Tell Trinity!

Are Extra Marital Affairs Wrong?

Dearest Trinity,
Do you think people who have extra marital affairs are wrong or is it common and should not be treated so wrongly?
Sincerely, Extra Marital Questions
Seattle, WA

Dearest Extra,
Even though it happens to more couples than our grandparents ever told us about extra marital affairs are simply WRONG and were once even punishable by death. So if your spouse is having one a) practice forgiveness with he or she or b) pack someone's bags and say good-bye. If you're having one, stop and seek alternatives in your primary relationship! Working through it rather than murder is much easier the first few times. Now, if you get into really big trouble, a change of hair color and address has always worked for me!

Sorry, Trinity

DATING DILEMMA #72

Hello Trinity,
I have been dating a very handsome guy who is constantly concerned about his looks, about what people say about his looks and if I approve of his looks. Now I am getting paranoid about my own looks. Any ideas?
Yours, Paranoid Berkeley, CA

Hello Paranoia,
Boy is he a handful of face creams, lotions and so much more! As for him, let him know in a gentle way that he is acting paranoid and you have a hard time with it. He probably doesn't realize how unattractive wearing his insecurities on his new starched sleeve really is. As for you, instead of letting him bring you down rather let his insecurities inspire you to be stronger and more self-empowering. It's hard to believe but looks and self-esteem have very little to do with each other. Surprise!

Kisses, Trinity

Hello Trinity,
Men, I can't live with them and I can't live without them! How do you deal with those over-bearing Marlboro men types?
Yours, Marlboro-ed Out Brooklyn, NY

Hello Marlboro-ed Out,
Yes, men have been a problem since the beginning of time. They burp and belch, snore and sweat, spit and swear but they also look so damn good in those Marlboro ads. Maybe men were created to teach the animal kingdom, woman and gay men how to be more compassionate!

Trinity,
My best friend told a secret she swore never to tell. She's begging for forgiveness but I can't seem to forgive her. Help!
Forgiveless Palm Beach, FL

Hello Forgiveless,
Once you get past the stage of, "I'll never talk to you again" try:

Trinity's Tips For How To Forgive Someone

1. Saying, "I forgive you now." then taking a few weeks to figure out how to forgive them will start you on a HEALTHY path of forgiveness right away!
2. Forgiving someone doesn't mean giving them ANOTHER shot at you. It means you release them from your anger and thoughts and sometimes even your life.
3. Forgiveness is a gift you give yourself NOT the person you need to forgive.
4. KEEPING anger, resentment and judgment inside and against someone means they have taken over your insides. Do you really want that?
5. Forgiveness occurs when you let yourself look at someone while feeling a little LESS hatred for him or her than you did before!
6. You don't have to wait until someone dies or disappears in order to forgive them. It's best to do it while they're alive, not for their sake but for YOURS.
7. If you are mad at someone today and ten years goes by before you forgive him or her, you wasted ten years. EVENTUALLY you will forgive or forget everyone! So do it now!
8. In the MOMENT you forgive someone your problems with them begin to dissolve. Use forgiveness to dissolve your problems!
9. Forgiving someone doesn't mean you have to forgive them to their face but it does mean that you have to START the process in your own mind first.
10. Lastly, forgiveness is a holy, spiritual, enlightening practice. How much time do you need to WASTE before getting on the path of a higher consciousness?

EDITOR'S NOTE:

The following is published as a courtesy to the Male Hide Leathers, Chicago, who were mentioned unfavorably last issue in our Leather column. I would remind our readers that the columns run in Quest contain opinions that are only the writer's opinion, not the opinion of Quest.

Male Hide Leathers has been proudly selling and manufacturing the same high quality fetish goods and leather wear for more than 30 years. Our founder, Bob Maddox recently won the Chicago, Gay and Lesbian Chamber of Commerce, Lifetime Achievement award, presented to him, personally, by Mayor Richard Daley.

We are proud that our upgraded stores allow us to be both neighborhood friendly and at the same time permit our customers to view or purchase items in trendy, good looking facilities. Your columnist may not have noticed, but the gay community has changed, considerably, in past 30 years. Our customers are more sophisticated and discriminating in their shopping demands. On Halloween, our store and products were even featured throughout the morning weather reports on WGN television.

We are merchants to a community and our customers reflect the same diverse population as does the gay and lesbian community-at-large. Many of our younger, new customers, begin their foray into the "leather scene" in places familiar to them, like CroBar. The event your columnist attempted to trash was one of many activities celebrating our 30-years in business. The production staff at CroBar did an incredible job and plans are underway to make the semiannual event called "Release" much larger next year, highlighting the work of some of the biggest names, in leather, from around the world.

Milwaukee people there next year. I'm also looking into facilitating a leather workshop. If anyone is interested in possibly co-facilitating, let me know ASAP.

With all that out of the way, it's time to touch on the local Fun. Halloween brought out quite the evening for bars all over the city. Every venue I stopped in was packed, and the large four bar costume crawl that moved up National Ave was a blast. Sadly I wasn't able to make it to the end of the night. I think it's time I take a refresher course in disco napping, and pacing myself. International Mister Rubber pulled a great crowd down to the Cell Block in Chicago for the annual contest. After a few rounds of friendly competition, a native of Chicago, Will Schendel was sashed Mister International Rubber 2003. 1st runner up went to John Reddy of Virginia, and 2nd runner up being Elmar Koeller from Germany. Sadly, by the time this gets printed, the Great Lakes Puppy contest will have passed. I have full intention of attending this event at the Cell Block, and unless Mother Nature blocks my path, I will return with results, stories, gossip, squeaky chew toys, and rolled up newspapers.

The holidays are right around the corner. You have about six weeks of Christmas shopping season left. I'm sure everyone wants to have the most unique of gifts for their friends this year. Remember kinky stocking stuffers can come from the most obscure of places. A brick of clothespins, spool of rope, or block of candles always makes a great gift for the kinky at heart. Check out the local leather shops for other unique gift ideas. Rumor has it that Mephisto Leather Of Sydney which had a branch in Chicago headed up by famous Milwaukee native

Eric K. finally opened up a storefront in the Chicago area. I've heard they also had a fantastic grand opening bar party and play party. I'm going to try to venture down there soon to see check it out.

I'm sure several are wondering where something I said would be in this column is. Well it's not here. Due to someone being in Denver, and Portland, and Another person heading off to Europe, schedules could not combine for a chance when two people could sit down and talk. It's coming soon. After a planned chance encounter in the Harbor Room on Wednesday night, a time has finally been Set! WHOOO HOOO! Anyway, that's it for this installment, and I'll have more holiday leathery news in a few weeks. I want to hear what your most exotic gift ever was, and what the most exotic gift you ever gave someone was. You don't have to include names, but let's see how creative some of you men are. Drop me an email. You should really do it. Your mother approves!

MR. INTERNATIONAL RUBBER 2003 SELECTED

Chicago, IL. — November 11, 2002 — Chicagoan, William "Rubberwilli" Schendel emerged from a field of seven contestants to win the title of Mr. International Rubber 2003 in front of a packed house at Cell Block on Saturday night, November 9th. Joining him as 1st Runner-up was John Reddy of Virginia, with Elmar Koeller from Germany as 2nd Runner-up. Popular entertainer, Khris Francis returned for a 5th time to emcee the contest, which is part of Cell Block's annual Rubber Blowout Weekend.

The other contestants were Ryan Schomer of Chicago, Dave Johnston of Dallas, Jon Wright from San Francisco and Oscar Maravillas also of Chicago. Joining Yannick Kerjose, Mr. International Rubber 2002 were his precessors Chad McLaughlin, MIR 2001; Tom Kelly, MIR 2000; Thomas Smith, MIR 1999 and Publisher of the Leather Journal, Dave Rhodes. The contestants were interviewed by the judges before the contest. On stage they were judged for their rubber image, answers to questions posed by the judges and the popular "wet rubber" segment.

Before the winners were announced Mr. International Rubber 2002, Yannick Kerjose spoke to the audience. In his speech, he reflected back to competing last year, when as he put it "a little rubber boy" from Paris was selected for this title and the support and acceptance he has received from everyone during the past year. Yannick also announced his intention to help establish a Mr. Europe Rubber contest in the coming year.

Rubber Blowout Weekend included several parties, demos, a 2 day vendor market and the contest. The weekend was sponsored by Cell Block, Miller Brewing Co. and RoB of Amsterdam. Registered participants came from across the US, France and Germany, many of whom have made this an annual visit to Chicago. Rubber Blowout 2003 Weekend is set for November 7 - 9 2003 with the Mr. International Rubber 2004 Contest on that Saturday night. For more information contact David Boyer at Cell Block at 773-665-8064 cellblock@cellblock-chicago.com.

LEATHER LEATHER LEATHER LEATHER

Holy Shit what a month it's been! After what ended up being close to three non stop weeks of traveling, entertaining, and more traveling. I have returned! First off, I trekked to the mile high city of Denver, Colorado. Check this town out kids! It is an amazing city, with fantastic weather, cuddling cold at night, and warm enough for shorts during the day. I've heard they recently got pounded with a blizzard, but that only means skiing season is open now! You can't imagine how nice it is to wake up with a view of the mountains every morning. I know we've got a BIG lake here in the Midwest, but it just doesn't compare to snow capped mountains. In regards to the thin air, even my zaftig visage wasn't affected buy it. I only got a tad wheezy and short of breath once, but I won't mention what caused that EG. Needless to say, I wasn't, and am not complaining about it at all! The community scene in Denver was pretty amazing too. I attended a wonderful costume party that had over 60 of the finest muscle bears I've ever seen actually IN COSTUME. Denver is also home to the Gill Foundation, and some very vibrant gay nightlife. During out escapades, we checked out a few of the local rainbow watering holes, and I must say I was floored by what I saw. Good news first: The Denver Wrangler was an amazing place. Huge bar, huge fun, huge drinks, huge muscled bears. I could have sat in admiration of the back bartender all night long. Luckily for me, I had a fantastic host (who could have beat up the back bartender ANY DAY.) After a few eye openers at the Wrangler, we headed off to the Denver Triangle. Now many of you might remember hearing stories of the Triangle being "hell on earth" and literally one of the most wild, sexual, and "real" leather bars left in existence. Sadly, my hopes were shattered even before we got into the bar. The line of sweater queens waving their IDs and limp wrists signaled trouble. Again, I must give props to my fantastic host who breezed us through with a nod, a smile, and a flex of his beautiful bicep while he pushed the fashion failures out of the way. With that, we were inside the "T" as everyone calls it. Country Western, plus Cher, plus a badly syncopated dance beat just doesn't work. Ever. I guess the thin air must have gotten to all the patrons, and none of them has gotten a deep enough breath to realize the "T" should more aptly stand for Tragic rather than Triangle. I can only hope my next trip out there will show some change, and more of a leathery crowd there. That's wearing leather. Not looking like leather from lying in the sun too long. I have to give thanks, applause, and love to my most wonderful host Eric while I was there. This truly fantastic individual showed me the real life of the city along with the sights that aren't on the tourism brochures. I also want to thank all the wonderful people I met, who quickly adopted me into their circle of friends and made me feel like I was at home. You are all welcome here any day, and hopefully I can make the Midwest as wonderful an experience for you as Denver was for me. THANK YOU!

My return from Denver brought a visit from one of my best friends in the world who is from Anchorage. I'm going to save all the details of that visit for my memoirs. Want to know more? Buy the book when it comes out. I will give huge thanks to the best of friends Tony for being "Judy, the cruise director" for parts of the weekend, and for being able to tolerate the both of us when we got really feisty. I will give this piece of advice. Sometimes you might not realize it is art, it could just be minimalist. For the full story on that one, you'll have to read my memoirs, or corner me when I'm out and about.

All this brings me to a trip to Portland for the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force Creating Change Conference. Many of you will remember last year this conference took place in wonderful city on the lake, Milwaukee. This year's conference took place in the wonderful city under the rain cloud, Portland. Now mind you, Portland is a beautiful city with some amazing restaurants and seafood to die for, it's wet, very wet, all the time. I want to send the Portland Visitors center a thank you card, and a case of Tilex. I understand mold, mildew, and moss grow in areas that never dry out, but when the front of an Office Depot looks like the inside of a very gross shower, something is wrong. With that diatribe out of my system, on to the meat of the conference. The conference them was "Building an Anti Racist Movement" Very poignant messages for a movement that is facing such discrimination and intolerance with recent political shifts. To sum up most of the conference in a few words, clean up your own house first. then work on someone else's. Next year's conference will be held in Miami Beach. Finally someplace warm. I expect to see even more

It's the eighth annual and promises to be the best ever! Civic Center, downtown Madison!

In the main lobby area (CrossRoads), a club atmosphere will be created featuring two of Madison's favorite DJs, Sandy Seuser and Tony Ritschard.

The Marquee Room at the Civic Center will have a unique blend of live entertainment - comedian Bruce Wheeler of WORT and knockout jazz vocalist Tara Ayres. Gorgeous ballads to high camp, you're going to love this pair! Following Wheeler and Ayres, the talents of jazz guitarist Barb Cheron and bassist Marianne Flemming. Wow!

And, the Dairyland Cowgirls & cowboys will create line-dancing heaven in the Spotlight Room. For more info, call OutReach (608) 255-8582
