PAST OUT

BY DAVID BIANCO

When were the first sodomy laws passed in America?

Today in the United States, sodomy is primarily defined as oral or anal sex between two men or two women. More than a third of the states still have sodomy laws on their books, and the Supreme Court upheld those laws in 1986 in its anti-gay decision, Bowers v. Hardwick. But the original colonial sodomy laws, passed in the 1600s, had a much broader view of what constituted "sodomy."

American sodomy laws derived from the so-called English "buggery law," passed by Parliament in 1533 in the reign of Henry VIII. Until that year, the Roman Catholic Church had been responsible for judging and meting out punishment for sodomy, which was considered a mortal sin. Under the English Reformation, the king declared himself head of the church in England, cutting off the authority of the pope. "Buggery" (a popular word derived from the French bougres, meaning "heretical") became a criminal offense punishable in the courts by hanging. Even the clergy were subject to criminal prosecution for the offense.

In the so-called "New World," the settlement at Jamestown, Va., was founded in 1607 by the London Company as a British military and trading post. During its first years, Jamestown had few clergy members or women, both of which were seen as "civilizing" influences. Though British law was implicitly in force, in May 1610 the governor of Virginia, Sir Thomas Gates, instituted martial law in order to keep the young male colonists more firmly in line. Virginia's "Articles, Laws, and Orders, Divine, Politique, and Martial" covered a long list of both secular and religious infractions punishable by "pain of death" - theft, blasphemy, adultery, rape, illegal trade with Indians, and "the detestable sins of Sodomy." (It was plural because sodomy included male-male and male-female anal and oral sex, as well as bestiality.) The new code sought to instill a sense of order on what was seen as a wild, unruly group who needed "severe discipline ... sharp laws ... a hard life and much labor." Martial law was in effect for eight years, until more women and families began to arrive from England as settlers.

There were, however, no recorded executions for sodomy until 1624. The first person to be executed was Richard Cornish, a ship's captain accused of sexually assaulting his indentured servant, William Cowse. The charge, as chronicled in the minutes of the Virginia court, sounds today like a case of sexual harassment - Cornish wanted to have sex with Cowse, who refused and then was given extra work. On the basis of the testimony of another crewmember who overheard Cornish proposition Cowse, Cornish was tried and hanged. Two men who publicly objected to the execution as unjust received punishments of their own - standing on the pillory and having their ears cut off.

As the number of colonial settlements grew in the 1600s, each instituted its own local code of laws, and each included sodomy as a capital offense. The New England colonies in particular, which were founded by strict religious separatists, punished sodomy harshly because they considered it a crime against marriage and the family - a charge that has echoes in today's debates over homosexuality. But the concept of "family" was different 300 years ago; the family was, in fact, the major economic unit of production of that agricultural society. Early New Englanders faced brutal, unfamiliar weather conditions, crop failures, starvation, disease, high infant mortality, and common death in childbirth. Procreation was the key to the economic survival of the colonies.

In this survivalist atmosphere, sodomy - both same-sex and opposite-sex - and masturbation "tended to the frustrating of the ordinance of marriage and the hindering of the generation of mankind," as John Winthrop declared in the 1646 sodomy trial of a man in Guilford, Conn. "Spilling" or "spending" male "seed" in any kind of non-procreative activity was considered a sinful waste, because it put the future of the colonies in jeopardy.

Gay historians have found approximately 20 recorded cases of sodomy charges being brought against individual male colonists from 1624 to 1740; four resulted in the death penalty. Because lesbian sexual activity didn't involve "seed spilling," it was apparently viewed more leniently. In one case of "lewd behavior ... upon a bed" between two women in Plymouth, both women were merely given a warning. Only the New Haven colony authorized death for "filthiness" between women, judging lesbian sex acts as contrary to "the natural use of women" - that is, child-bearing. There are, however, no recorded instances of the punishment being carried out.

After the American Revolution, separation of church and state became one of the founding principles of the new republic. Punishment for sodomy was gradually reduced to jail time and loss of property. Still, until 1961, all 50 states had some form of sodomy law. Today, most of the states with these antiquated laws on their books are in the South. Though rarely enforced, these statutes are used when convenient against lesbians and gay men, especially in child custody cases.

Wisconsin Public Television Observes Gay & Lesbian History Month with More Specials

Several more special programs are scheduled on Wisconsin Public Television to observe Gay and Lesbian History Month....this month.

Here are the offerings for the balance of June: Mon., June 21, 10 pm - "In the Life: American as Apple Pie" offering an examination of the widely held view that Judy Garland's funeral on the eve of the Stonewall Riots helped spark the conflict. Campus fraternities for gay men are also featured.

Wed., June 23, 8 pm - "After Stonewall: From the Riots to the Millenium" is a sequel to the Emmy Award-winning Before Stonewall, and traces the recent history of gay and lesbian life, from the riots at the Stonewall Bar in Greenwich Village in 1969 to the end of the century. Wed., June 23, 9:30 pm - "The Castro" is a documentary which chronicles how a quiet, working-class San Francisco neighborhood which was home mainly to European immigrants gave way to a new community that has become an international symbol of gay liberation. Combing interviews, archival materiel and contemporary footage, the program sheds light on what became the world's first 'gay hometown.'

Wisconsin Public Television offers programs relevant to the state's diverse people on WHA-TV/Madison, WPNE-TV/Green Bay, WHLA-TV/LaCrosse, WHRM-TV Wausau, WHWC-TV Menomonie-Eau Claire and WLEF-TV Park Falls.

HIV infections in Wisconsin, especially among women, communities of color and young adults who are becoming sexually active and haven't heard the HIV prevention message yet," says Doug Nelson, ARCW executive director.

Volunteers Make PrideFest Happen

PrideFest needs volunteers again this year, especially on Sunday; last year more than 800 people served as PrideFest volunteers!

As a volunteer, you will receive free admission on the day or days you work, or as a pre- and post-festival worker, a complimentary ticket to the festival; a special badge to identify you as a volunteer; a complimentary meal at the festival; an invitation to the volunteer party later in the year plus the satisfaction of knowing you did your part for the largest Pride festival in Wisconsin.

Volunteers must commit four and a half hours of volunteer time.

Two volunteer orientation sessions will be offered and can be especially helpful for first time volunteers. The first session is on Sat., July 17, 10-noon, at the LGBT Center, 170 So. 2nd St., Milwaukee; a second session will be held at the PrideFest Stonewall Stage at the festival grounds on Wed., Aug. 4, 6:30-8 pm.

Volunteers can get applications by contacting PrideFest at (414) 272-FEST by July 24.

Chicago Pride Parade Sunday, June 27, to Have Olympic Gold Medal Winner Greg Louganis as Special Guest

Greg Louganis will be the special guest at Chicago's 30th Annual Gay & Lesbian Pride Parade on Sun., June 27.

The international theme for the 1999 celebration is "A Proud Past, A Powerful Future." The parade commemorates the night in June, 1969, when gay and lesbians fought back during a raid of the Stonewall Inn, a Greenwich Village-New York City gay bar.

Chicago's parade will begin lining up at Halsted St. and Belmont Ave., and will proceed north on Halsted to Broadway, then on Broadway to Diversey, then east on Diversey to Cannon Dr.

Last year's parade drew 246 entries and a quarter of a million people. A bigger crowd is expected this year.

A 4 p.m. rally will take place in Lincoln Park after the parade ends (Grove #13) at 3000 N. Lake Shore Dr. West (the Inner Drive at Wellington). Feature performers will include bands as well as singers.

Special guest Louganis won his first Olympic medal at age 16. He became the first man to win double gold medals in diving in two consecutive Olympics, and was six-time World Champion.

Louganis' best selling autobiography, "Breaking the Surface," was #1 on the New York Times best seller list and was later made into a movie. "For the Life of Your Dog" is his latest book, which was recently published.

IN THESE TIMES

Thirty years after the Stonewall riots launched the modern movement for sexual freedom, gays and lesbians are asking themselves....what next?

Gays are now more accepted than ever in mainstream life; yet, many vexing problems--hate crimes, job discrimination, AIDS--still remain. Some conservatives argue that gays and lesbians will never be truly welcome 'at the table' until they shed their radicalism, and especially their long-standing association with the political left.

In These Times, a clarion of American progressive politics since 1976, thinks otherwise. To commemorate the thirtieth anniversary of Stonewall, they've put together a package of articles which demonstrate that queers will need the left, and vice versa.

In These Times is a progressive bi-weekly magazine of news, opinion and culture. Subscriptions are available by calling 1-800-827-0270 or visiting www.inthesetimes.com.

CELEBRITY DANNY GLOVER TO LEAD AIDS WALK WISCONSIN - SUN., SEPT. 12, MILWAUKEE

The AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin has announced actor and social activist Danny Glover will lead this year's 10th anniversary AIDS Walk Wisconsin by serving as its Honorary Chair. Glover is slated to help recruit walkers throughout the summer and will attend the state's largest AIDS fundraiser on Sun., Sept. 12, in Milwaukee.

Glover is well known for his leading roles in the recent movie Beloved in which he co-starred with Oprah Winfrey, in Steven Spielberg's The Color Purple, the Academy Award-winning Places in the Heart and in the mega-hit Lethal Weapon film series in which he co-starred with Mel Gibson.

Throughout his career, he's been a strong advocate for human rights and helping youth.

"I come to the AIDS Walk for the serious purpose of intensifying the fight against AIDS in Wisconsin," Glover said. "I worry that a new generation of American youth is at high risk for HIV because of an unwarranted and dangerous complacency. I will challenge the people of Wisconsin to Walk with me and to work harder to defeat AIDS."

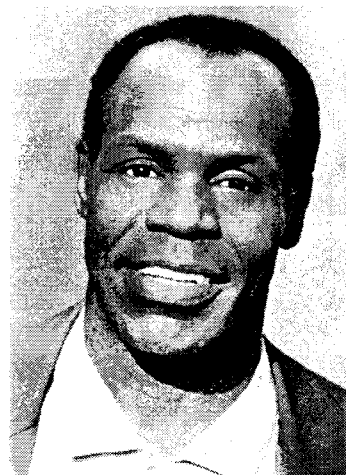

Doug Nelson, ARCW executive director, praised Glover's commitment. "He's a powerful advocate," said Nelson, "he's serious about AIDS, he's correct that AIDS complacency is a big problem, and he will be a terrific motivator for the tenth anniversary AIDS Walk."

Nelson added that HIV infection rates continue to rise in Wisconsin and that the protease inhibitor drug therapy that was extending the lives of many, are now, regrettably, failing for up to half of the people with HIV and AIDS taking the drug treatments.

Glover will speak at the AIDS Walk Breakfast and the Opening Ceremony, and will kick off the expected 10,000 walkers during a red ribbon cutting with other Wisconsin dignitaries. He follows a distinguished list of Honorary Chairs including Bette Midler, Vice President and Mrs. Gore and Ervin "Magic" Johnson.

To register for AIDS Walk Wisconsin, call 800-348-WALK, or register online at www.arcw.org. Bus transportation will be provided to the AIDS Walk from all parts of the state. Pledge walkers will gain free admission to the Indian Summer festival, which is also being held on Summerfest grounds the day of AIDS Walk.

ARCW thanks corporate partners for their continued support, including WKTU, Ameritech, Fortis Health, Jewel Osco, Miller Brewing, National Association of Theater Owners of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, Obie Media, Potawatomi Bingo Casino, Sportmart, Subaru and United Airlines. Generous media supporters include Community Newspapers, Inc., In Step, Isthmus, Milwaukee Community Journal, Milwaukee Courier, Milwaukee Times, Quest, Shepherd Express Metro, Wisconsin Light, WIXX 101, Magic 98.1 and WFRV-TV.

Records Worth Checking out...

Logic released a 12" that takes the Star Wars music to the house groove. "In the Beginning (A New Hope)" by Liquid Sun. Too Euro for me, but should please all the other hard core Star Wars fanatics!

Joi Cardwell's "Last Chance For Love" now charting on DJ Tony's Ritschards top 10 at Club 5 is just out on 12" vinyl. Sounds just a bit like Donna Summer's "Last dance" and could remind you of that, but a totally fresh new song. The Pacific Drive Vocal or the standard 12" mix are best.

In the OOOOPS we had this for a while and them on Much Music. We're waiting for the video here guys...

LEATHER/FETISH

by Papa Joe

Wisconsin, You have every right to proud of your Mr. Wisconsin Leather, Andrew. As a contestant at IML, he placed in the top 20 AND, as you would expect, several judges gave him their top scores. The men competing for the title are stack like brick out-houses, and, like Andrew, have a mind to match. You really have to have it together to make the last cut and get to be a finalist.

Andrew, you did us proud, Thank you.

Wisconsin Leather Men were everywhere that weekend. Several, along with Joe and Gene, threw a party for Andrew -- They invited the creme d la creme. WOOOFFF -- Sorry to say, my camera has been misplaced or stolen. The camera ain't worth diddle, but most of my IML pictures were still in it. Anyone got some pictures to put on the net for the world to see?? Let me know and I will get them on the Quest site in the photo gallery.

Have you seen it yet?? The leather fetish section of the Quest web site?? Check it out at <http://www.quest-online.com>. Bob, Gary and Za have pulled together a very attractive and informative site for us. As I write this, all sections are not complete, but go to it and look it over. If you see anything that should be added, changed or deleted, please contact me. If you find we have overlooked any leather fetish club, group or association, please contact us with the missing information and it will be included ASAP. Until Bob and Gary get their direct contacts established, I will make sure they get the info.

There are to be 5 segments to the site. (maybe more later) These will include:

1. Clubs, groups and associations, information and how to contact.
2. Calendar of events of area clubs, groups and associations who fall under the umbrella of leather fetish. It will list upcoming events and happenings as far in advance as clubs and groups want to send. You are encouraged to get your information in as soon as possible.
3. Photo page, here we will post pictures of your parties, events and happenings.
4. Links page to major sites of interest relating to leather fetish, including those interests without local chapters such as M.A.F.I.A. and events such as International Mr. Leather.
5. Papa Joe's Leather Fetish Column
Please check in at the site and look it over.

In the "I've got to share this with you" department. Looking for Daddy, Howdy!

I saw your email address listed at the quest site and thought I'd ask for your help. Last Halloween I met and played with a great Dad at the Lonestar in San Francisco. The problem was that we lost contact with each other.

His name is Jim (I think, I mostly called him Dad or Sir) and he was a past Wisconsin L/L Daddy (maybe '98?). If you know him, could you tell him I said "howdy" and I'd love to hear from him. I'd sure appreciate it! Thanks, Sir!

Daddy Jim, Sir; You ought to be ashamed, leaving the poor boy high and dry. We want the details and then I will give you Cam's E address.

From: Robert Jansen/Duluth We are having our pride celebration on Labor Day weekend. Saturday, a picnic and Sunday, a walk for pride along with a fruit float aboard the Vista Star. Was wondering if the Great Lakes Harley Riders would like to come up that weekend for a road trip? Bob Jansen BTW -- a fruit float...we rent the triple level boat and go out on Lake Superior for a three-hour cruise.

Geez --, I finally got it, A Fruit float!!! Gays on a boat. DAHH

I will pass the word along to all the G.L.H.R. men as well as other bikers in the general area. You know how it is, the weather dictates what a biker does and when.

A Reminder

18-20 Jun., Milwaukee Oberon run-ACORN 12: Hope to see you there.
