run with the Castaways MC of Milwaukee and the Argonauts of Wisconsin is moving along. The committees have been formed. This will be the 19th anniversary of the Castaways and the 24th anniversary of the Argonauts. The run will be held at the farm in Hilbert August 14-16. There are motels nearby and they have been reserved for the weekend. Run flyers are forthcoming.

The Castaways will be doing their annual bus trip to Chicago on Saturday, July 18, 1998. Tickets will be available after June 1 from Castaway club members.

Calling all Daddys and Boys. The Castaways and Argonauts will be holding their 9th annual Mr. Wisconsin Daddy/ Daddy's Boy contest on Saturday, June 6. The evening will start off at 5:30 PM with a cocktail party and spaghetti dinner at the South Water Street Docks. From there the activities will moved to the Milwaukee Eagle. Starting at 9:30 PM the contest for both the Daddy and Boy will be held. The Firebirds and Oberons will be sponsoring after bar activities. Tickets will be available that evening from club members.

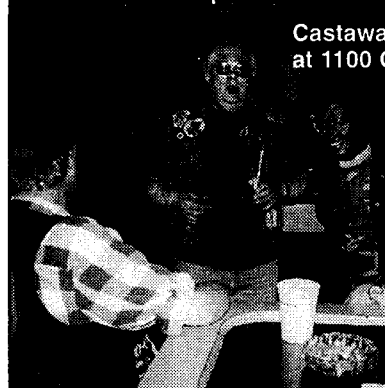

On Sunday afternoon, June 7, the Castaways and Argonauts will hold an auction at the 1100 Club starting at 2 PM. Proceeds from the auction are used by both clubs go to charity. Any business wishing to donate items for the auction should talk to either a Castaway or Argonaut member.

The rules for the contestants are as follows: You do not have to be a resident of

for a while but didn't come across anything. I do think that there could be enough interest as a club from Fond du Lac to Green Bay could include a fair amount of men.

I will have to write to RJ and see if he has got any information from anyone. RJ is a good guy, lives around the lake from us.

Another guy interested in the bear thing is Dan, near Appleton. We stop in at Diversions but mainly go to Green Bay at Buddies. Always a friendly crowd etc. Have a good time at Brandy's II, too.

Get to Boot Camp once in a while and the Eagle. Hey, wish we had bars like the Eagle here!!! Jeez, my eyes almost pop out of my head! We are suppose to meet some guys from here in Milwaukee the first Sat in May. Can't wait!!!

Will get back to you after I contact a few guys I know are interested.

Again I must tell you how I look forward to you articles! Really sparks an interest! Sometime we will have to get out to Milwaukee, hope to meet you sometime!

--- Valley Bears/Tom

Hey Tom: Thanks guy, you say the sweetest things and I look forward to meeting you also. Looks like you have the making of a local Bear group going already; like all good things, it just takes some one to give it a start. It grows from there.

Classic examples of how things grow once it is started are The Daddy and Daddy's boy weekend and the Great Lakes Harley Riders. Both were started as a one time thing and both are bigger than anyone ever imagined.

May I suggest, put flyers up in all the F.V. bars, with a routine date for meet and greets at the bars from Green Bay to Fond du Lac. Hell ain't no reasons you can't hang some in the Milwaukee bars.

I'm sure the bars would like to assist. You have nothing to lose, just ask them, believe me, most will jump at the chance to help you out. Especially you for the hype you gave them. You might want to talk to the Brew City Bears, I am sure they would welcome the chance to assist. There is also a group in Eau Claire. Both have web sites.

Let me know how I can help. Look me up the first Saturday in May, I will be at the Boot Camp for the Firebirds Club nite.

----Papa

Minneapolis/Atons First of all, congrats to the new Mr Minnesota Drummer, Michael Vintean and Minnesota Drummerboy, David McCammon. Both now go on to the regional contest later this year.

The rites of spring will again be observed at Eros, May 16. This is one of two play parties hosted by the Atons. You will be getting something in the mail about it soon.

If you enjoy Eros, then how would you like a whole weekend's worth of Eros...and more. Cum to the Atons weekend party held at our private encampment the third weekend of July (17-18-19). Leather comrades, dungeon play, great food, spring fed pond for swimming, sandy beach, hiking trails through dense forest. Come and meet old and new friends. Cabins with beds available. Tents and RVs (no electricity) welcome. Home cooked meals served both in the dining hall and outside. Hot shower facilities, too.

----Chris Z/Atons

For you folks on the net and wanting to keep abreast with the Atons of Minneapolis, subscribe to their Flash Service atons\_of\_mpls@hotmail.com Write AFS in the subject space. There is no charge.

They will keep you posted on all the known events happening in the Twin Cities area, including an occasional underground dungeon party

-----Papa

Took in the Drummer/Drummer Contest fund raising toga party at SWS Docks. It was a great party. Some of those legs were really ugly. May I suggest a bigger, longer togas. While on the subject -- the WI Drummer/Drummer Boy Contest will be May 16 at South Water Street Docks? The Docks, while not claiming to be a leather bar, does a leather night on Thursday, featuring 75¢ tappers.

While in that neck of the city, a reminder, that the Boot Camp is open with a cocktail hour at 4 PM. AND Wednesday night is Leather Night, the night when you can win the jackpot, which the last time I looked, was well nearly $300.00. You will have fun bargaining with Si for the envelopes.

I did it again and did I get flak. My apologies to all. I don't know how I managed to screw this one up, but the last issue indicated the Firebirds had their club night at the wrong bar. There club nights are routinely at the Boot Camp.

Also just down the street and around the corner from the Boot Camp, another leather bar, The 1100 Club, also features a generous cocktail hour. FYI, Gramma's day off is Monday.

-----Papa

I want to put in a plug for the International Gay Bowling Organization (IGBO) which happens annually over Memorial Day weekend. This event was started in Milwaukee and the local bowlers are going to Cleveland to bid for the event in year 2000.

I know it happens during International Mr. Leather, the high holy days of the Leather Fetish Community, but if you can, you should get involved. You will enjoy all of the events during the year.

The Milwaukee Eagle, Sunday, May 3, The Shaft Club nite -- 4 PM to 8 PM -- theme a tribute to IML -- prizes and the Mr. Eagle for May contest.

Been trying to pin down the rumor that there will (or will not) be a Mr. Wisconsin Leather Contest. If you remember, I mentioned there might be one in October. Since then word has come to me about one in Milwaukee this May and another in Green Bay in October. Ms. Kelly as of yet has not responded to my request for definitive information. Keep you posted.
