PAST OUT

BY DAVID BIANCO

May 21, 1979 (20 years ago this week): In front of San Francisco's City Hall, gay men and lesbians riot over the verdict of manslaughter for Dan White, killer of Harvey Milk and George Moscone.

What were the White Night Riots?

On the morning of November 27, 1978, Dan White, a member of San Francisco's Board of Supervisors, came into the office of the city's liberal mayor, George Moscone, through a side door, argued with the mayor, and then shot him two times in the chest. When Moscone fell, White shot him twice more in the head. After reloading his .38, White rushed across the hallway to the office of Supervisor Harvey Milk, the city's first openly gay elected official, and shot him a total of five times - like Moscone, first in the chest and then through the head. Both Moscone and Milk died instantly of their execution-like wounds.

Milk and White had both served only 11 months as supervisors. An Irish Catholic ex-cop who had won election on a "traditional values" platform, White was an ultra-conservative supervisor who unsuccessfully tried to stop the city's gay pride celebration. White was also the only supervisor on the 11-member board to vote against San Francisco's landmark gay rights ordinance. Milk told friends he suspected that White's aggressive homophobia stemmed from his being "a closet case."

Saying he was politically disillusioned and citing his insufficient salary as supervisor, White resigned his post in early November 1978. But his supporters quickly urged him to stay on, and within a few days of his resignation, White decided he did indeed want his job back. But he found that he couldn't simply rescind his resignation; the mayor had to reappoint him.

At first Moscone leaned toward reinstating White, but Milk lobbied aggressively against it. Moscone set November 27 as the day on which he would announce his decision publicly, but word leaked out that White would not be reappointed because "an unnamed supervisor" had opposed him.

To most people, it looked like White had planned the killings in advance as revenge. White evaded City Hall metal detectors on the morning of the slayings by climbing through a side window, and he carried several extra rounds of ammunition in his pocket. After shooting Moscone, he reloaded and entered Milk's office, casually asking, "Say, Harv, can I see you?" In addition, White shot both his victims in the head at close range to make sure they were dead.

The prosecution in the Moscone-Milk murder case saw White's actions as clear-cut first-degree murder. But White's lawyers drew a completely different picture. According to the defense, White was an exemplary person, a hard-working and wholesome family man, who, under normal circumstances, would never have killed anyone. However, he was extremely depressed because of his finances, and that made him act irrationally. The night before the shootings, one psychiatrist testified, White consumed an enormous amount of junk food - mostly Twinkies and Cokes - and his fluctuating blood sugar levels had exacerbated his depression. "The pot had boiled over," his defense attorney said.

What probably decided the case was a tactical error by the prosecution - the playing of White's tape-recorded confession in court. On the tape, White broke into sobs as he described how he just "wanted to talk to [Milk]" but that Milk "started kind of smirking, 'cause he knew, he knew that I wasn't going to be reappointed."

The prosecution hadn't gauged the homophobia of the jurors, all of whom were white and heterosexual. Gays and people of color had been excluded during jury selection as too biased. When the jury heard White's tear-choked confession - "I just got all flushed and, and hot and I shot him" - several jurors wept openly in sympathy for the killer. On May 21, 1979, the jury found White guilty of involuntary manslaughter, for which he received a sentence of eight years in prison. With good behavior, he would be out in five.

The city exploded in rage. Many people of color who had supported Moscone and Milk believed that White received leniency because he was a white man. The lesbian and gay community - which had initially reacted to the murders with more pain and sadness than anger - was now furious. It believed that if the heterosexual Moscone had been the sole victim, White would have been imprisoned for life. The verdict sent a message that a gay man was expendable, and the lesbian and gay community responded with anger and violence.

The night of the verdict, 3,000 demonstrators shouting, "We want justice!" and "Avenge Harvey Milk!" marched to City Hall. The demonstration quickly escalated into a riot. Protesters smashed store windows and set police cars on fire. Shortly after, the police retaliated by raiding a gay bar in the Castro district. They entered the Elephant Walk swinging their nightsticks and ended up injuring several people and destroying property. In total, about $1 million in damages occurred on the night of May 21, in what became known as the "White Night Riots."

Gay rioters stood by their actions. "Until we display our ungovernable rage at injustice," lesbian activist Sally Gearhart said, "we won't get heard." Harry Britt, the gay man appointed to Milk's seat on the board, had at first tried to calm the rioters, but then admitted he understood their rage. "We're reacting with anger because we're angry," he told reporters.

Despite bitter protests, White's sentence held, and he served only five-and-a-half years for the murders. He received no psychiatric treatment in jail. In 1985, the year after his release, White committed suicide by asphyxiating himself in his wife's car.

"We are pleased to have the AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin join the AIDS VAX study," said Dr. Donald P. Francis, president of VaxGen. "The support of volunteers, the health care community and AIDS service organizations like ARCW is essential to VaxGen's goal of developing a vaccine that will end the AIDS epidemic."

Over 1,200 individuals have been enrolled in the trial which will eventually reach 5,000 volunteers throughout North America. In Thailand, a similar trial will involve 2,500 volunteers at risk for HIV through injection drug use.

Earlier clinical trials have shown that AIDS VAX is safe for use in humans and induces a strong immune response. Volunteers cannot become infected with HIV by this vaccine. It is not made from live HIV-1 virus. To date, there are no known side effects except those that often occur with inoculations such as soreness in the arm.

ARCW has conducted its clinical trial program since 1991 through its AIDS Research Consortium, a statewide group of HIV medical practitioners lead by Dr. Buggy. Its past trials include research on AIDS drugs and combinations that have been highly utilized by patients such as AZT; 3TC; and Delavirdine; and Remune, a treatment medication.

West End Records Is Back & Releasing A Compilation of Remixes by Paradise Garage Legend Larry Levan

Venerable New York dance label West End Records is set for a July release of its first album in over twenty years - "Larry Levan's Classic West End Remixes (Made Famous at the Legendary Paradise Garage)" It's a compilation of nine tracks remixed (1979-82) by Larry Levan, the DJ behind New York's Paradise Garage. Levan died in 1992, but continues to be cited as one of the industry's most revered.

Each of the nine individual full-length tracks was digitally remastered this year specifically for this project, and the sound quality is brilliant! A supporting series of classic West End Records 122 vinyl singles are being released to compliment this album in the signature West End Records hot pink New York City skyline jackets. The compilation comes complete with comprehensive liner notes giving the label's history, its relationship with Levan and anecdotes about each of the nine remixes and how each came about.

West End Records is considered to be one of the great New York City record labels from the late 70's & early 80's, and stands in good company with labels like Prelude, SalSoul and Casablanca. A few of the label's hits include Karen Young's Hot Shot, Taans Gardner's Heartbeat (both sold over 800,000 singles), plus Raw Silk's Do It to the Music and Loose Joint's It's All Over My Face. Originally opened in 1976, the label reopened last year after being dormant for fifteen years.

HIV Prevention Vaccine Trial Launched in Wisconsin ARCW seeks volunteers to Advance Research

Milwaukee, May 20, 1999. The first HIV prevention vaccine trial inoculation was given at the AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin. Patrick Price of Milwaukee became the first person in Wisconsin to receive the experimental vaccine. The AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin is encouraging others to follow his lead by enrolling in the prevention vaccine trial.

Almost 70 individuals have expressed interest in volunteering for the HIV vaccine trial. Twelve received their inoculations May 21.

ARCW was selected as the state's site for the first HIV prevention vaccine trial AIDSVAXTM in March and is planning to enroll 150 volunteers by August into the Phase III clinical trial, sponsored by VaxGen, Inc., the developer of AIDSVAX.

"From the beginning of AIDS 18 years ago, we have all dreamed of a prevention vaccine," said Doug Nelson, ARCW executive director. "Today we make history by launching this vaccine trial which is a giant step forward toward realizing the dream of a vaccine that will save lives and put an end to the AIDS epidemic." He added, "We are proud to be a part of this pioneering effort to further worldwide research in pursuit of an effective HIV vaccine."

ARCW is recruiting volunteers who are at risk for HIV infection but who are currently HIV-negative. Each volunteer will be given a total of seven inoculations during a 30-month period. Sixteen follow-up counseling sessions with each volunteer will stress HIV/AIDS prevention messages.

"We will emphasize strongly that no volunteer can rely on this trial as protection from HIV infection," Nelson said. "This research will only measure the potential of the vaccine. Our emphasis on HIV risk reduction will be strong and constant."

During the three-year trial, neither volunteers nor researchers will know which volunteers are given the vaccine and which receive a placebo, or inactive substance. At the end of the trial, the rate of infection in the group that received the placebo will be compared to the rate of infection among volunteers who received the vaccine. That comparison will be used to determine the effectiveness of the vaccine.

Phase III trials are a critical step in the strictly monitored process by which a new vaccine or drug is tested and precede application to and approval by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to license and market the product.

"AIDSVAX is designed to stimulate an immune response resulting in the production of antibodies that will hopefully identify and neutralize HIV," Brian Buggy, MD, ARCW's medical director and the trial's principal investigator said. "Being selected as a trial site is certainly a statement of confidence in our clinical research efforts at the AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin."

Volunteers Needed for Dining Out for Life Event on Thurs., June 17

Volunteers are needed as host ambassadors for ARCW's and Camp Heartland's 3rd annual Dining Out for Life event on Thursday, June 17. For the past two years, Dining Out for Life has been held in restaurants throughout the Greater Milwaukee area; this year, the event is expanding to include Green Bay, Appleton and Madison, and ARCW has been invited to become an additional beneficiary - will receive 50% of the money raised.

Last year's event raised over $64,000. Host ambassadors are needed in each city.

Ambassadors are placed in each participating restaurant, and will greet diners, thank them for participating and hand out envelopes/questionnaires, which, when completed, serve as entries for the Grand Prize drawing, round trip tickets for two on Midwest Express Airlines to any destination where they fly.

Host ambassador training sessions are scheduled for Thursday, June 10.

Green Bay Gay Youth to Get Special Support

The Renaissance Counseling Center (RCC) of Green Bay, in conjunction with AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin (ARCW), recognizes the need to provide a support and educational group for at-risk gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgendered (GLBT) youth of Brown County.

The group is meeting every Monday evening from 6:30-8:30 at RCC, 311 S. Jefferson St., Green Bay. The facilitation of this group will be done under the auspices of Program Coordinator Patti Peterson-Bilotto, MS CPC, of RCC with trained community volunteers.

Our goal is to establish a broad-based support network of GLBT youth 14-18. Issues facing lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgendered youth have often been ignored. To address this problem of invisibility, we must, with courage and compassion, develop support networks as other communities have across the state - Appleton, LaCrosse, Milwaukee.

Without a safe place to go, many GLBT youth experience multiple stress factors over and above the normal stress related to adolescence. Studies have shown that nearly 80% of LGBT youth experience severe problems with isolation. The studies have also shown that half

June 18, 19 & 20. Oberons Run, ACORN 12: "A Midsummer Night's Murder"

This is the only in-town run in the State. The others being outdoors. If you have never been to a Leather/Levi Club's run, you would do well to make this one, especially if Milwaukee is your turf.

Anyone interested in going to the run (full or Junior) or just the dinner, see an Oberon as soon as possible. You have until Wednesday to get involved, BUT don't wait that long; do it now. As I mentioned in the last issue, there are three options for joining the festivities. (1) the whole run from Friday thru Sunday; (2) the Junior run which is Saturday (including the afterhours party) or just the Saturday dinner portion. Each has a different price, so see and Oberon ASAP. You will enjoy.

In the "let's-not-worry-about-it-department" - A couple of issues ago, I mentioned that Tom R was one of the founding members of the Castaways M.C. Some of you heard that another of the founders (no longer with The CMC) claimed the information was incorrect. I have double checked the information and both Tom and Bob affirmed that they were indeed founders of the Castaways M.C. Who is mistaken? I don't know, nor really care, but the score is now 2 to 1 that the statement is correct.

BUT to prove I do screw up:

Dear Papa Joe: Greetings. We will be sending a club listing of the Unicorns for the web site. I know we have a color patch picture in the computer — I just have to find it.

But, "please, please" change the Unicorns Club night to THE THIRD (3rd) SATURDAY of the month; due to other events in 1999, we changed from the the first Saturday to the third. About two issues back, you did mention this in your column, but the Calendar has not been changed and a certain Unicorn is riding my tail about this!!! Please help. Thanks, Gus/Unicorns

Twenty lashes are deserved for my sin of omission or is it commission. Please note it is in bold in the schedule of events below and elsewhere. Now tell that person who is riding your ass to stop over and we will have to work things out (or is that in, or maybe both - - ohhh, I'm moist) To err is human, to forgive, divine. You as a god like creature, can't find a person much more humaner than I. Below is the message Gus sent originally.

The Unicorns of Madison have changed their club nights from the first Saturday of the month to the THIRD Saturday of the month. This year there were too many other scheduled activities in Milw. and Chicago that fell on the first weekend of the month. So, we continue to have club nights at "The Barracks" at Club 5. We offer $1 off drink tickets for men in leather, uniforms, or fetish wear. Please change the monthly calendar so that it reflects that our club nights are now the 3rd Sat. night of the month at 10 pm.

The Wisconsin Mr. Drummer and Drummer Boy Contest came and went without the excitement of the Wisconsin Mr. Leather and Wis. Daddy and Daddy's Boy contests. I have heard many comments as to why there was a low audience turnout with only one person for each of the titles. Many seem to agree that it was because it was the third of three contests in just over 3 months. I am not sure I agree with this or most of the offered suggestions.

Think back to the very first Drummer contest, maybe 8 years ago. It didn't generate the attention, contestants and patronage it should have. Frankly it fizzled.

This was after a long time without any contests; it was the first contest of only two that year. The organizer knew his way around and had entered contests; it had the Drummer name recognition and yet the other contest had a packed house and too many contestants, damn little in prizes and charged admission.

It was either the first Daddy Contest or the Here's the Beef Contest. It was to be a one time only event. And I might add, the emcee (me) didn't know his butt from a fruit jar.

Why the difference? Again, a lot of reasons were offered, none which worked for me.

Two or 3 years ago, Warren, (you remember the cutie in a leather cop outfit) pulled off a very successful WI Drummer Contest. Here is a guy who had a big smile, but not a lick of experience and everything he knew about contests, came out of a book or from friends.

What is the common thread to a successful contest event? Why do folks enter a one time contest with no prizes, or one with name recognition one time and not others? Why are some jammed charging admission and not others which were free? I have some ideas, however none I am willing to bet on. What do the promoters have to do to get quality contestants and a large audience? I guess when they figure that out, they will be successful.

June 18 - 20 Oberons Anniversary Run,
Milwaukee

Before I get back on the subject of leathers, I want to thank those of you who have been commenting on this series; you make up quite a spectrum of experiences and knowledge. The comments I get the most satisfaction from are from those of you with little or no experience. More experienced folks are offering me addresses of manufactures, retail and resale shops. Although I do not have room to print all of these, they are much appreciated. So keep them coming

LEATHER part 5: Leather quality

FYI, in the long past, leather thickness was gauged by the weight in ounces of one square foot of leather. Hence, one square foot of 8 ounce (belt leather) weighed 8 ounces. Because of different tanning processes and the ability to split the leather thickness, this measurement means was no longer a reliable gauge. Thickness is still called ounces but is now measured in 64ths of an inch. One ounce being 1/64th of an inch. Jackets and Chaps can be 2 1/2 oz. to as much as 4 1/4 oz. A belt strap would be 8 to 10 ounces range. Goat and kid skin is in the 1 ounce range.

Finishes or lack thereof. If the leather shines, it is finished; if it has a matte finish and is soft and pliable, it will probably be "nude" or without a finish. Finished leather will shed water and stains more readily than nude - but nude clings better and makes you feel so much gooder.

Finally, I have erred in the use of a manufacture name - - - FIRST GEAR is a quality brand name related to Hein Gericke, another quality brand name. FIRST Manufacturing is an inexpensive brand made in some Asian country where labor is cheap. There is a world of difference in quality and price.

A bunch of years ago, my Grandpa Jule, the saintly quiet man who was a fountain of wisdom said, "the difference between men and boys is the price of their toys". It is the same with leather, so start looking and save your pennies. Let's work our way up the quality list.

The leather jackets in many of the leather stores are fairly basic and inexpensive. The cheapest is the First Manufacturing type stuff, then there are some manufacturers with some improvements in quality and an increase in price. You will notice the difference when you get to the brand names like First Gear - Hein Gericke, Vanson, Bates, Harley Davidson. Besides being more than a step or two up in quality, they offer some design changes. As you start looking these over, you should see the differences in quality. Ask yourself "what does this jacket have that makes it better than the $89.99 one?" If you can't see and feel the difference, don't think for a minute it is your lack of knowledge. Some brands are counting on the name to sell it.

Design choices become more available. Starting with the standard MC gear, to more stylish and trim looks geared to almost a "G.Q. ish" look. These are designed to fit a person with a chest measurement bigger than their waist line. Look them all over, touch, feel and smell them all. The experience will make you far more aware of quality, styling and sensuousness than anything I can say.

Once you have shopped around and picked up some experience, you will be ready to make your selection. Now all you have to do is wait for a sale, which most major outlets like HD and Leather Empire have.

With few exceptions, jackets offered in gay owned leather stores will be much the same as non gay shops. As with some str8 outlets, you can find local or custom made jackets available.

The next step up are - - Barry Clune from Portland OR, another man with good taste for boots, leather and Harleys, has a website <http://www.classicjackets.com>

His speciality is tailor made classic jackets. These are post WWII vintage and wearing one of these beauties will set you apart from the crowd.

For police style jackets, you might wanna check out Taylor Leatherwear. Maybe they will sell to you directly, they're phone number is 1-800-275-1832.

There are others, BUT The Creme d Creme is Lanlitz Leathers of Portland, OR 5033; 235-0959. They advertise as the world's finest motorcycle leathers. I believe it for I have never seen any jacket like in all my years. I have drooled over their gear since I saw the first ad 20 some years ago. I'm still kicking myself for not buying back then. A jacket goes for as much as $1,600.00 and you will have to wait a year for it. They do several styles jackets and pants, all hotter than hell

Next issue we will deal with chaps, pants and the like, which pretty much wraps this up. If you have any questions, I will do my best to respond to them.
