Letter from the work-a-holic

If you're anything like me, each time the seasons change, I begin to get that urge. You know the one I mean. It's the one that makes you think you want or need a boyfriend (or girlfriend), even though it's been 7 or 8 years since your last one and deep down inside you still have sworn off them. (Too much baggage to go into detail here...) Of course, it's just nature calling, or lust when you get down to it. Then again, I still can't quite get myself to let down my guard and go have a little fling (also known as a trick). I remember the last one. A bartender set that one up and I still haven't forgiven him completely.

You see, I'm locked in a battle between wanting sex and romance, but not wanting to get involved in a relationship of any kind, even a brief encounter. I tell myself I'm much too busy for any of that sort of thing, but in reality perhaps I am just too scared to try again. Instead, I sit on the sidelines and wait for "Mr. Right" to come along and sweep me off my feet and start me on that path of doom known as my past relationships... (oops, some of that baggage again).

At least I can still look, and boy do I enjoy window shopping! I was at the recent Grand Opening Party for the Rainbow Room in Madison and was surrounded by lots of gorgeous men. The entire time I was "power networking" my mind was also window shopping. Hey, I can still look. A girl's entitled, you know! As I was being torn away from the festivities all too early, down the sidewalk walks "Mr. Right Now!" He asked if the bar he was about to enter was a gay bar. We told him it was and in he went. Damn, and I have to drive back to Green Bay to check on our bartenders. Plus, there's that next issue of Quest not getting done all by itself. Sigh, "Mr Right Now" will just have to do without me. At least I have some new fantasies to tide me over...

On a more sober note, not that I was, of course, the private party at the Rainbow Room was a blast. I ran into so many friends I barely had time to spend with my escort and "unpaid Quest typesetter," but that's another story about newspapers and staff and merging and all that which I won't go into today.

Terry, Jim and Ed of the Rainbow Room in Madison are to be commended for the food, decor, free drinks and hospitality. There was no skimping here, folks, and I think these guys know how to treat their customers. The bar is already packed on a regular basis, and I expect they will do very well in their new business. I wish them my best.

Napalese Lounge in Green Bay has moved off Broadway and joined the three bars already in the Main Street area. The official address is 1351 Cedar Street, behind Hot'n Now on Main street. It's very easy to find. This is great news for the bar hopping crowd. Now there is a new place to stop and you don't have to get in a car and drive. Does that mean gay cruising can now become a popular sport on Green Bay's Main Street? Probably not until spring. After all, it's a little hard to look hot when it's 20 below outside.

Ann and Nancy have their work cut out for them. While the space is nice, it still needs some work. Nancy told me a show will be featured Saturday for Halloween, but give them a break! It will take a little while to get the full move done and everything set up properly. Another newspaper reported they have a grill and a stage in the new space. Well, they will, but it's not all set up yet. I will be over with my camera and white gloves (to check for dust) very soon and we'll have some pictures for Quest.

Some of you are aware the people hell bent on fixing up Broadway wanted their old building and would not allow them to find another spot on Broadway that would work for them. I am glad Olde Main Street, Inc. is not like those "Broadway Nazis" and is welcoming this business to our neighborhood.

People coming from out of town should be aware there are now four choices catering to just about everyone on Main. Brandy's and Buddies are more the neighborhood bar type. Napalese and Za's provide lounge, local entertainment (aka Drag Shows, etc.) food and dancing. Sass, still located on Broadway, is also a great choice for the Lesbian crowd. Not really a Lesbian bar and very male friendly, Sally and Sue now provide the only gay spot on Broadway unless we include Movieland, Green Bay's best adult bookstore.

Have a great week and think of me not getting laid next time you are! -ZA

PAST/OUT

BY DAVID BIANCO

WHAT IS THE HISTORY OF "TEAROOMS"?

October 1964 (35 years ago this month): A scandal breaks when Walter Jenkins, chief of staff to President Lyndon B. Johnson, is arrested for "disorderly conduct" in a public men's room in Washington, D.C.

For over 100 years, police surveillance and sting operations have targeted public toilets - or "tearooms" - frequented by gay men in search of sex.

Restroom facilities were probably first used for sex in the days before indoor plumbing. In crowded urban areas, where families and neighbors lived in close quarters and privacy was nonexistent, sex could take place unobserved in outhouses.

By the late 19th century, many cities were overcrowded and had poor sanitation. For public health purposes, public restrooms were built in parks and near transportation facilities. Called "comfort stations," these restrooms dotted the landscape in cities from New York to Seattle. However, some men quickly began to use them for a different kind of comfort.

As early as 1896, the public facilities in Manhattan's Battery Park and City Hall Park were associated with homosexual activity. The public men's room beneath Seattle's Pioneer Square was a popular cruising area by the first decades of the 20th century. During the 1930s, the Works Progress Administration (WPA) put the unemployed to work building hundreds of public restrooms in parks across the country, thus giving an inadvertent boost to tearoom activity.

Though it's unclear when and where it originated, the slang term "tearoom" (that is, "toilet-room") enabled men to discuss their public sexual encounters with each other in a coded way. Heterosexuals understood tearooms very differently, as genteel cafes where people enjoyed afternoon tea and pastries.

One historian notes that, ironically, the use of public facilities for homosexual encounters gave men a measure of privacy. Sex in city parks was risky because it was out in the open. For many poor and working-class men, then, public restrooms doubled as private sexual space.

But tearooms were also frequented by other classes. The washrooms of New York's subway system were "the meeting place for everyone," as one man put it. A businessman on his way home to his wife and children in one of the outer boroughs could engage in quick sex at the end of the workday but still not identify as gay. With the growth of suburbs after World War II, tearoom activity shifted away from urban centers to rest stops on the highways that surrounded cities.

From the very beginning, tearooms fell under police scrutiny. The first arrests in Manhattan occurred soon after the opening of public facilities in 1896. To circumvent arrest, one man would often remain outside the restroom as a lookout, warning those inside if a policeman was approaching. An arrest could ruin a man's life: When newspapers published the names and addresses of those arrested, men lost families, jobs, and housing.

More intricate surveillance techniques soon came into use. In 1920 in Boise, the men's room at one downtown building, the Boise Valley Traction Company, was a popular tearoom. During the summer of that year, the management hired one of its employees to spy through a hole in the men's room ceiling. His surveillance resulted in the arrest and conviction of two men, who were sentenced to five years each in the Idaho State Prison.

Entrapment was another method for policing tearoom sex. As early as the 1910s in New York, plainclothes officers entered park toilets and subway washrooms, pretending to be cruising for sex. In some cases, police decoys blackmailed men for hush money. In the early 1960s, a man in St. Louis admitted that he had made eight such payoffs to undercover cops, ranging in amount from $60 to $300 each, in order to avoid arrest.

One of the most famous tearoom arrests in U.S. history took place in October 1964. That month, the District of Columbia's vice squad began conducting surveillance of the basement restroom of the YMCA on G Street, just two blocks from the White House. Spying through peepholes in the locked door of an unused shower room, police officers caught two men in flagrante delicto. The arrest, however, proved to be far from routine: One of the men was Walter Jenkins, chief of staff to President Lyndon B. Johnson.

When the scandal broke, Johnson made televised remarks saying he was as shocked as if his wife Lady Bird had murdered one of their daughters. Jenkins resigned, and Johnson - acting on the commonly held belief that gay men were national security risks - ordered the FBI to conduct a full investigation of Jenkins's activities while in office. The 100-page "Report on Walter Wilson Jenkins," released at the end of October, concluded that the former chief of staff had never "compromised the security or interests of the United States."

Despite the risks, tearoom activity has continued to the present. In a much-publicized incident in April 1998, singer-songwriter George Michael was arrested for "misdemeanor lewd conduct" in the public men's room of Will Rogers Memorial Park in Beverly Hills when, according to his account, a handsome plainclothes police officer entrapped him.

"You don't see it as a massive risk," Michael later explained, "if there's no one else around, and if there's someone ... waving their genitals around in front of you." Michael received a small fine and performed 80 hours of community service. His arrest, he said, brought him "into the political arena," forcing him out of the closet and compelling him to speak out against the kind of police entrapment that for decades has faced gay men seeking tearoom sex.

BITE ME!

By Marti

Once upon a time in a smaller town, quietly tucked away in upper midwestern climates, emerged a maiden from southern exposure. Fair of heart, yet lacking inner strength, she embarked upon a journey of strange proportions unimaginable. Soon, she found herself without direction until that fateful day when "chance" found her in the form of an all-empowering being (The Great Za), good wench of the midwes and publisher of Quest, who looked down upon her from the third story turret (read office), and gave this blessing (HeeeHeeeHeeeHeee, devilishly she sneered) and handed her a wilted pumpkin thing and a couple of tired old mice and said, "get to work, bitch!"

Therefore, this issue's recipe is for Pumpkin Harvest Cookies.

Editor's note: They have been fully taste tested by the crew while printing the last issue of Quest. Now the only problem is they'll be expecting some cookies and if Marti doesn't deliver, they may strike!

Marti is part of the family that brings you Quest and is a member of the transgender community.

Sample the AIDS Benefit Calendar on the Cover of this Issue!

We seriously doubt you missed it, but the photo which adorns the cover of this issue of Quest is from the 2000 AIDS Benefit Calendar....just one of the twelve gorgeous male bodies which make up the calendar.

This is the last year the renowned photographer Jeff Palmer project will be available, and we urge you to order your copy today.

The calendar has contributed more than $450,000 in the ten years since it started, giving much needed monies to AIDS care agencies all across the US including a generous amount of the money going to Wisconsin based ARCW.

Since this will be the final calendar for this series, it will become an instant collectors item. Many people have ordered the calendar which we heavily promoted in years past on our covers. Ordering information is provided below.

The calendar is available for $14.95 each plus $4 shipping and handling:

LEATHER/FETISH

by Papa Joe

See, I told you. Sooner or later, my greatness would be rewarded. Greg Q says I could write for his rag - Yah, Sure. What the hell is that all about??

Other news -- good, I think -- I was interviewed for another gay rag out of Milano, Italy < www.babilonia.net >. (I tried to go there - the net site - for more info, but couldn't get past those damn sex ad banners). Anyway, it is for the December issue; so look it up for me and let me know what they claim I said. Last year my honey made a Glossy in Europe, maybe it is my turn this year.

One other thing about to go into print (or at least I have been told) an article I did for Men In Boots Club International.

You know me, get me started and I can carry on for days -- now, if I would get paid for it, I could give up sewing. Yah, Right!

In the DISH Department and being that I am not prone to gossip, rumor, nor want to repeat of same -- I, with no hesitation and damn little trepidation, confirm the rumor that a certain "Widow Woman" was seen bar hopping the last week to 10 days -- and staying out till wee hours with an attractive, young and well endowed "manly" sort of man, most recently from Detroit. I may have been a whirlwind May to December fling, but it did the old girl good.

It is true they closed a certain bar 3 nights in a row -- once even getting locked in. One has to wonder what was happening and where -- that they couldn't hear the last call nor be noticed by the staff locking up --??

It has also been learned, said widow woman's knees were more than a bit dusty.

Land O'Goshen -- at her vintage -- Honestly, anyway, what the hell ever happened to knitting and rocking chairs?  from Brew City Bears/S. E. Wis.

Meeting Change Our October Meeting, Club night and After Hours Party will be held on Saturday, October 23rd,* at the Boot Camp Saloon.

We have decided to combine the membership meeting with the club nites, due to popular demand to make it easier for members to attend our functions. Some members who live quite a distance from Milwaukee thought that it would be easier to come to one combined event than travel twice in one month for two separate events.

So our general meeting will be at 8pm at Si's Club House, then we will have the Club nite at 10pm at the Boot Camp Saloon and an after-hours party at 2:30am.

Nominations for the Brew City Bears Y2K board of directors will be accepted at this membership meeting. So, if you want to run for office, show up and nominate yourself. Elections will be in November.

Bear Hugs: Gary

* The above message arrived a bit late for last issue -- the changes went into effect Oct. 23. Please note, there is not always an after-hours party following the Brew City Bear Club night at the Boot Camp.

It is official and you heard it here first - this message just in from Firebirds LTD/Milwaukee "Due to changes in social and societal mores, it has been decided to fold and dissolve Firebirds LTD."

thank you, Huck

Sorry, I don't know more than what is in the above message, which was in no way edited.

Clubs have a way of falling into a low spot now and then, some recover and go on. It was a big job, but we had hoped the new leadership might be able to re-organize the group.

The Can of Corn & stuff

Wanted to share this with you -- Was chatting with Michael of A.O.W., asking about news from the Club -- here is some of his message.

"Speaking of 'personal touches,' you should take a look at the tickets for the Argonauts/Castaways bus trip/joint club night at the Cell Block in Chicago (Nov. 20). If I may say so myself, these tickets are a minor work of art. Of course, there's the critical info- price, date, etc. But the tickets also feature some graphic art work of a bus with "Ma" Barker's head plastered across the front. Rumor has it that the studios look on Ma's face is because the photo was taken as he was engaged in deep conversation with "Mongo" of the Corn Haulers, while attending the Leather Engineers of Omaha (LEO) run Sept. 10-12 of this year.

Also, the Argonauts hosted a Friday night cocktail party at the LEO run- assisted by Castaways/Oberons club brothers "Ma" Barker, Bob P, Cortez B, and Randy S. The cocktail party featured a Wisconsin Travel-Ad theme, with yours truly dressed as a cow (getting milked frequently), and posters everywhere, including ads that "In Wisconsin, We Milk 'em Around the Clock" and posters of a cow holding a cocktail that said "Bottoms Up!"

A further note of interest- the infamous "#10 Can of Corn" which various mid-western leather clubs have been passing around for the past 20 years, re-surfaced in Omaha, as the KC Pioneers presented it to the LEO boys. The can of corn originated with the Argonauts around the time of WinterQuest 6, and was first presented by Thom T of The Argonauts. The can has now grown into a

Entertainers Against AIDS to Stage World AIDS Day Eve Celebration

at Green Bay's Famed Weidner Center - Tuesday, Nov. 30

The Fox Valley-based Entertainers Against AIDS organization (EAA) plans to fill the Weidner Center on the UW-Green Bay campus to its capacity (2,200 seats) as they stage a FREE musical celebration of remembrance and hope on the eve of World AIDS Day, Tuesday, Nov. 30.

In a joint statement, EAA founders Paul "Cricket" Jacob and well-known and multi-talented award-winning Jeff Jennings, said, "There are so many individuals and families living with the affects of HIV disease who need our support and activism. On the eve of World AIDS Day, we will celebrate the lives of those who have lost their battles with AIDS, and we will demonstrate our concern and compassion for those who are now struggling with HIV disease."

They continued, "We will smile, laugh and even be sad together, but we will be strong in each others' support. And we will shine with hope and anticipation for the day when we are able to remove our red lapel ribbons in victorious celebration."

full-scale "traveling trophy" complete with a display case and other associated memorabilia added as it has been passed from club to club over the years.

I've heard of the "corn" since I came to Green Bay, but this was the first time I had seen it with my own eyes. Some of my leather brothers thought I was a little wacked out when I ran to get my camera and proceeded to take pictures of this can of corn. But, to me, it represents an important and FUN part of our mid-western leather heritage. One day, that can of corn will probably end up in the Leather Museum and Archives, and with any luck, it won't explode.

Take care! Michael/Argonauts

Michael, the can of corn brings back much laughter, fond memories, as well as tears. It started as a joke, but to many of us who know where the can has been, what it has been seen, and who have held it, is more like eerie visions of friends. All too many of them are no longer with us. It indeed was a different time, almost like a different world that we were.

Send those pictures ASAP and a scan of the tickets. And, Mongo, never had a deep thought - as for Ma, that ain't still water.

The following from another of my faithful readers - a nice boy with some imagination, who holds me on a pedestal. You can't blame him, right?

Jean Luc - sorry it has taken so long to get back to you but the away team got stuck in one of those infernal holideck programs which had us servicing hot leathermen over and over again. You can just imagine how hard we were working!

Yes, Delta was its usual huge success with approx 250 hot and horny, leather and kink guys going at it all over the place. The open air flogging area allowed my signature, blood-curdling screams to re-echo throughout the camp. I had to be fed my lunch one day due to the rubber straightjacket I was secured in—they made me lick every crumb off of the table before I could be excused. An electrical setup which rivaled Dr. Frankenstein's laboratory had me pushing against the straps and yelping as the fluid extraction took place. It was a shame that no one got pictures of the last big scene: Sir was in his custom fitted SFPD captain's uniform and I was tied down to the table with leather straps in my mouth in my CHP uniform. Obviously, he won this cop vs. cop contest and he made me cry four times with the unrelenting suction and then evoked a huge, screaming orgasm with the giant vibrator which caused me to buck and raise the mattress about 2 feet in the air and almost off the table. There were a lot of spectators for that one! Pictures are allowed under certain circumstances at this event and I'll ask the hot rubberman from England if he got any. After I got back home I had a wonderful dream cum true: I finally did it with a Real Cop! A bargain fare to Michigan and I had one very hot weekend. He even had leather sheets and pillowcases aaaaaahhhh!

I also later made it to the Eagle's uniform night in Milwaukee with my friend and we appeared as twin CHP officers. (You should have seen the looks we got in the Perkins Restaurant on the way home!) During the evening, I got to be the bondage model for Dick and Tony's new line of dungeon "furniture." After that super party in Kenosha, I've been hankering for more time with Master Carl (who came & played with me at the hotel in Mwke. before I left for Delta) & Officer Chuck. They are not the easiest guys to get a hold of but, man, oh, man, when you do—it sure pays off and makes the boy very happy. I'm breaking in a new boy and I recently got a new ride for the dungeon a dental chair for the simple cost of moving it.

I can't spare time to have my usual big parties in October and December (I'm also now on the board of Delta) but I think the way will be clear for one in the spring. kisses from the screamer....

High Street Travel Tips

By Steven L Meissner

Gay travel is becoming more widespread and more of us are traveling outside, or even within the country, and like to have our own options as far as nightlife and/or other touring activities.

I have recently started working into this market and for years have traveled to many of these places and intend to research more. There have become many more gay trips and activities, not only nationwide, but worldwide. We're gaining more access to these all the time, from gay cruises anywhere in the world to a weekend with fully planned activities in Palm Springs, New Orleans, Las Vegas, the East Coast, Florida, to full-week vacations in Mexico, Costa Rica or many other destinations. Also, many fully planned tours to Europe all at our fingertips and very reputable!

There are also many more guest houses popping up...not only nationwide, but anywhere you can imagine, even in some of the more secluded tropical destinations!

The tour industry has finally concluded the gay market is worth its time and energy!

Puerto Vallarta, Mexico is a great destination with its full section of gay beach with bars, clubs and a number of gay activities, including boat tours, BBQs, horseback riding, mountain bike tours, sunset cruises, and even evening HOT springs tours!! Phenomenal fun! I've been there with friends many times!!

The Mexicans are very friendly, hospitable and willing to please, but one must be careful of the locals guys in clubs up for hire (trying to get into your wallet), and some have found out ALL TOO late!

I've enjoyed Puerto Vallarta because it has a wide variety - from the new Marina with many larger condos and yachts, with people from all over the world - to the old Marina from which most of the boat tours depart, to the hotel section, and then the nicer shopping section moving right into an older section of town, True old Mex.

The many different day excursions are also wonderful, usually boating trips with groups include breakfast and/or lunch, drinks and a fun-filled day! Even the horseback tours into the hills overlooking the Pacific Ocean, where your bar will be a mule with coolers strapped to each side filled with beverages!!

There's also an all gay tour to Puerto Vallarta, usually in November, for a week, which is all inclusive and a week filled with activities and fun at one of the resorts there.

All in all, a terrific vacation destination and only a four-hour flight from Milwaukee or Minneapolis.

Hope to cover many other destinations for you in the future, and regardless what you choose - from an all gay tour to one where you have options - we will do our best to see that you have a great paradise adventure!
