ing lot and the PDQ parking lot between 1:00 a.m. and 2:00 a.m.."

The Officer also gave some useful information on how to handle these types of situations.

1. If someone begins harassing you when you're leaving an establishment, go back into that building and call the police immediately; the sooner the police are called,
 the better chance they have in apprehending
 the harassers.

2. Never attempt to reason with or confront the person doing the harassing.

3. When leaving any establishment, walk out of the building with other people. If you're alone, ask someone to walk you to your car.

Za's provides door security for their customers and any employee will provide an escort for anyone who is concerned about walking to their car alone. If your favorite bar doesn't provide door security, just ask the bartender if there is someone who can walk you to the car.

I encourage anyone who is harassed anywhere to report the situation immediately.
 Everyone benefits when we choose to keep ourselves and the people we love safe.

1126 Main, Green Bay (920)437-3917

Over the past years people have mentioned incidents about being harassed when leaving the bars just for being gay. These incidents have happened at my bar and at just about every other popular bar in this country. Even places like Chicago or New York are not safe. Perhaps because I am a bar owner I am a logical choice for these comments. Recently a friend shared his experience when leaving Za's with me. We talked about it and he decided to also call the police. With the continued increase in Gay bashing going on around the country, I thought it would make sense to share Mike's story and also give some common sense rules for avoiding this kind of trouble.

Mike was harassed by some men around one in the morning on a Saturday as he was leaving Za's. The 3 men who were leaving a strip club noticed Mike coming out of Za's, alone, and immediately began making harassing and threatening comments. It was clearly evident that their comments were for the purpose of intimidating Mike or inciting him to react in an inappropriate manner. Mike instead did the smart thing and immediately went back into the bar and waited for the men to leave the parking lot where their vehicles were parked. Mike chose to wait and leave with someone else who was also walking out.

Later Mike called the Green Bay Police Department who were very cooperative and nice to deal with; "I commend them for the way they treated me and the concern they expressed about my experience. One of the things I accomplished by reporting this incident to the police is this: the harassment I experienced is now a statistic which can be used to help reduce these types of incidents in the future. Also, the police officer I spoke with assured me that the Green Bay police would increase their patrols between the Bamboo Room park

Josie Lynn's Farewell

Josie would like to take this opportunity to apologize for having to cancel the Jan. 2nd show, but it's not every day she gets 14 inches!

Her last show as she gives up the art of impersonation!

The show has been re-scheduled for Sat., Jan 30, still at Club 94, showtime 10:30 pm

Be there early to get a great seat!

9001 120th (off I 94) Kenosha, WI (414)857-9958 basis for a nominal fee and may be reserved through Larry or Joe (414) 931-9760, also the phone number for more information on the contest, etc.

The Mr. Wisconsin Leather Man Contest will be held Sat., Feb. 20, starting at 9 pm at The Milwaukee Eagle. Contestants will compete for cash and prizes of $1,500 and the right to represent Wisconsin at International Mr. Leather, Memorial Day weekend in Chicago.

Ida Slapler Captures Miss Gay Southern-USofA Crown at Madison's Kirby's and Nova D'Vine takes Miss Gay Green Bay-America at Za's

Ida Slapler was crowned earlier this month from among six contestants who "dragged" it out at Kirby's in the capital city.

Interview was won by Desiree Matthews, who is also the first alternate. Seven was the evening gown winner; she also placed as second alternate. Dual crown titleholder Kelli Jo Klein, Miss Gay WI USofA and Miss Gay Wisconsin-America, tips her hat to all six girls. Kelli reports the club was jam packed, with Green Bay's Brandy's II owner, Rob, honoring all with his presence.

This past weekend Nova D'Vine became the new Miss Gay Green Bay-America in front of a packed house at Za's. Nova also topped most of the categories except for evening gown. Nova will be giving up her other Green Bay title, Miss Emerald City-USofA at Za's on Saturday March 13. It is evident from the turnout of three contestants and a well run pageant that the America system has grown into a fierce competitor to the USofA system. Quest and Za's are the owners of the USofA system and Quest is also a sponsor of the America system. We are very proud of the commitment the girls are making in Wisconsin. The talent is fabulous! See pictures from the Green Bay-America pageant in this issue!

"See all of you at the next pageant on Saturday, February 6. Miss Gay Great Lakes USofA is a regional pageant open to any male over the age of 21 in the United States. The winner will go on to compete at nationals in Dallas this May. Rumour has it some contestants will be from outside Wisconsin this year. The pageant will be at ZAs in Green Bay!" says Kelli Jo, who admits to not getting home from Madison 'til Tuesday! (naughty girl!)

How gay was the Renaissance?

The Renaissance (Western history roughly between 1400 and 1650), was a time of exploration and great artistic endeavor in Europe, marked by a revival of interest in classical civilizations. A closer look at that age suggests that the Renaissance was also an era buzzing with homosexual activity.

Scholars have found considerable evidence of same-sex relations between adult men and between men and boys in Renaissance Europe, and much of this evidence comes from church and court records. Sodomy was both a religious and a criminal offense, subject to severe punishment by church and state. As part of Henry VIII's religious reformation, in 1533 the English government took over from the church the prosecution of "sodomites," making anal intercourse ("buggery") a felony punishable by hanging. Ireland followed suit in 1634. In the mid-16th century, Geneva, Switzerland, instituted several gruesome punishments for sodomy, including beheading and drowning. Under a 15th-century Florentine body called Ufficiali di Notte (Officers of the Night), designed to sniff out and prosecute homosexuals, the great artist and inventor Leonardo da Vinci was twice charged with sodomy and twice exonerated for lack of evidence.

Many men of the Renaissance, especially those of the upper class, would probably be called bisexual today. According to custom, noblemen married and procreated to carry on their titles, but they kept young pages and attendants on the side as sexual play things - a model taken from classical times. In the all-male world of the clergy, intergenerational same-sex relations were also common. Two popes, Paul II and Julius II, were both notorious for seducing young men. (The latter was a benefactor of Michelangelo, who himself is said to have had same-sex attractions he doesn't seem to have acted on.) In the artisan class, too, homosexual relations often occurred between craftsmen and their apprentices, though historians have also found evidence of sexual relationships between adult working-class men.

The theater was another all-male province; young men and boys played all the female roles. As a consequence, same-sex relations between older and younger actors abounded, and acting itself became a dishonorable profession. In his play, Poetaster, Ben Jonson noted the horror a father experienced when he realized his son was going to be an actor: "What? Shall I have my son ... an angle ("boy favorite") for players?"

In addition, two canonical English playwrights of the Renaissance period, William Shakespeare and Christopher Marlowe, are often claimed today as gay. While there is no evidence to answer the question whether Shakespeare himself had sex with men, 126 of his 154 sonnets rhapsodized about the beauty of an unnamed young man and were published only after his death. A number of his plays either had homoerotic content (for example, Troilus and Cressida) or employed gender-bending comedy (Twelfth Night).

Marlowe, Shakespeare's contemporary, wrote the homoerotic play, Edward II, in which he sympathetically chronicled the love of King Edward for his favorite, Gaveston. Edward's tragedy was the clash of his need to fulfill his role as king and husband and his powerful love for another man. In his personal life as well as his writings, Marlowe left clues about his sexuality: "All they that love not Tobacco & Boies [are] foolies," he reputedly said.

Same-sex relations between women during the Renaissance are much harder to pin down. Women had few outside social contacts and were dependent on men for economic survival. Also, few women (except nuns) were literate and could not document their experiences. In a highly sex-segregated society, it seems likely that intimate attachments between women would have formed, and the lives of some famous women point to this possibility. Queen Christina of Sweden, for example, was romantically attached to one of her ladies-in-waiting and abdicated rather than marry a man. Juana Ines de la Cruz, a Mexican noblewoman, became a nun to get an education and to avoid marriage. As Sor Juana, she had a passionate relationship with the wife of the governor of Mexico.

Some male writers discussed lesbian sex in their work, most likely to titillate other men. In doing so, they inadvertently left records that sex between women was not unheard of. The 16th-century writer, Pierre de Bourdeille, Seigneur de Brantome (**circumflex over the o**), waxed poetic about love-making between women, which he labeled "donna con donna." For him as for other men, lesbian sex was merely prelude or preparation for the real thing - male-female intercourse. The work of one female writer of the Renaissance, Katherine Phillips, has survived. Phillips is sometimes called "the English Sappho." Her poems were published posthumously in the 1660s, and over half of them addressed her love for specific women. Phillips called her relationships "innocent" romantic friendships, but the comparison of her love for women with the love of a bridegroom suggests something deeper.

Men and women of the Renaissance cannot be called "gay" or "lesbian" by today's standards. Homosexuality was an act or a behavior, rather than an identity or culture. Still, literary and historical research shows that same-sex relations were an established fact in Europe hundreds of years before the word "homosexual" was ever coined.

Volunteer Helps Needed at AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin

The AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin is seeking volunteers to provide support to those living with HIV and AIDS, to prevent the spread of HIV and to help with upcoming fundraising events.

"Volunteers are needed more than ever. They are an integral part of ARCW's ability to deliver comprehensive services to people living with HIV," said Mike Gifford, ARCW deputy executive director. "The need for continued HIV prevention services couples with people living longer due to improved HIV drug treatments has created an all-time high need for volunteers," Gifford added.

All volunteers need to complete an application and attend a general orientation. General orientations are held throughout Wisconsin.

Upcoming volunteer orientations are:

- Kenosha area Jan. 30, Feb. 2 and Feb. 27. FMI Jennifer (414) 657-6644
- Milwaukee area Jan. 23 & Feb. 3. FMI Jennifer Baumer (414) 225-1556

Milwaukee LGBT Community Center Holds Annual Meeting Sun., Jan. 24 First 'Annual Meeting' in New Quarters

The Board of Directors of the Milwaukee LGBT Community Center is pleased to announce its annual membership meeting to conclude 1998 and begin 1999 to be held Sunday, Jan. 24, 3-6 pm,
at the Center's new home at 1780
So. 2nd St.

"The annual meeting is an opportunity for the board to report to the Center's members
our past, present and future activities. Additionally, through a voting process, the board will seek membership approval of the Center's 1999 budget, amendments to the Center's bylaws and the election of board members," said Neil Albrecht, Center co-president.

The Milwaukee LGBT
Community Center is a community-based organization represented by more than 100 volunteers and over 230 members.
The Center's mission is to improve the quality of life for LGBT people in the Milwaukee area.

Argonauts of Wisconsin - 25th Anniversary
The Argonauts Of Wisconsin are to be congratulated on the occasion of their 25th Anniversary. This group is the granddaddy of Wisconsin Clubs and has been instrumental in changing the club scene from a strictly social aspect to where many clubs are adopting and supporting causes. Their current push is to financially assist persons with AIDS and have raise tens of thousands of dollars over the years.

A.O.W., based out of Green Bay, also started the Wis L/L Daddy & Boy Contest, hosted The North Woods Run & Mr. North Woods Contest. These three events are now co-hosted with brother club, The Castaways
MC. I am proud to be associated with them as an Alumni Member.

Mark Mariucci, Publisher of Quest Magazine, made Wisconsin Light's "Man of the Year" Congratulations, Mark, nice picture on the front page. Vintage has been kind to you. Just kidding, my friend, you are indeed a nice guy, a great mover and shaker
and handsome as well.

From Oberons/Milwaukee Just thought I would let you know the January club night and afterwards party were a great success. We would like to thank everyone who came to the club night and Mike/Eagle for having us. It won't be our last club night there. We are also planning an afterhours Jan. 30, following The Leather Swap Meet. See an Oberon
for details.

Feb. 13 club night will be at the Boot Camp Saloon, 10pm till ? $1cover, and we will be having a raffle with another chain sling and other things; the sling really went over well at the Eagle. Thanks, your friend in

From Brew City Bears/Milwaukee I have the web site up. Not all the links are perfect yet, but I will remedy that soon. It is at <http://id.net/~bearpa19> It is only temporary until we can get the Dot Org site up and running. You will have to use the Back button to return to the home page, etc. I will upload the corrected pages tonight and cross
my fingers. :-) Catch you on the flip side,
Ciao --Gary/BCB

Thanks, Gary, and a nice job you did.
While on the subject of web sites, the companion page to this column is going forward,
but for reasons listed below, will not be up and running for perhaps 6 more weeks.

Can you link this column to it?

hands out wringing them to save the rest of us.

Something is wrong here. This is the only civilized (some ? here) nation in the western world that would carry on so about a blowjob. All that money spent to get even as well as to blow this incident way the f__k out of proportion in an attempt to justify their actions, is frightening.

They claim to be our leaders. Is it any wonder Jerry Springer and those whining broads of that ilk, who associate with societies' dysfunctionals, think they are legit.

There is no question that the President needs help. I personally would like to whack him a few dozen times on the peepie with Sister Mary Agatha's 16-inch ruler, BUT, who amongst us would not have tried to cover it up?

Maybe someday, as a country, we may mature enough to lose the "get even gang" mentality, which has been rearing its ugly body in the form of Washington politics for all too long.

Maybe some day, we can mature enough to spend our time and engeries doing those things that will heal and cure. And maybe some day the dream of Rev. Dr. Martin L. King - equality for all - will become reality.

Also by now, yours truly will be recouping from bone surgery. This could mean I will not be able to pull together the next column -

- maybe even the following one. Because of this, if you need something published in this column, please put together your write ups, pictures and whatever and send directly to Quest, via E-mail (quest@quest-online.com or USPS mail (PO Box 1961, Green Bay, WI 54305). They will import what you send and call it a column - BUT - they have instructions to not edit or correct your grammar or spelling for they may not be familiar with your/our terminology.

Mind these dead lines - Jan. 26 for the Feb 3rd issue and Feb 9th for the Feb 19th issue.

As soon as I can do the stairs, I will be back on the job.

Thanks to the many of you who have expressed your best wishes for the success of my surgery and recovery. To those of you who didn't know but care, I'll thank you in advance for your kind thoughts and wishes. To those who don't give a f__k one way or the other - that's OK, too.

BTW The Art of Motorcycle exhibit at the Field Museum in Chicago is at best, so-so. At 13 bucks a head, not that spiffy. Just a couple of things you haven't seen before or, in my case, lived.

Quest Flash Service
Getting a lot of positive feedback on this new service which is making it to about 900 addresses. For those who missed the spiel in the last issue, here is a brief recap. This service will be available to clubs, groups and individuals in WI as well as those in adjacent states who serve Wisconsinites. It will contain info about, in and for the Leather Fetish Community (including but not limited to Bears, Bikers, Bondage, Boots, B/D, D/s, Fisting, Leather, Pervy, Rubber, S&M, M/S, ETC.) that didn't make this column and/or updates and changes for same.

To use or recieve this free e-mail only service, E mail PPAJoe@aol.com. If on the net now, just click on my link. In the subject box, please write WisQuest.

Except for my recouping or the lack of incoming info, expect it weekly toward the end of the week.

What do I wear to a Leather Bar? I am on a budget, what should I purchase 1st, 2nd, Etc? These questions are real, especially to those just coming out to leather bars. I'll devote some space to the matter ASAP. In the mean time think black and for keyripes sake, don't wear white sneakers, trainers or tennies without getting laughed at! I'm out of here, wish me luck - Papa
