Dusty After Dark

Dear Santa,

Now I know what you are thinking, "He wants an attractive, rich man who has curly blond, a hairy chest, great legs, and a warm smile. Someone who is good in and out of the bedroom, willing to cater to his every need, has a good sense of humor and is extremely generous." Well, of course, that's true, but as I told you last year; I am not fussy. He doesn't have to be a blond!

But seriously I'm talking about my wish list for all my good friends in the Milwaukee bar scene. It would be ever so nice if you would fill the leather stocking over at the Boot Camp with donations to the Gay and Lesbian community trust fund.

My favorite DJ tag team over at La Cage was extra good this year. I am sure you come up with some dazzling new high tech gizmo they'd appreciate. The La Cage showcase and 219 girls have been also been extra good. Bring them even bigger crowds for their performances (the public ones that is) and lots of tips. The Harbor Room is off to a great start. I am sure the folks down there would like a computer so all those Gay.com types can chat with their friends when they stop in. Speaking of nice guys, Dave at Club Boom looks fabulous in his undies during those underwear parties. Bring him a few more pair (and maybe some guys to fill them) Speaking again of nice guys, the gang at Switch have thoughtfully put a heated tent up over their patio, so we can enjoy the great outdoors during cold weather. How about bringing them a great Packer season next year. Then there's the folks at Fluid. Some jeweled glasses worthy of those great cosmos would be great. Well okay maybe Jimmy hasn't been all that good this past year but you know what they say. For some people even when they're bad they're good, really good! The Triangle crew has been really, really good. With all those give ways, red light specials, impromptu contests they've been having great fun. Just give them another healthy dose of imagination and they will do just fine. Speaking of doing fine, the folks at This Is It are doing great too. I really can't think of anything to give them, they seem to have it all. Maybe a dance floor to go with that great jukebox would do the trick. The staff at M&M's has been working magic for more than a quarter century and they are still going strong. Do you think you can fit a parking lot in that sleigh? They have a small one next to the bar but it's simply not big enough to accommodate all their customers.

The Ball Game is another one of those places where people of all legal ages have had fun for a long, long time. This place has the best Christmas tree in Gay Milwaukee so please fill their stockings with something extra special. Down the street the folks at Dish continue to pack them in. I couldn't even begin to suggest anything for this crew. Whatever you bring make it trendy and cutting edge so it will fit right in! You always fit right in at Docks. This place has a nice mix of customers, who always seem to make everyone feel comfortable. I suggest you bring them a big sign that can be seen from Second and National. Fannies is open again and drawing respectable crowds. I am sure you fit a fire extinguisher in their stocking. (Sorry I couldn't resist) Then there is my friend Jamie from In Step. Bring him a few cases of Tequila. He's going to need them when he realizes what the usurper is really up to in the White House. (Love you Jamie)

Dusty hopes to see you out and about soon, meanwhile stay safe and proud! You can reach Dusty via email at: Dusty@wi.rr.com

Happy Holidays, Dusty

I never feel comfortable going out anymore. Gay people now a days are so beautiful and built. I just want to be OK with being regular. What's someone regular like me to do? Yours, Regular Joe

Dear Regular Joe,
The gay world can be pretentious and frightening. And what's left for the "Regular Joe's? Not much more than snide remarks like, "Boy does she (he) need a makeover, ha, ha, ha!" Well... damn it... let the revolution begin. From now on I, Trinity, declare that: all gay people who are too skinny or too fat, too old or too young, too bald or too much bad hair, with blemishes and pimples, crossed eyes and four eyes, limping or crawling and uncontrollably introverted, be given exclusive rights. A special committee called UGLI (Underappreciated Gays and Lesbians who are Ignored) must be formed. I'll send a letter to the president, right away. But for now remember, "If you can't beat 'em don't join them but rather get in front of 'em and make it look like a parade!"

Start marching, Trinity

Hey Trinity,
Lately, I've been experiencing an immense amount of self sexual fulfillment, if you know what I mean. My neighbors are starting to complain about the noise! Is it dangerous to my health?

Yours, Self fulfillment

Hey Self fulfillment,
When your therapist said, "Take some personal time for yourself." she didn't mean this. If masturbation is the word your beating around the bush about, then no it's not dangerous to your health. But obsessive acts of any kind CAN lead you down a dangerous path. If you're going totally insane then put everything down and get out of your house. Exercise, dieting, and going out with friends will absolutely make you less of a handful. And lastly, if your neighbors keep complaining then practice a little self controlling while you're self fulfilling. Try screaming into a pillow rather than down a hallway.

Love, Trinity

Trinity,
I'm not the best with words. Especially when I need to approach a stranger. It seems like every pick up line has been used. What do you say to meet someone new? Thanks, Speechless

Dearest Speechless,
Usually, just throwing my head back with a smile or an alluring gesture with my eyes gets me what I need. However, every so often I do get arrested. But once I've talked my way out of incarceration these quick one liners can make or break the whole night. So here are,

TRINITY'S TOP TEN PICK UP TIPS

After you've tried;

1. Hello, my name is... and I just wanted to say hello.
2. Are you from around here? Do you have a light? Or, Is someone sitting here?
3. You look awfully familiar. I'm...
4. Didn't we meet at a party not to long ago?

Then try these;

5. Pardon me, but haven't I given birth to one of your children.
6. Your eye's. They're like deep magnets. Are they yours.
7. Excuse me, but didn't we share a romantic evening in Rome just recently?
8. I may look like a tough girl but I'm really just a nice guy.
9. Hey, didn't you and I share a prison cell together.

Lastly, this one never fails;
10. Hello, I was told by my psychic that we were suppose to meet tonight.

Go get 'em, Trinity

I met you at a party last month and you snubbed me off. Are you getting so popular that you've acquired airs about yourself? Yours Dissatisfied

Hey Dissatisfied,
If I offended you I apologize! But some people who are shy and demure, like myself, appear snobbish. Sometimes being nice just isn't enough. Especially, at a party decorated with endless vodka martini's. Where someone's undergarments became the midnight door prize. Oh God! What happened to me that night! I... I just want to forget about the whole thing. OK! And you! Expecting me to role play, all night as your domineering mother. You forced me into snubbing you off. Especially after you refused to let me use my handcuffs on you. Honey, I told you I wouldn't hurt you. I gave you a safe word. I tried to be everything to you; hostess, pet owner, dominatrix. You got me so confused. Listen you big, butch, bearded, tattooed musclehead! If you're not man enough to let me tie you up then... You know what? You've been a bad boy to Madam Trinity. I'll deal with you at the next party!

Don't let your questions go unanswered!

DavidE's Holiday Dish...

Oh, my goodness, children, did ya' miss me? What a few weeks visiting Ms. Betty Ford will do for you. Love her! I feel fabulous and am ready to party for the holidays. Now Messie Bessie, on the other hand, is still a frightful sight. Last I saw of her, she had Robert Downey, Jr. in a headlock cause he tried to sneak a sip of vodka from her 'secret flash.' Girl, I was scared to death cause I think Messie Bessie was out for blood. No one snitches Bessie's booze and gets away with it, especially that crackhead Downey. I'm sure you'll be seeing the whole story on CourtTV real soon - someone call Marsha Clark because, honey, she needs a job!

So I'm back in Clubland all rehabbed and ready to rock around the holiday tree, or Menorah for you Jewish folk. The DJing gig at BOOM is going great, I'm still single, I'm looking fabulous, and feeling fierce, blah, blah, blah. Now onto the good stuff - GOSSIP! Since I've been gone having my liver sterel belted, I'm a bit out of the loop. Rumor has it ZA's is temporarily closed* until the new and more faboo WEST THEATER * can open. Will there be a special ZA's celebration for New Year's?* Who knows....stay tuned to the Quest for all the latest updates. A little birdie told me that when the new WEST THEATER does open, a certain bar owner who likes to "switch" gears may organize a bus trip from Milwaukee. Faboo, nothing better than a bunch of boozed up gay Milwaukee boys invading Green Bay. I'll be the first one off the bus!

Well, it's that time of year again when we spend valued time with our friends and family for the holidays. Remember, it's better to give than to receive, so I think everyone out there should try being a Top just once during the holidays. Get into the spirit of 'giving.' And on that naughty note, I hope all of you have fabulous plans for the New Year. Check out Quest for all that's happening on New Year's Eve. I'll be spinning up a marathon storm at Boom, so stop in and say hi. Get lots of rest because the party don't stop until the sun rises on January 1, 2001. My holiday wish, in case you care, is simple: one boyfriend, one bottle of good wine, 7-8 condoms, and one big ole bottle of Wet. Honey, I'm all for giving and receiving....

Love ya, DJ DavidE.

* The Historic West Theater a completely new bar (Broadway and Walnut, Green Bay) will be opening as soon as renovations are complete (a bigger project than initially thought), estimated now to be mid-January. One can be absolutely certain the occasion will be one of the biggest parties in history!

Business 'partners' are Mark Mariucci (Za) and Mark Lemmert; the latter was Ken Kujava's lover the last two years of his life.

Who was Simon Nkoli?

In 1996, the Republic of South Africa became the first nation in the world to enshrine civil rights protections for lesbians and gays as part of its constitution. Many had struggled to achieve this goal, but perhaps the most important groundwork was laid in a Pretoria prison cell a decade earlier when a young anti-apartheid activist accused of treason told his fellow detainees that he was gay.

Born Nov. 26, 1957, near Johannesburg, Simon Tseko Nkoli became actively involved in the fight against apartheid while still a teenager. But South Africa's oppressive system of racial segregation had made its mark on him even earlier. His parents, a hotel chef and a saleswoman, were illegal squatters: blacks needed special permits to live in urban areas. One of Nkoli's strongest childhood memories was of his parents hiding in a wardrobe when the police came to check passes. He later compared this wardrobe to the "closet" he came out of as a gay man: "If you are black in South Africa, the inhuman laws of apartheid closet you. If you are gay in South Africa, the homophobic customs and laws of this society closet you. If you are black and gay in South Africa, well, then it really is all the same closet, the same wardrobe."

Nkoli came out of his closet to his parents when he was 19. His mother was horrified. She dragged her son to a series of sangomas - spiritual healers - who told her Simon was bewitched. Finally, he agreed to see a psychiatrist, who convinced his mother that her son was indeed gay and there was nothing she could do about it.

By age 24, Nkoli had become a regional secretary for the Congress of South African Students, an anti-apartheid organization. Pressure to bring a girlfriend to meetings made him feel he had to come out to his fellow activists. But when he did, they questioned whether he could remain in a leadership position and called a special general meeting. Homosexuality was considered to be un-African. But Nkoli vigorously stood his ground, and after a lengthy debate, the vote was 80 percent in his favor.

At the time, the only gay organization in the country was the Gay Association of South Africa (GASA), and Nkoli became one of its few black members. But he soon discovered that racism reached into the gay community no less than in the rest of society: most of Johannesburg's gay bars were off-limits to blacks. Nkoli started an affiliated group for black gay men and forced GASA into pledging not to patronize segregated venues. Nkoli was arrested in September 1984, when an anti-apartheid demonstration resulted in a violent clash with police. The young man was accused of throwing a rock that killed someone and charged with murder. He was held in detention in Pretoria Central Prison along with 21 other anti-apartheid activists, including a number of high-profile leaders, and all were charged with treason. It took 14 months for the case to come to trial. During that time Nkoli came out to his fellow detainees, who were shocked to learn that their charismatic comrade-in-arms was gay. At first, they demanded that he be tried separately so as not to prejudice their case, but gradually, after weeks of discussion, they began to accept him.

The trial, known as the Delmas Treason Trial, opened in January 1986 and lasted more than two years, the longest in South African history, galvanizing both national and international opposition to the apartheid regime of President P.W. Botha. During that time, Nkoli received support and encouragement from numerous European and North American gay and lesbian organizations, a fact that helped enormously in reconciling him with his fellow accused.

Ultimately acquitted, Nkoli was released in 1988, after nearly four years of imprisonment. That same year he founded the Gay and Lesbian Organization of the Witwatersrand, the country's first gay political organization based primarily in the black community. Meanwhile, the country was undergoing momentous changes. F.W. de Klerk, who became South Africa's president in 1989, began dismantling apartheid: Nelson Mandela was released from prison and his outlawed African National Congress once again began functioning legally.

The nation's first all-races vote took place in 1994, and Mandela was elected president. When the country adopted a new constitution on May 8, 1996, it banned discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation. ANC National Chairman Patrick "Terror" Lekota, who had been one of Nkoli's co-accused, was now one of the leading authors of the new constitution. "How could we say that men and women like Simon, who had put their shoulders to the wheel to end apartheid, how could we say that they should now be discriminated against?" he later explained.

In the mid-'90s, Nkoli founded the Township AIDS Project in Soweto to help combat the epidemic that continues to ravage South Africa. Around the same time, he announced that he, too, had AIDS. Nkoli finally succumbed to the disease on November 30, 1998 - on the eve of World AIDS Day. Tributes poured in from around the country and the world, honoring Nkoli as a leader who had helped forge a new and more equitable South Africa.

Community Responds to Dire Need at ARCW Food Pantry

Community and business groups made significant donations to help meet the more than 500 AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin's food pantry requests, double that of 1999.

The Phillip Morris Companies and AIDS Nutrition Services Alliance donated $20 thousand to fund the purchase of three refrigerator/freezer units for ARCW's pantries in Milwaukee and Kenosha and its Wiscosin House transitional residence.

Thanks to food drives and collections by employees at Ameritech, Boston Store at Mayfair Masl, the City of Milwaukee Public Ambassadors, the YMCA of Franklin, the Marquette University Public Safety Department and many other individuals, ARCW was able to provide 100 more holiday food baskets and child care items than previously expected.

ARCW's food pantry accepts donations year-round and can be reached at 800-359-9272 (extention 253).

2 New Women's Groups at OutReach - Madison

Two new coming out groups for women will begin meeting at Madison's OutReach in January.

The first group, for 'newcomers,' will meet on consecutive Sundays at 6 p.m. for ten weeks, starting Sunday, Jan. 7.

The second group is a women's relationship group; it, too, will meet for ten consecutive weeks, starting on Saturday, Jan. 20, 3 p.m.

Both groups are offered free of charge.

For more info, contact OutReach (608) 255-8582.

World AIDS Day in Wisc. - For the Record

Over 1,500 paused in Wisconsin to observe World AIDS Day to remember those who have died of HIV and celebrate progress made over this 20-year epidemic.

200 attended a LaCrosse observance, 400 were on hand at an African American HIV prevention and awareness social event in Milwaukee; Over 700 were in attendance for the second annual Celebration of Remembrance in Green Bay at the UW-Green Bay Weidner Center; observances were also held in Eau Claire and Wausau.

A Huge Body of Work: Jerry Koenig Celebrates Twenty Years of Portfolio Studios

by Jess Littleman

As a writer for Quest Magazine, every once in a while I can convince the boss that it's critical for our publication to send me—at someone else's expense, of course!—to another city to party for an entire weekend. Please don't ask me how I do it: I may not be the brightest person of the planet, but child, please! I wasn't born yesterday. Well, now the hangover has subsided and my bags have been unpacked, I get to tell you all about the fantastic time I had in Minneapolis attending the Twentieth Anniversary gala of Portfolio Studios.

The soiree got started with cocktails and nibbles at Boom. If you ever have the chance to be in the presence of about sixty models and the people who support them from above and below, it's worth it. Amongst the beautiful and hangers-on the central reason why all were gathered, a gentleman named Jerry the Jerry, and get to see him in his own environment—one that he's created himself for all of us to share.

Born in the Fargo/Moorehead area of Northern Minnesota, Jerry Koenig started off by enrolling in the Moore Junior Tech School for Business. Jerry decided to keep his homosexuality quiet during this time because, as Jerry said to me, "Back in '74 I figured other people like me only lived in places like San Francisco...there was nothing in northern Minnesota in the way of gayness!" It wasn't until Koenig took a business trip to Minneapolis where he went to a straight strip club known as The Gay '90s, an earlier version of the gay club we know today. "[The club] shared a hallway and bathrooms with a place next door known as The Happy Hour, a club that was gay," Jerry told me during our time together. "It's still there, by the way. I looked down the hallway and saw a bunch of dudes down there. I thought, 'What's up with that?' " After realizing he could find peers in the Twin Cities, Jerry made the move to the Minneapolis area and started working at a poster store that specialized in blowing up photos. "I bought a camera and all of the sudden, I started taking pictures of my friends," Jerry

Koenig. Vital, energetic and the center of attention, Jerry is the primary (if not the only) reason Portfolio Men exists today. Somewhere between the alcohol flowing at the bar, the dancers performing next door at Ground Zero, and a fabu afterbar tour of the studio facilities, I got a chance to chat with remembers, "Teasing, but not too revealing..." It was around this time Jerry was also bartending at The Saloon, but soon that would change.

The year was 1978, and Jerry struck out on his own with a new bar called The Portfolio. It was located at the base of the tallest building in the city and featured dancing, amateur strip shows and wet boxer short contests. "It lasted about a year, but people still talk about the club," Jerry says with a little smile.

This loss to the Midwest's night scene ended up being the nation's erotic male photography's gain. In 1980, Jerry Koenig dove headfirst back into photography, and Portfolio Studios was born. It wasn't long before Jerry's models were appearing in national publications, and in 1983 Portfolio scored it's first centerfold in Honco. Since then, Jerry's work has been featured in every conceivable male magazine, from All Men to Torso, In Touch to Inches. "You can usually see one of our photos [published] about every other month!" Jerry is proud to point out.

I had to ask where he finds his subjects. "Many of the individuals in the publications are UPS drivers, bartenders, attorneys, security guards, store managers, the whole gamut! A lot [of the models] have families. Some are straight, some are gay...it doesn't really make any difference."

It was a conversation in the early nineties with one of those models which once again enhanced what Portfolio Studios has become today. "In about '92 I started contracting with a lot of the male stripper groups that either came through or were from Minneapolis," Jerry recounts.

Community. The Leather Leadership Conference is an organization dedicated to strengthening the SM/Leather/Fetish community through the development of the leadership skills of community members and fostering a greater sense of connection between and within community groups.

The LLC hosts yearly conferences where attendees may share their knowledge and experience with one another, fostering a greater sense of unity and understanding within the community as a whole.

FMI contact LLC at <http://leatherleadership.org>, E Mail darkharp@excite.com

If anyone has been to or goes to this or any other conference, I would like know what you think. Especially you old timers, what is your opinion?? I am getting a fair amount of feed back on these leather conferences that are springing up all over. Some have nothing but praise saying it is our community reinventing it's self and proudly standing up front to take leadership roles in other than the Leather community.

Still others compared them to contests and major runs like MAL, IML, Drummer ETC., in that each is hoping to make it to the big time and big money league.

The worst I heard is typical of the nay sayers, P.C. Leather queens and dykes scrambling to the top of the heap. It would be good if you shared your opinion.

In the near future, I want to get into some of the Gay & Lesbian Biker groups. In my digging around I have learned that there is a Wisconsin Lesbian Biker group called WiLMAs (Wis. Lesbian M.C. Assoc), and a national Dykes on Bikes group with leadership in Madison, Wi.

Then there is The North American Amazons MC whose only requirements for joining are that you are a woman and must have been born a woman, have a motorcycle endorsement (license) and have access to a motorcycle (for riding).

Interested folks can, contact WiLMAs at <http://clubs.yahoo.com/clubs/wilmas> as, E-mail jennifererm@aol.com & Dykes on Bikes at <http://www.geocities.com/WestHollywood/3310/>, Email LadyCop408 @aol.com (from Madison Wis). For the Amazons contact..Gypsy, Queen of The Amazons @ gypsy0102@yahoo.com (Gypsy)

More on this later

I trust you enjoyed your holy day, not matter what you celebrated. I hope you may enjoy the best year of your life in 2001 and it gets better from there.

I'm out of here, but before I go, I want to do my New Years thing, where I apologies to all, for my errors and transgressions (known and unknown) in the past year and forgive myself for each and every one of them. I start with a clean slate in the hopes of doing better as well as being especially good to myself.

Remember loving is like leather, both are about the 5 senses, feel, smell, tastes, sight and sounds.

Papa

"The dancers would bitch about their management, about how they were being fucked over...and I said, 'Well, hell! I can book you guys...I can do this!' I decided to pick the best of the best..."

"As [the performers] came in, I talked to The Gay '90s about a couple of nights, the manager said, 'Why don't you take over the dancing in my club? I'm fed up with it!' The ball was in my lap." It wasn't long after that the strippers were in the '90s seven nights a week. With this initial success, the Portfolio Men came into existence.

Koenig & company decided to take the act on the road. With an atlas and Damron guide, Jerry contacted every gay bar in the Midwest. "I couldn't believe what happened!" Jerry says with astonishment. "The more letters I sent out the more responses I got back...you have to have a good dedicated following in the gay community, 'cause they'll come back and back and back...we don't have a 'B' team."

Towards the late nineties, Portfolio Men branched out into electronic mediums, producing two behind the scenes videos of their models, a website, and online performers. "...one [of the nice] things about the Portfolio Men is...they are actually moving, walking advertisements for us. Wherever they go they're handing out flyers, cards, magazines...the people who see them live can go online and see the guy they just saw last night! One hand feeds the other," Jerry quips.

Jerry Koenig has a lot to be proud of. He is a successful business owner in industries known for chewing people up and spitting them out. So when I asked what part of Portfolio Studios he was most proud of, the answer was almost archetypical. "I'm most proud of the fact everybody we've employed is a true friend," Jerry says. "I'm the great uncle, the dad, they're like my kids...I've seen some of them get married and divorced, start and end relationships, start families of their own...I've seen them in their high points and low. Everyone's got a story, and it's never a dull moment!"

Congrats from all of us at Quest. Special thanks to Jerry, as well as Vince, Jeremy, Rafael, and everyone else at Portfolio Studios. P.S. Portfolio Studios is always looking for new talent! Give them a call at 1 (800) 579-1952 or hit their online site at www.psmale.com.

LEATHER FETISH

by Papa Joe

Hey, Happy Holidays!

The house addition is coming along slowly, I mean real slow. I gave up trying to be of any help. I do help Lee on the weekends and, like an old chicken at sundown, am ready to hit the roost for the duration.

Because of that, I missed the Oberons Club night at The 1100 Club and Mike's birthday party at So. Water St. Docks. I was able to take in The Milwaukee Knights Sunday afternoon Christmas party and Beer bust. I got to sit on Santa's lap -- Woof, Too HOTTT. Cute reindeer, too. Pictures of all three parties are by Mike M of the Milwaukee Knights. Thank you, Mike, BTW, the cookies were great,

From Brew City Bear/SE Wisconsin: Just a note to let all know that the Bears are not hibernating just yet anyway. We had our Holiday party on December 16th. This is the time that we get together and share gifts, and also distribute funds to several organizations from the proceeds from PrideFest and the LeBear run. Our next club night will be 10pm, Saturday, January 27, at the Boot Camp Saloon along with our ever popular after hours get-together.

BTW this meeting (8pm) will have our newly elected President Leroy H. presiding. Other elected officers are V.P. Tim S. (TC), Secretary Steve B., Treasurer Jose A., Activities Charlie F., and yours truly as Webmaster.

We hope everyone has a Joyous Holiday and a Safe Yew Year. We are hoping to see everyone healthy and happy during the New Year. Live Long and Prosper!
Gary/Brew City Bears

From The Argonauts/Green Bay: Not sure what your schedules/deadlines are, but here's what's up with A.O.W.

Election of new officers will occur on Jan. 7 at the regular monthly business meeting.

Jan. 20, Winter Quest 27. The club invites everyone to join them in celebrating their 27th anniversary. Napalese Lounge; Cost is $25 per person; reservation request forms are available in local Green Bay bars, or by email request (argonautsofwi@aol.com).

Wine & Cheese reception at 6:00 p.m.; Dinner at 7:00 p.m. Individuals may pay at the door, but we'd appreciate it if they'd let us know in advance if they are planning to attend so we can plan dinner accordingly.

(<http://www.angelfire.com/wi/argonauts/>) has been updated with additional news. My apologies in advance for the small font size on the "news" pages. Get your reading glasses on, and I promise to use a minimum of 10 pt. font in all future updates!

From Atons/Minneapolis: ATONS HOLIDAY FUND RAISER WRAP UP Thanks to everyone who made this year's event such a success. Every Penny Counts and the Aliveness Project were this year's beneficiaries of over $4,200. Also, over 1,300 pounds of non-perishable food and personal items were collected for the Aliveness Project.

Chris/Atons
Congratulations to you Atons guys; your club continues to do so much good work for your community. In fact, let's acknowledge the Leather clubs and their firends whether in Minneapolis, Green Bay, Milwaukee or Timbuktu. You guys are leaders in filling needs since you first came on the scene twenty-five or more years ago.

From Milwaukee Knights/Milwaukee: We still have some tickets for the bar crawl to Green Bay for Jan. 20th; price is $25 and can be bought from a bartender at the 1100 Club or see one of the Milw. Knights. Tickets are starting to go fast though. Once in Green Bay, we will be doing a beer bust & raffle at the Napalese Lounge to help the Argonauts of Wisconsin celebrate their 27th anniversary. Thanks. Your friends in Leather

HEADS UP! In another note from Jerry and Mike, producers of the Southeastern Wis. Mr. Leather Contest, is on for Sat., April 20. We will be doing some PR work within the next month.

The Black Guard/Minneapolis (This has not been confirmed) have moved their anniversary run Black Frost 24 from Presidents Day weekend to April 6 -8. Double check and as soon as I get the official word from them, I will let you know.

For 17 years the traditional weekend for Black Frost for was the weekend of Presidents Day. That was when the Argonauts of WI discontinued Winter Quest as a 3 day affair.

The Castaway MC's next Sunday afternoon beer bust will be held February 4th 2 - 6 PM, @ The 1100 Club. The theme will be Valentines day -

The Mr. Michigan Leather competition is March 9th - 11th, with the W. Michigan Leather Carnival, co-sponsored by Nimbus Michigan and the Grand Rapids Rivermen.

Argonauts of WI Sat., March 24, 2001- Daddy- Daddy's boy contests; Green Bay and Fri. Apr. 6 thru Sun. April 15- Easter Egg Fundraiser in Green Bay bars.

The Argonauts of WI and the Castaways M.C. joint run is Aug. 17 -19th

The Leather Leadership Conference V- Chicago, IL April 6-8, 2001

Workshops to improve the management skills of leaders and activists in the SM/Leather/Fetish
